LLOYD GEORGE AGAINST VENGEANCE PEACE; WILSON PROMISES FOOD FOR GERMAN PEOPLE; RED FACTION DEMANDS ARREST OF VON TIRPITZ

PRESIDENT PLANS BOARD TO AID RECONSTRUCTION

Would Represent Commercial, Industrial, Labor, Agricultural, and Social Interests.

BUSINESS MEN ANXIOUS

Flood Government with Telegrams of Inquiry and Make Suggestions.

WOULD AVERT ANY UPSET

Federal Chamber of Commerce Urges Uniform Policy in Canceling War Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Wilson has under consideration the appointment of a Reconstruction Commission to develop a comprehensive program for the nation's conversion from a war to a peace basis. The commission would be advisory rather than executive in functions, and the plans developed and co-ordinated by it would be carried out by existing Government departments and agencies.

As now considered, the commission would be representative of commercial, industrial, labor, agricultural, and social interests, its membership would be small, and it would deal with all phases of the great problem of easing the country from war to peace.

The President is understood to be distinctly opposed to the suggested plan of having a Congressional committee prepare a reconstruction program. He is said to prefer men who can give their entire time to the work, and who have made special studies of economic and social problems. The President is said now to be considering what emergency legislation may be necessary before the Government can proceed systematically to turn all resources of the country to peace-time production.

How to shut off further war production without closing plants, throwing men out of work, and causing financial strain, is the most immediate reconstruction problem facing the Government. Hundreds of telegrams of inquiry reaching Government departments today disclosed anxiety of business men over this question and offered a multitude of suggestions for dealing with it. As a clearing house for such suggestions, the Reconstruction Commission would function. Establishment of such a board was recommended to President Wilson by Professor O. M. W. Sprague, an economist of Harvard, who has conducted reconstruction research work for the Council of National Defense.

Government authorities having charge of the placing of war contracts are considering a plan for diverting raw materials from war industries as fast as these curtail their activities, to other industries where they can be used at once for reconstruction needs. War orders will not be cancelled in a wholesale way until such a plan is developed, it is believed.

In this connection the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today made public a letter to President Wilson citing evidence of anxiety among business men over the Government's future course, suggesting development of uniform policies for all departments and some measures for preventing a sudden drop in prices of raw materials.

"As you are doubtless aware," the letter said, "the cancellation of contracts by some Government agencies during the last ten days has caused a great deal of apprehension and disturbance, the extent of which, fortunately, has not attracted public attention because the war news has so greatly overshadowed it. The developments incident to the cancellations referred to indicate the difficulties we will have to face unless the transition is gradual and the vast labor and financial interests involved are most carefully safeguarded.

"The stoppage of work in the small number of instances where steps have already been taken is causing uneasiness among the banks, which, in almost every case, are extending credit to the contractors, and is likewise affecting the credit of large numbers of sub-contractors who are supplying materials to the principals.

"It seems to us that it is possible to work out certain common principles which should obtain in all Government departments in effecting settlements on contracts now to be stopped and adjusting them on a fair basis. If one bureau or department follows its own ideas, and another pursues a different course, it seems that it will lead to endless controversy and confusion. For this reason we believe the agencies set up in the various bureaus and departments to deal

U-Boats Seek Internment; Captains Fear to Return Home

BELIEVE WILSON WILL GO TO EUROPE

Lloyd George and Clemenceau Said to Have Asked Him to Attend Peace Conference.

ROOT OR TAFT LIKELY TO GO

Lansing, Baker, and House Also Among Those Who Are Suggested Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — Unless some obstacle affecting the public interest intervenes or strong popular objection develops, it is reasonably certain, to put it mildly, that President Wilson will attend the sessions of the peace conference.

With no statement forthcoming on the subject from the White House, it is not possible now to predict with certainty what the President's decision will be, but the idea is in the President's mind and he is giving it serious consideration, backed by the inclination to attend.

Several of the President's closest friends and advisers are urging him to sit with the plenipotentiaries at the peace table. The matter has progressed to a point where only considerations arising out of the state of the public business or popular objection to having the President leave the country will be likely to keep him at home. Members of his Cabinet are in favor of having him sit with the plenipotentiaries, and from the present outlook the decision of the President will lie with the view taken by the press and public.

Congress Would Be in Session.

One of the objections urged to the absence of the President of the United States for a considerable period is that Congress will be in session during the President's proposed visit abroad, and he would be unable to pass on enactments by that body. The Constitution provides that a legislative act shall become a law when approved by the President, or if he should fail to give his approval within ten days after receiving the act. It is provided also that he shall have the right to veto any legislative measure, provided he returns the measure to the House in which it originated within ten days after he receives it.

To those who are urging the President to attend the peace conference the objection does not appeal. It is considered that if important bills require the President' attention during his absence, a gentleman's agreement would be reached in Congress by which they would not be put through the final grind of the legislative mill and sent to the White House until the President's return. Less important measures could be explained to the President by cable and he could permit them to become laws without his signature.

Administration opinion, therefore, seems to side with the view that this objection is not well taken. There remains the consideration that the people of the country might think it ill-advised for the President to be away from the United States for the length of time that his presence at the peace conference would require. Objections other than that mentioned might be raised, among them that there is no telling what crisis might arise during the President's absence and thus cause embarrassment through his inability to act on the spot. It is upon such phases of the matter as this that the President's friends are awaiting public opinion.

It is not probable that the President would be absent from the United States much more than a month. Nor is it contemplated that he should be present when the peace plenipotentiaries meet. The idea in the mind of some friends, at least, appears to be that he would wait until the conference had organized and had begun the discussion of the most important phases of the momentous settlement of world affairs. The President would then appear and would devote himself to the business of the conference for about a fortnight, during which, according to opinion held here, the more troublesome questions existing out of the war would probably be adjusted.

That the President is giving consideration to the urging that he attend the

WILL SEND FOOD TO GERMANS

President Replies to New Appeal for Aid from Chancellor.

WILL CONSULT OUR ALLIES

Disposed to Undertake Provisioning if New Government Maintains Public Order.

TEXT OF APPEAL AND REPLY

Suggestion as to Preserving Order Came from Ebert Himself Through Swiss.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Germany has again appealed to the United States for food, this time through the Swiss Government, which represents German interests in this country.

By direction of President Wilson, assurances have been given by Secretary Lansing that the matter will be taken up with the allied nations and that the United States is willing to help. Public order must be maintained in Germany, however, to assure an equitable distribution of the food contributed. This condition was suggested by the German Government and accepted by President Wilson.

The latest German appeal for food came to the State Department in this note from the Swiss Minister in Washington:

Department of German Interests,
Legation of Switzerland,
Washington, Nov. 12, 1918.

Sir: By direction of my Government, I have the honor to transmit the following cable:

"The German Government urgently requests the President of the United States to inform the German Chancellor Ebert, by wireless, whether he may be assured that the Government of the United States is ready to send foodstuffs without delay, if public order is maintained in Germany and an equitable distribution of food is guaranteed."

Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

HANS SULZER,
Minister of Switzerland.

His Excellency, Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, Washington.

Secretary Lansing made the following answer:

Department of State, Washington,
Nov. 12, 1918.

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of today, transmitting to the President the text of a cable inquiring whether this Government is ready to send foodstuffs into Germany without delay, if public order is maintained in Germany and an equitable distribution of food is guaranteed.

I should be grateful if you would transmit the following reply to the German Government:

At a joint session of the two houses of Congress on Nov. 11 the President of the United States announced that the representatives of the associated Governments in the Supreme War Council at Versailles have by unanimous resolution assured the peoples of the Central Empires that everything that is possible in the circumstances will be done to supply them with food and relieve the distressing want that is in so many places threatening their very lives, and that steps are to be taken immediately to organize these efforts at relief in the same systematic manner that they were organized in the case of Belgium. Furthermore, the President expressed the opinion that by the use of the idle tonnage of the Central Empires it ought presently to be possible to lift the fear of utter misery from their oppressed populations and set their minds and energies free for the great and hazardous tasks of political reconstruction which now face them on every hand.

Accordingly the President now directs me to state that he is ready to consider favorably the supplying of foodstuffs to Germany and to take up the matter immediately with the allied Governments, provided he can be assured that public order is being and will continue to be maintained in Germany, and that an equitable distribution of food can be clearly guaranteed.

Accept, Sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration,

ROBERT LANSING.

Prince Henry in Schleswig; He Declares for New Regime

COPENHAGEN, Thursday, Nov. 14.—Prince Henry of Prussia has been discovered at the castle owned by Duke Friedrich Ferdinand of Schleswig-Holstein at Eckernfoerde [on the sea coast southeast of Schleswig,] according to dispatches received here.

He declares himself in accord with the new régime in Germany.

At the time of the naval outbreak in Kiel Prince Henry was there, and previous reports have told how he took flight in haste, pursued by the Reds. One dispatch stated that his wife was with him and received a wound from a bullet.

OMSK, Siberia, Nov. 11.—After seventeen days of practically continuous travel the Red Cross arrived at Omsk burdened with appeals for economic and medical assistance. While the outside world is aflame with sensational war developments, Russia arises as one nation begging for the opportunity to obtain clothing, household goods, and raw materials.

Russia is not a war problem, but a grave international question of reconstruction. She needs help now, not after the war, and while what the Red Cross is attempting is commendable, it is only the smallest fraction. Because of European developments it may be difficult for Americans to comprehend Russia's situation, which is briefly as follows:

1. Bolshevism is not dead in Siberia, but is suppressed. Bolshevism's strength lies in Russia's bankrupt economic condition. If America can carry out the President's program, Bolshevism will be weakened and the people aided.

2. Siberia is now giving signs of being the centre of Russia's rebirth. Hundreds of thousands of people from European Russia are traveling here. Take the case of Omsk; with a normal population of 150,000, it now has 600,000. Novo Nikolaivitch, which has a normal population of 80,000, at present has 150,000.

3. The requests for economic assistance are only the beginning. That nation which can administer to Russia's needs, sending all necessities here to be sold without profiteering, will be doing the greatest thing possible for this nation, which is bleached by war and revolution.

In the cities of Irkutsk, Chita, Tomsk, Taiga, Novo Nikolaivitch, and Omsk I have seen second-hand overcoats bring 2,500 rubles, second-hand felt boots 200 rubles, and a suit of cotton underwear 220 rubles. I have seen men and women crowded together in log huts unable to venture out into the Siberian Winter because they lacked clothes.

There is an epidemic of typhus at Nikolaivitch and the doctors are unable to care for patients because of the lack of drugs and ordinary bandages. In one hut twenty-five children were found lying on the dirty floor, all typhus infected. In the railway station there are cases without clothing wrapped only in the mother's rags or torn blankets.

Russia's destitution cannot be de-

ADVOCATES HOME REFORMS

Proposes Land and Labor Legislation and Is with Wilson Against Economic War.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—"One of the principal issues at the forthcoming general election will be the nature of the peace settlement. It will mean the settlement of the world."

Premier Lloyd George made this announcement in an address to his Liberal supporters on Nov. 11.

"What are the principles on which that settlement is to be effected?" he asked. "Are we to lapse back into the old national rivalries, animosities, and competitive armaments, or are we to initiate the reign on earth of the Prince of Peace? It is the duty of Liberalism to use its influence to insure that it shall be a reign of peace.

"What are conditions of peace? They must lead to a settlement which will be fundamentally just. No settlement that contravenes the principles of eternal justice will be a permanent one. The peace of 1871 imposed by Germany on France outraged all the principles of justice and fair play. Let us be warned by that example.

"We must not allow any sense of revenge, any spirit of greed, any grasping desire to override the fundamental principles of righteousness. Vigorous attempts will be made to hector and bully the Government in an endeavor to make them depart from the strict principles of right and to satisfy some base, sordid, squalid idea of vengeance and of avarice. We must relentlessly set our faces against that.

"The mandate of this Government at the forthcoming election will mean that the British delegation to the peace congress will be in favor of a just peace."

For a League of Nations.

In discussing the question of a league of nations before his supporters, Premier Lloyd George said that such a league was more necessary now than ever. He pointed out that the conditions which prevailed in the Balkans before the war were now affecting practically two-thirds of Europe.

"A large number of small nations have been reborn in Europe," he continued, "and these will require a league of nations to protect them against the covetousness of ambitious and grasping neighbors. In my judgment, a league of nations is absolutely essential to permanent peace.

"We shall go to the peace conference to guarantee that a league of nations is a reality. I am one of those who believe that without peace we cannot have progress. A league of nations guarantees peace and guarantees also an all-round reduction of armaments, and that reduction of armaments is a guarantee that you can get rid of conscription here.

"Of course, we must have in this country an efficient army to police the Empire, but I am looking forward to a condition of things, with the existence of a league of nations, under which conscription will not be necessary in any country."

Domestic Reconstruction.

At a meeting of 200 leading coalition Liberal peers and commoners today Premier Lloyd George outlined his domestic reconstruction policy, saying the victory must be utilized as an impetus to reforms. A great rehousing program was necessary, he said, the hours of labor must be reduced, a minimum wage

Englishmen Want Wilson Statue in London Besides Those of Washington and Lincoln

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The newly formed Anglo-American Society, of which the Duke of Connaught is President, has decided to ask President Wilson to honor the society by allowing it to erect his statue in London simultaneously with the statues of Washington and Lincoln, which have already been offered by the United States. The statue of the President, if erected, will be made by a distinguished sculptor.

The resolution passed by the society stated that the statue would be a "memorial to President Wilson's distinguished services to humanity in the time of the great war."

Viscount James Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States, is Deputy President of the society, while Premier Lloyd George, former Premier Asquith, and other men prominent in public life, are Vice Presidents.

Bolshevism Is Spreading Through Europe; All Neutral Countries Now Feel the Infection

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The most serious question of the hour, in the opinion of some newspapers here, is how far Europe is infected with Bolshevism.

Dispatches show that the revolution in Germany has made an impression in Sweden, where organs of the Independent Socialists publish a manifesto urging the establishment of Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils everywhere in order to establish a Socialist Government and republic, according to Copenhagen advices to the Exchange Telegraph Company. General demobilization of the army and an eight-hour working day are also demanded by them.

In Holland also, say dispatches from Amsterdam, popular joy over the end of the war is overshadowed by fear of Bolshevist troubles and doubts whether a partial demobilization of the army, with an increase in the bread ration, will stave off subversive infection.

The revolutionary Socialist Party has already issued a manifesto advocating Russian methods. Moreover, a new republican party has arisen in Holland aiming at the abolition of the court, army, navy, and diplomacy.

Newspapers in Spain, Holland, and even Norway also express apprehension over the spread of the Red Flag movement. The troubles in Switzerland also cause uneasiness. A general strike began there today.

Republics Proclaimed in Wurttemberg and Hesse—Ducal Lands Seized.

BASLE, Nov. 13.—A dispatch from Berlin says that Grand Duke William Ernst of Saxe-Weimar has abdicated in order to prevent civil war.

The dispatch adds that republics have been proclaimed in Württemberg and Hesse.

The new Government in Baden has been constituted under the Presidency of the Socialist Herr Jeiss.

BERNE, Nov. 13.—Prince Leopold of Lippe-Detmold renounced his throne yesterday, according to the semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov 13, (Associated Press.)—In Hesse the revolutionaries have declared the Grand Ducal lands confiscated and all hereditary entails abolished.

Queen Maria Theresa of Bavaria is reported to be dying.

The former Grand Duke William Ernst is 42 years old. Saxe-Weimar is in Central Germany, in Thuringia. Among the important towns in the Grand Duchy are Weimar, which is the capital, and Jena, the famous university town.

Lippe is the smallest of the German principalities. Its area is 469 square miles and it has a population under 175,000.

Leopold IV., who has retired, was born in 1871. He assumed the regency in succession to his father, Count Ernst of Lippe Biesterfeld, in 1904, the nominal reigning Prince Carl of the House of Schaumburg-Lippe being insane. There was a dispute over the right of succession between the two families which was settled by a judicial court at Leipsic in 1905.

COUNCIL IS FORMED IN ALSACE-LORRAINE

Lower House Members Create Provisional Body—Population Hostile to German Troops.

STRASSBURG, Nov. 13, (via Amsterdam.)—Members of the Second Chamber of Alsace Lorraine have constituted themselves into a National Council. A Provisional Executive Committee has been appointed.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The German command has asked the French Government by wireless to request the population of Alsace-Lorraine to remain calm during the German retirement. The message adds that the population is hostile toward the German troops.

Leon Siben, Advocate General to the Paris Court of Appeals, has been appointed Director of Justice for the Provinces of Alsace and Lorraine.

Senator Delahaye, in discussing Alsace-Lorraine in the Senate, recalled the famous letter written by the late Mgr. Freppel, the Bishop of Angers, and the Bishop's wish before he died that his heart be interred in reconquered Alsace. France, said the Senator, will now be able to take back to Obernai, the birthplace of Mgr. Freppel, the casket containing the dead prelate's heart.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 11.—In reply to inquiries, Count Goddard von Bentinck, host of the ex-Kaiser, has sent the following telegram, dated at Arnhem, 4 A. M. today, to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

I have just seen the ex-Kaiser in his special train. Sixteen officers are in his personal suite, en route for Maarn. From that place they go by automobile to the castle at Amerongen.

For the Good of Germany, Says William.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—At 10:55 o'clock this morning a train containing the ex-Kaiser and his party arrived at Roilmond, where there was a halt of twenty minutes. Arnhem was reached at 2:35 o'clock and Maarn at 3:24.

The Maarn station was strongly held by troops. Motor cars were in waiting to take the ex-Kaiser and his party to Amerongen, where the exiled monarch will stay at a castle belonging to the Bentinck family.

A little while before the arrival of the ex-Kaiser's train at Maarn the station was occupied by the military, and only a number of officials and Government representatives were allowed on the platform, together with Count Bentinck. Immediately after the train drew up at the platform William II. descended from his compartment. He was again wearing a Prussian General's uniform, but without any orders.

The first to greet him was Count Bentinck, who bowed low before the royal exile. A short ceremony of greeting those on the platform followed, and then the ex-Kaiser went with Count Bentinck through a drizzling rain to a waiting motor car. He appeared to be tired and seemed to have a good deal of use for a stout stick which he carried.

The public cheered but little, and hisses were heard from some parts of the waiting crowd. As the royal exile entered the motor car he was heard to say with a forced smile to Count Bentinck:

"Well, what do you say about it all?"

The Count's reply could not be heard as the car went off to his residence at Amerongen.

A statement has been published to the effect that the ex-Kaiser wishes it to be understood that his journey is not in the nature of a flight. He had, it is declared, left Germany so as to facilitate the work of the new Government and rid it of many embarrassments which his presence might cause. Were he to remain in Germany, ef-

French Deputies Want Kaiser Extradited and Put on Trial

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Several members of the Chamber of Deputies today proposed in the Chamber a resolution requesting the Government to enter into an agreement with the other allied Governments for the trial of all former rulers who were responsible for the great European war.

Under the resolution, the extradition of the rulers would be requested no matter in what country they have taken refuge.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The German Socialists, now apparently well intrenched in power, are fast extending their control of the army, fleet, and people, dispatches from the continent state.

The Independent Socialists in the new Government at Berlin have demanded the arrest of Admiral von Tirpitz, former Minister of the Navy; Major General Keim, President of the German Army League; Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, President of the Fatherland Party; Admiral von Holtzendorff, former chief of the Naval General Staff, and others and the establishment of a tribunal to try all persons primarily responsible for the continuation of the war and hindering peace. This information is contained in a Berlin dispatch to the Amsterdam Telegraaf.

Another Berlin dispatch says that the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council, in addition to abolishing the censorship, has lifted the state of siege, and ordered religious liberty and a political amnesty. Beginning with the new year there is to be an eight-hour working day in Berlin.

Wolff Bureau dispatches from Berlin received in Berne state that order appears to rule everywhere in Germany and that acts of anarchy have ceased. The majorities and minorities have divided the authority between them, but the minorities have been relegated to second place, it appears. The majorities are charged with preparing the organization of a German republic.

Eastern Army Submits to Reds.

The commander of the German Eastern Army, which is now occupying Russian territory, has placed himself and his army at the disposition of the Soldiers' Council.

Major Gen. Scheuch, according to an official statement issued in Berlin, will retain his post as Prussian Minister of War and will assist the new Government. He will look after the feeding and demobilization of the army.

Fresh fighting broke out in Berlin on Monday. Loyal officers opened fire from the royal stables and attacked the revolutionaries with machine guns on the Unter den Linden. Several persons were killed.

The German troops who mutinied at the Beverloo camp in Belgium and raised the red flag, says the Amsterdam Handelsblad, attacked another force supporting the former Emperor. The latter force was defeated and fled to the Dutch frontier, where it was disarmed.

Denies Plan to Annul Loan.

Vorwärts of Berlin repudiates the rumors current in Germany that the new peoples' Government intends to annul the war loan. The newspaper says that subscriptions to the ninth war loan have reached 10,000,000,000 marks.

Although the Bolshevist group of the German Independent Socialist Party is recognized as a separate organization, it is still a decided minority, and the power rests in the hands of the majority Socialists and non-Bolshevist Independents, says a Berlin dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende of Copenhagen, transmitted by The Associated Press. The dispatch adds that the Soldiers'. representatives at the meeting on Sunday of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council energetically opposed the plans of the Bolshevist element.

The soldiers threatened to establish a purely military dictatorship if an attempt were made to eliminate the majority Socialists. They declared that they would, if necessary, join the majority in suppressing the Bolshevist tendencies of the Independents, and generally refused to follow the Spartacus or Bolshevist group.

Chancellor Ebert and Deputy Haase were greatly applauded, but Dr. Liebknecht had difficulty in getting a hearing.

After the formation of the new Cabinet, Herr Barth, the Spartacus member, announced his resignation, and induced Deputies Hasse and Dittmann, Independent Socialists, to follow his action. Later Hasse and Dittmann withdrew their resignations.

Fear Socialist Dictatorship.

Comments by German bourgeois newspapers received in Amsterdam disclose apprehension of the Socialist Government's decision to postpone indefinitely the summoning of a Constituent Assembly. The Tageblatt admits that the majority Socialists probably were wise in excluding the non-Socialists from the Government, but says that the postponement of a National Assembly leaves open the question whether Germany is to tread the road of democracy or of dictatorship.

The Hamburg Fremdenblatt's Berlin correspondent says that whether the majority or the minority is to rule in Germany depends on the energy of a few men, and that, while the majority Socialists feel that only a dictatorship is possible for ruling during the transition period, they honestly desire that it shall remain in power only until the National Assembly "in a truly democratic manner decides the future of the German people."

The newspaper considers that the only safe hope for avoiding complete internal collapse is the establishment of a strong Ebert Dictatorship with the help of a wise Soldiers' Council.

The correspondent reports that there is utter chaos in the Chancellor's palace, and that the new Police President has abolished the censorship and restrictions of the right of assembly. The closing hour of cafés, restaurants, and other public places has been fixed for 11:30 o'clock at night.

Russian and French war prisoners, the correspondent says, are fraternizing. A decree has fixed their wages on the same scale as that of the "free German laborers."

The revolution, according to the correspondent, has reached East Prussia, but generally it has not been accompanied by bloodshed.

Berlin Paper Resumes Old Name.

The Lokal-Anzeiger announces that it has obtained the protection of the Government against the Spartacus group, which seized the newspaper and renamed it the Red Banner. The paper has resumed its old title.

The new palace at Potsdam, where the former German Empress, the former Crown Princess, and other Princesses and their children are said to be living, has been taken under the protection of the Potsdam Workmen's and Soldiers' Council. The former Empress has expressed to the council, a Berlin dispatch says, her thanks for the protection.

A Paris dispatch states that the lack of German news reaching that city by the way of Switzerland indicates some interruption in the usual channel of information. Zurich has confirmed reports that the frontier is closed to travelers from Germany. It is reported that Herr Ebert, the German Chancellor, has given a place in his Cabinet to Georg Ledebour, Social Democratic leader, but this report is given under reserve.

Information received in Paris is that the revolution is proceeding calmly and methodically.

REICHSTAG BECAME A CAMP.

Red Guards Bivouacked Sunday in Its Luxurious Setting.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Berlin advices dated Sunday are to the effect that in its outward aspects the revolution as observed in Berlin was still in a chaotic stage. The Reichstag, which is the Workmen's and Soldiers' headquarters, had been converted into an armed camp. Hastily organized and equipped squads of Red Guards were bivouacked in the richly carpeted lounging corridor.

Travel-stained soldiers and sailors slept close to stacked rifles or sat in luxurious arm chairs munching chunks of army bread. Every inch of the floor space of the big building was devoted to some phase of the revolutionary organization committee. The rooms in which formerly reactionary campaigns were planned were similarly employed.

There had been no clashes between civilians and red guards. The armed conflicts had been confined to the revolutionary army and officers in concealment, who, it is said, were being assisted by cadets and boy scouts. The new Government was straining every nerve to organize public utilities, and in this matter no complications were anticipated.

Incoming trains on Sunday continued to debark large detachments of soldiers, sailors, and bourgeoisie. The Parliamentary leaders, who until three days before had been engaged in shaping the nation's destinies, were still absent from the main scene of the revolution.

The armistice conditions posted on the downtown corners of Berlin Sunday afternoon attracted only slight attention. Berlin, the advices say, never retired before at such an early hour and was sleeping Sunday night under the red flag.

NAVIES EXCHANGE GREETING.

Daniels and Geddes Felicitate Over Co-operation of Sea Forces.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Messages of felicitation have been exchanged between Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the American Navy, and Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the British Admiralty. The message of Mr. Daniels said:

"My hearty congratulations. This is the greatest day in 2,000 years of history. All of the 500,000 men in the American Navy send greetings to you and your great navy. One of the things for which we are happiest is that the two English-speaking navies have cooperated to achieve the glorious result."

Sir Eric Geddes replied to Mr. Daniels as follows:

"I thank you on behalf of the British Navy for your very cordial message of greetings. The friendship between the two English-speaking navies which the war has brought about is one of the lasting benefits which these terrible years have given us, and the co-operation with the United States Navy will never be forgotten by the Royal Navy."

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—The stupendous work of carrying through the Socialist revolution throughout Germany proceeds apace. News of all sorts pours in here from a multitude of quarters, and that maze of information almost makes the mind reel before the tremendous complication of happenings.

Let me turn to the capital first. There, while the new Government is being formed, the power is in the hands of a Socialist triumvirate—Ebert, Scheidemann, and Landsberg. Unity has been achieved between the majority and Independent Socialist Parties, and the new Government will consist of members of both sections. Liebknecht appears to have championed the extreme Socialist, almost Bolshevist, cause, but it is reported that he is losing support.

The Government will be formed before the voting takes place for a national gathering. In that election all persons of both sexes, who have reached the age of 20 years, will vote, and that gathering will decide on the future form of government.

There can be little doubt that Germany will be placed upon a republican form of government, though it is still in doubt whether there will be one or more republics in the fatherland. Negotions are being held with Bavaria and other States, with a view to common action. The opinion in Berlin appears to be that Bavaria at least desires separation.

The Berlin Workmen's and Soldiers' Council has assumed control of all home troops, and the War Office in Berlin is under control of a Socialist Deputy, with whom the War Minister is working.

Papers Plead for Reds.

The most curious happening in Berlin is the volte face of conservative journals. Those papers like the Kreuz Zeitung, which a short week ago were breathing fire against the Socialists, are now appealing in lamblike tones to the public to support the powers that be.

There was some fighting in Berlin during Saturday and Sunday, and the trouble appears to be continuing today. On Saturday and Sunday it took place round the Royal Castle and today the scene of the fighting has been the Friedrichstrasse Station. The fighting appears to have spread during the day to other parts of the city. It was caused apparently by a number of officers, but nowhere, according to the latest news, was the trouble of a very serious nature. During the day there have been many republican demonstrations throughout the city.

Here and there in the suburbs, too, some shots have been fired, but, on the whole, fairly good order appears to be preserved in the capital.

More States Transformed.

As far as the other parts of the country are concerned, numerous reports continue to reach here of the formation of Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils everywhere without opposition. The Grand Duke Hesse has abdicated, and in Württemberg a republic on the Bavarian model has been proclaimed and introduced apparently without disturbance. In Baden a new Socialist Government has been formed.

The King of Bavaria with his family and Prince Rupprecht—though eports differ regarding the Prince—have taken to flight. They left Munich in motor cars late Thursday night.

Reports from Belgium state that councils are being formed among the soldiers there, while at Spa, where the German Headquarters are, somewhat serious disturbances have taken place. On numerous buildings the red flag has been hoisted, and several regiments there and in the neighborhood are said to have refused to obey orders. Throughout Belgium there is stated to have been a number of cases where whole companies of troops have thrown away their arms and begun to trek homeward.

Heligoland is in the power of the Soldiers' Council formed there.

Socialists Dividing Offices.

It is not yet known at the time of wiring of whom the new Government will consist. One report says that the majority Socialists and Independents will have three seats each, and that several members of the other parties will be admitted, on terms, of course. Liebknecht, according to one message, appears to have agreed to enter the Government, which, it is thought, will consist of the following Socialists: Ebert, Scheidemann, Landsberg, Haase, Liebknecht, and Barth, while Erzberger of the Centre Party and Gothein of the Progressive People's Party will become members of it as well.

Advices from Antwerp state that serious disturbances have taken place among the garrison troops there. Officers in the streets have been stripped of the signs of their rank on their uniforms by soldiers, and several who resisted were shot on the spot.

At Beverloo, one of the largest camps in Belgium, a mutiny broke out yesterday. Many thousands of soldiers rallied around the red flag, while another party was formed of the supporters of the Kaiser.

It is reported to have come to serious fighting, as a result of which the Royalists were beaten. They fled during the night with their arms and artillery, and were this morning disarmed by Dutch guards on crossing the frontier between Loozen and Weert.

GERMAN SOLDIERS RUSH HOME

Long Trains Crowded with Troops Reach Border Provinces.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 13.—Long trains crowded with German soldiers, who left the front on their own initiative, have arrived in Hanover and cities in Westphalia, according to dispatches to the Handelsblad.

DEMANDS PEACE OF JUSTICE

introduced, and production increased through land reform. He also foreshadowed a large development in transport. The Prime Minister said there was value in the prevailing revolutionary spirit, if wisely directed. It must be combatted by national unity, co-operation and sacrifice. He said he feared neither revolution nor Bolshevism, but he did fear reaction and dissension. Mere party considerations were unseemly. He wanted a united Government, representing all parties.

In regard to free trade, Mr. Lloyd George said he did not propose to go as far as the Paris resolutions. The third of President Wilson's points, he contended, prevented any idea of an economic war.

Irish home rule was essential, he declared, but there must be no coercion of Northeast Ulster.

The Premier concluded by saying that the watchword of the Government was progress. He said he must have the support of the Liberals.

The meeting unanimously pledged support to Mr. Lloyd George and the coalition Government during the period of reconstruction. The Premier received a remarkable ovation.

The Unionist Party today voted confidence in Chancellor Bonar Law, after the latter had announced that he proposed recommending the continuation of the present coalition Government.

War Cabinet Soon to Meet.

The Imperial War Cabinet, Reuter's Limited learns, will soon resume its sittings in order to deliberate on the terms of peace. There will also be important conferences and discussions in London between the Imperial and Dominion statesmen.

Premier Botha of South Africa, The London Times says, is coming to England at once to attend the sessions of the War Cabinet. The same authority says that Canada will be represented by Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minster, and a number of his colleagues and advisers; Australia by Premier Hughes and Sir Joseph Cook, Minister of the Navy; New Zealand by her Prime Minister, Mr. Massey, and Sir Joseph Ward, and Newfoundland by Premier Lloyd.

The Paris resolutions referred to by the British Prime Minister were recommendations adopted by Entente statesmen in conference at Paris in June, 1916. They proposed measures for an industrial and commercial solidarity among the Allies which practically amounted to the exclusion of the enemy's trade from their countries after the war. Mr. Asquith, then Prime Minister, highly recommended the resolutions, which had been "formally and publicly adopted by the British and French Governments."

The extreme pronouncement opposing the resolutions is to be found in the third of President Wilson's fourteen articles made public in a speech to Congress on Jan. 8, 1918, which reads:

"III. The removal, so far as possible, of all economic barriers and the establishment of an equality of trade conditions among all the nations all consenting to the peace and associating themselves for its maintenance."

ASKS VOTE OF $3,500,000,000.

British Chancellor Wants Ample Credit for Food Purchases.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—In moving a vote of credit for £700,000,000 in the House of Commons yesterday Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said there would be a reduction in expenditure, due to the change in the military situation. Military authorities, he said, advise, however, against reducing the amount of the credit, as the Allies might have to bring food to Europe.

Mr. Bonar Law said that everything available in connection with the manufacture of instrumentalities of war would be turned to the production of merchant ships, so that there would probably be an increased expenditure under this head.

In answer to a question by Donald Macmaster the Chancellor said that the Dominions were not represented at the armistice because obviously, as a whole, the Dominions could not possibly be there. The Government promised definitely that the Dominions would share fully in the peace negotiations.

Mr. Bonar Law said it was believed that, with the exception of one clause, where President Wilson was not absolutely distinct, everything which the Allies ever asked for could be claimed under the fourteen points enunciated by the President.

PETAIN EXHORTS RESTRAINT.

Tells French Army to Avoid Excesses in German Territory.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—General Petain, Commander of the French Armies, has addressed an order of the day to his troops, eulogizing the tenacity and energy shown during four years by France, "which had to vanquish the foe in order not to die."

He asks the soldiers who will occupy German territory not to permit their resentment over German violence in France to lead them astray, and tells them to respect persons and property.

"After having beaten the adversary by arms," the General continues, "you will impose upon him the dignity of your attitude, and the world will wonder what to admire more, your conduct in success or your heroism in battle."

The order concludes by eulogizing the soldier dead, and with a salutation to the bereaved fathers, mothers, widows, and orphans.

MAYOR CONGRATULATES WILSON AND PERSHING

Also Appoints Rodman Wanamaker to Arrange for Erection of an Arch of Freedom.

Mayor Hylan sent a cable message of congratulation yesterday to General Pershing and told him that the people of the city could hardly wait to welcome him and his "boys." The cable message read:

The people of New York send you their heartiest congratulations and wish to express their deepest love for all of your boys and you. We await with impatient enthusiasm for your return so that we can show you what we think of the American Army.

Mere words cannot express the mingled feelings of love, enthusiasm, and appreciation that New York feels for the American Army and its historic achievement. To say that we are proud is a poor expression of what we actually feel. We wait with pent-up feelings for the day when we can welcome the Red, White, and Blue with your boys and you. There is a royal welcome waiting for the boys in New York. No king was ever received as will be the least of your men.

The Mayor also sent this telegram to President Wilson:

It is needless to express to you how New York feels over the wonderful victory to which you have led this nation. New York, loyal to the core, stands ready now to undertake in the reconstruction program of the nation whatever work the National Government assigns to it with the same enthusiasm that it undertook its part in the war.

In a letter to Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker the Mayor also suggested that an Arch of Freedom be erected somewhere in the city in memory of the American soldiers who died in France, and appointed Mr. Wanamaker to head and organize a committee of representative citizens to carry out the project.

GERMAN AUSTRIA JOINS GERMANY

State Council Said to Have Proclaimed It Part of the New Republic.

CHARLES AT ECKARTSAU

Ex-Emperor, Before Leaving Vienna, Issued Manifesto to the People Announcing His Abdication.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 12.—German-Austria has been proclaimed a part of the German Republic by the State Council, says a dispatch from Vienna.

Former Emperor Charles and his family arrived yesterday from Vienna at Eckartsau in an automobile, says a dispatch from Vienna. (Eckartsau, where there is a castle, is on the Danube, about fifteen miles east of Vienna.)

On Monday, according to the Vienna Correspondenz Bureau, he issued the following proclamation:

"Since my accession I have incessantly tried to rescue my peoples from this tremendous war. I have not delayed the re-establishment of constitutional rights or the opening of a way for the people to substantial national development.

"Filled with an unalterable love for my peoples I will not, with my person, be a hindrance to their free development. I acknowledge the decision taken by German-Austria to form a separate State.

"The people has by its deputies taken charge of the Government. I relinquish every participation in the administration of the State. Likewise I have released the members of the Austrian Government from their offices.

"May the German-Austrian people realize harmony from the new adjustment. The happiness of my peoples was my aim from the beginning. My warmest wishes are that an internal peace will be able to heal the wounds of this war. (Signed) "CHARLES."

(Countersigned) "LAMMASCH."

PARIS, Nov. 13.—In the abdication of Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary the Paris press sees an event which may lead to important consequences, as his action marks the final rupture in the dynastic bond which has held together for centuries peoples having little mutual sympathy.

The Matin says that the allied Governments should study the position which they will assume toward the attachment of German-Austria to the German Republic. It argues that if German-Austria is permitted to join the new Germany it should share in the responsibilities of Germany.

KING GEORGE ATTENDS TE DEUM AT ST. PAUL'S

American Representatives Present at British Thanksgiving for Victory.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A Te Deum for victory was sung and solemn thanksgiving was offered this morning in St. Paul's Cathedral. The King, Queen, and Princess Mary were present, but though their drive through the streets was welcomed with the same enthusiasm as yesterday, the official and state aspects of the occasion were reduced to a minimum.

It was a people's service and it was the people who filled the vast building to the number of nearly 10,000. No tickets were issued and seats were reserved only for the royalties and diplomatic corps. The nave and aisles were crowded with citizens of London.

The service itself was quite simple, merely the ordinary morning prayer of the Church of England, with special collects, psalms, and hymns. A band of the Welsh Guards played Saint-Saëns's "Marche Heroique," the overture to Bayne's "Endure to Conquer," and Gounod's "Mors et Vita," as the congregation was assembling; and then came the only note of pomp of the day.

The choir and clergy appeared, marching down the nave to greet the King at the western door. Before them was borne the Cathedral's great processional cross, flashing as the light struck it. In their midst was the banner of St. Paul, and behind came the clergy of the chapter, robed in gorgeous embroidered gold copes over their surplices. Then followed a long wait, broken only by the arrival of the Duke of Connaught, Princess Patricia, and other royalties.

As the diplomats came, they exchanged greetings and congratulated each other on the victory. They formed an interesting group, for their share in the rejoicing was as great as that of the British people, and they represented the Allies who had worked loyally together with one common object.

Irwin Laughlin, the American Chargé d'Affaires, was there for the United States, and the tall figures of Paul D. Cravath and Admiral Sims stood out above their colleagues.

Then, far down the Cathedral, came the voice of the Canon, giving out a hymn of praise, and the congregation knew that the King had come and the service had begun.

Slowly up the nave the procession advanced, first the Lord Mayor in civic state, with his sword-bearer, mace-bearer, and remembrancer; then the choir and clergy, and last the King and Queen and Princess Mary. Each of the royalties was escorted by two golden-coped Canons. They were conducted to the three chairs set for them just outside the choir. The Canons bowed to them and passed to their stalls, and then their staff passed by, bowing to each of them in turn.

Prayers were intoned by the Sub-Dean, Canon Besley, two collects of thanksgiving being introduced. The special psalm was the forty-sixth, and Canon Simpson read very beautifully from the pulpit as the lesson the fortieth chapter of Isaiah, beginning "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God." The old hymn, "All People that On Earth Do Dwell," and "For All the Saints" were the hymns selected; and as the old familiar words were sung by the thousands assembled the reality of thanksgiving and the heartiness of the rejoicing were borne home to all in the great building.

Then the senior clergy proceeded to the high altar and the choir sang the "Te Deum." They used the setting of Smart in F and its triumphant gladness carried the congregation with it. It was sung to celebrate the great historic victory. It was sung as a traditional act of homage to God on such an occasion; and it was sung with absolute simplicity. The King and the representatives of the Allies were there; but they were merely part of the assemblage; and the great hymn seemed to be a real act of worship, not a court ceremonial.

All three verses of the national anthem followed; and the King and Queen departed, to be greeted with a hurricane of cheers from the thousands lining Ludgate Hill.

EX-KAISER DENIES ENFORCED FLIGHT

By GEORGE RENWICK.

forts might in time be made to make him the centre of a Royalist agitation.

Such is the view which the ex-monarch wishes to be taken of his coming to Holland. All the same, he is in exile, and there can be no question of his return to Germany under any circumstances.

The ex-Kaiserin and ex-Crown Prince are not with him, nor are any other members of his family. As regards the former Crown Prince, nothing is known of his whereabouts.

The Dutch Government, it is believed, will regard the ex-Kaiser as a private personality, though there is some question of interning some members of his suite.

Hindenburg is not with the party. He remains at German Headquarters.

Says Dutch Provided for Fugitive.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Count von Bentinck told the Handelsblad today that only yesterday he received a sudden request from the Dutch Government to accommodate William Hohenzollern and his suite, the number in the retinue not being given. As the whole party numbers about fifty, the majority of its members are being lodged at two neighboring country hotels.

Amerongen Castle, where the former Emperor is living, is a splendid old place with luxuriously adorned apartments. Louis XIV. of France spent a night there in 1672.

A few aged Generals accompanied the ex-Kaiser in his flight to Holland. When they reached the frontier they were stopped by Dutch frontier guards, who sent for General Onnen, chief of the Internment Service, and some local authorities. After being introduced to the former Emperor, General Onnen entered the automobile which had crossed the frontier and drove off.

The bystanders hissed the former German war lord. One of the Generals in the party was in tears when the group drove away.

Ex-Kaiser Watched on Motor Trip.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—A dispatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says that the ex-Kaiser took a walk this morning, accompanied by officers. Later he went motoring, followed by a car containing Dutch officials. The correspondent says that the ex-Emperor appears to have resigned himself to his new life.

Two enormous motor lorries arrived today with Hohenzollern baggage, which consisted of a large number of trunks and cases.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Maarn says that among those who accompanied the former Emperor to the castle of Amerongen were Generals von Plessen, von Gontard, von Drankiberg, von Lintoff, and von Grimman.

The other officers in the party were Colonel Count von Moltke, Surgeon General von Miesser, Major von Hirschfeld, Marshal of the Court von Plann, and five Captains.

After the arrival of the party General Onnen of the Dutch army asked all the members to give parole.

The correspondent of The Daily Mail says he hears that the former Emperor is not regarded as an officer because he has resigned his titles and offices.

Holland will permit the ex-Kaiser to remain on Dutch soil on the same terms of internment as other high officers of the German Army. He has taken the name of Count William Hohenzollern, and is expected to buy an estate and remain in Holland, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The Telegraaf of Amsterdam says that he was allowed to take only his personal property from his train, the non-personal property which was brought to Holland being confiscated, as is usual in internment cases. Recent dispatches have stated that the former Emperor had taken a carload of archives with him into Holland.

Tried to Cut Off Escape.

Holland's hesitancy in dealing with the ex-Kaiser is ascribed to the extremely indefinite state of public opinion in that country by the Amsterdam correspondent of The Mail. He says that German revolutionary soldiers along the Dutch frontier say that they were strictly ordered to prevent the former Emperor and his family from escaping into Holland.

Late Saturday night and shortly after 6 o'clock on Sunday morning, he says, the sound of cannon could be heard from German territory. It was reported that a fight had taken place between revolutionists and royalist troops, and that both sides had used artillery.

The ex-Emperor probably will remain only a short time at the castle of Amerongen, according to well-informed Dutch circles. The correspondent at Amsterdam of The Daily News says it is believed that if the necessary arrangements can be made the former Emperor will reside permanently at the Villa of Achilleion, on the Island of Corfu.

The Villa of Achilleion, on the Island of Corfu, which lies off the southwestern coast of Albania, was acquired by the former German Emperor in 1907 after the death of Empress Elizabeth of Austria for whom it was built in 1890. So far as known, the villa, which has been the headquarters of the Serbians, is still under occupation by the Allies.

WANTS GUILTY PUNISHED.

New Bavarian Government Denounces Autocracy and Military Party.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 12.—The new Bavarian Government has sent a message to President Wilson through Switzerland expressing its fears that the armistice terms will bring chaos to the disordered young republic and requesting that Great Britain, France, and Italy be asked to punish the guilty.

The message adds that the German autocracy and military party do not deserve mercy.

SAYS EX-CROWN PRINCE IS WITH HIS TROOPS

Semi-Official Berlin Bureau Makes This Assertion—Rumors of Death Unconfirmed.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 13.—The former German Crown Prince is with his troops at the front, according to a dispatch from the semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin, received here.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The British Foreign Office has received no confirmation of the rumors that the former German Crown Prince has been assassinated, according to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

A Paris dispatch states that reports to the same effect are current there, but have not been confirmed.

According to a dispatch from The Hague, the former Crown Prince arrived yesterday at Maastricht, Holland.

Dispatches to The Times and Post assert that he was shot and killed Monday morning by German soldiers while trying to cross the Dutch frontier.

Telegrams found in the palace of the former Crown Prince, according to a Berlin telegram to the National Tidende of Copenhagen, show that it had been planned to send loyal troops from the front to Berlin in an attempt to crush the revolution.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—It was officially stated today that the American Government had no confirmation of rumors that the former German Crown Prince had been killed.

HEAD OF KRUPPS IN FLIGHT.

Von Bohlen und Halbach Said to be with the Ex-Kaiser.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 13.—Lieutenant Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, husband of Bertha Krupp and head of the great Krupp Steel Works, fled to Holland with the former Kaiser, according to a dispatch received by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

A dispatch from London on Nov. 10 said that Lieutenant von Bohlen und Halbach and his wife had been arrested by revolutionaries, who were in control of Essen.

UNCENSORED MESSAGES NOW LEAVE GERMANY

Prussian Militarism Is Gone Forever, It Is Believed at Berne.

By JULIAN GRANDE.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Nov. 12.—Messages from Berlin, Frankfort, Hamburg, Munich, Cologne, and other German centres are arriving here hourly uncensored. All show that the German people have taken the reins in their own hands.

The soldiers, sailors, and workers are forming councils everywhere, and whole regiments in Berlin and elsewhere are joining the revolutionary movement. Prussian militarism is assuredly dead forever.

Hitherto the revolution has been almost bloodless. Labor leaders are calming the populace. The revolution is following almost precisely the same lines as in Vienna. Officers and soldiers in the streets are requested to remove their epaulettes and cockades, a request with which they comply wholly and willingly.

The appointment of Friedrich Ebert as Chancellor is popular. Ebert, who is 47 years old, has been the Social Democratic Party Secretary since 1906. He is a native of Heidelberg, where he learned saddlery and afterward tailoring. He is now a master tailor, but has written for Socialist newspapers and has been a member of the Reichstag since 1912. Ebert is dark-haired, with a heavy mustache.

Karl Liebknecht has become Home Secretary in the new People's Government. All the recognized Socialist leaders, whether majority or minority, uncompromisingly disavow any connection with Bolshevism.

In Switzerland, where the Bolsheviki had created a propagandist headquarters, with their own printing works, they have been expelled by the Government and the printing works confiscated. This action was not taken any too soon, for the Bolshevist doctrine has already permeated certain elements of the German-Swiss population, so much so that last Saturday troops were mobilized to keep order in Zurich and other large towns where the Bolsheviki wanted to celebrate universally the beginning of Lenine's bloody rule.

All the news from Austria indicates a condition of indescribable confusion. The Austrian Cavalry General, the Duke of Braganza, with two Adjutants, has just arived in Switzerland. His troops having mutinied, he was obliged to obtain a passport from the Italians and flee here.

LOSS OF AUDACIOUS ADMITTED AT LAST

British Admiralty Announces Sinking of Vessel That Occurred in 1914.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Admiralty tonight made its first official announcement of the loss of the battleship Audacious, which sank after striking a mine off the North Irish Coast on Oct. 27, 1914. The loss of the battleship officially was kept a secret at the urgent request of the Commander in Chief of the Grand Fleet.

In observing the request of Admiral Jellicoe and officially keeping secret the loss of the Audacious the Admiralty burdened itself with "the secret of Polichinelle"—a secret known to all, even to the enemy.

The first news of the sinking was received here in mail advices on Nov. 13, 1914, which said that the officers and crew of the warship had been rescued in the boats of the White Star liner Olympic. The first authentic description of the sinking was brought here at the same time by passengers of the Olympic and published on Nov. 16.

30 MILES OF WARSHIPS CELEBRATE WAR'S END

LONDON, Nov. 13, (via Montreal.)—A marvelous night scene was witnessed off the Scottish Coast when the grand fleet celebrated the armistice.

On a thirty-mile line, warships of every description were simultaneously illuminated. Myriads of sirens blew off, with awesome sounds. Hundreds of searchlights played fantastically. Fireworks and star shells were sent up.

The celebrations, after lasting an hour, ceased as suddenly as they began.

13,000,000 TONS IS SHIP PROGRAM

Schwab Says We Are Now Building for Economic Permanency.

416,000 TONS IN OCTOBER

Monthly Record Which He Predicted Is About to be Realized.

HAILED AS MASTER BUILDER

President Hibben Pays Tribute to Head of Fleet Corporation at Dinner in His Honor.

The Society of Arts and Sciences gave a dinner last night in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria to Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. More than 1,000 men and women gathered to do honor to him whom John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University, characterized as "the great master builder of the war." At the speaker's table were Sir Richard Crawford, John Grier Hibben, Edward N. Hurley, Job E. Hedges, Judge Elbert H. Gary, James W. Gerard, Augustus Thomas, Abram I. Elkus, Colonel George Harvey, George W. Wickersham, and Maj. Gen. Marlborough Churchill, Chief of the United States Military Intelligence Service. Bainbridge Colby of the United States Shipping Board was Toastmaster.

After President Hibben, General Churchill and Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, had spoken, Mr. Schwab was introduced. Men and women at the tables and in the boxes cheered and applauded, and so enthusiastic was the greeting that tears of appreciation came to the eyes of the guest of honor.

"No person," said Mr. Schwab, "who is human in all that word means could fail to appreciate the very great honor you pay me tonight. I appreciate it from the bottom of my heart. But in honoring me you simply honor the men of the great organization of which I have the honor to be the head. The Emergency Fleet Corporation, as its name implies, was organized to meet a great emergency. Had it been organized in other circumstances it might have been organized differently. It has not been 100 per cent. efficient, but I know of no organization that is.

"We have had some slackers, but they have been in a pitiable minority, and extremely unpopular with their fellow-workmen. Generally speaking, the men who have done the real work of the Emergency Fleet Corporation have done their level, human best to be 100 per cent. efficient.

The Record Made.

"On the Fourth of July I said that I hoped that in some one month we would turn out a half million tons of completed shipping. So far, we have turned out 807 ships of a total dead weight tonnage of 3,500,000 tons, and in the month of October, as I believe the reports will show, we actually did turn out 416,000 tons of completed ships. And I believe the reports for November will show 500,000 tons of completed ships.

"From now on we are going to build ships for economic permanency. We are not going to strive for speed, but we are going to build ships that will be the argosies of trade, sailing the seven seas, in the days of the long peace. And let me say right here that 70 per cent. of the ships already built have been built for economic efficiency. The program calls for 13,000,000 more tons of shipping and those ships are going to be constructed. They are going to carry overseas the products of American manufactures that will rebuild half a continent and they are going to bring back the most precious loads of freight that ships ever carried in all this world—they are going to bring back the American soldiers who laid low military autocracy over there and made the world safe for democracy.

"To me, of course, whatever I have been able to do with the Emergency Fleet Corporation has been a labor of love and the work has been done under the most inspiring leadership of the most inspiring leader that I have ever known, Woodrow Wilson, the President of the United States and all that he has done and all that he has said has been seconded and backed up most ably and most enthusiastically by my immediate chief, Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board.

"Now we see clearly before us the peace time of the world. Grave problems are before us, but they will be solved as the boys of our army splendidly solved the problems of war. We have a peace, and we have a peace with victory, and, as the Latins used to say, the end shall crown the work. Before I sit down, I can't let the opportunity pass to pay a tribute to the work which my own organization, the Bethlehem Steel Company, has done to help win the war.

Bethlehem Company's Record.

"Since the United States entered the war the Bethlehem Company has delivered to the United States Navy more than one-half of its entire requirements in destroyers and submarines. In other words, the company has furnished as much shipping for the navy as all the navy yards and combined shipbuilding interests put together."

Then Mr. Schwab said that notwithstanding the fact that the Bethlehem yards were largely employed on navy work they have furnished to date one-fourth of all the merchant ships supplied to the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and they now have under contract and construction approximately two hundred vessels, which will be completed by the middle of next year. Further, he said, the Bethlehem Steel Company had furnished the United States Government with 65 per cent. of its entire war supply of field guns of all calibres. This includes the output of all of the arsenals operated by the Government as well as the output of private manufacturers.

It had also furnished about 20,000,000 pounds of ammunition, or nearly half of all that had been furnished from the United States to the Allies, also approximately 15,000 guns of all sizes, in finished and semi-finished condition.

"This position of Bethlehem in the great world conflict," added Mr. Schwab, "is indeed one of great pride to me."

President Hibben, the first speaker, said: "The career of Charles M. Schwab is a part of American history. We are met here tonight not only in his honor, but to celebrate a peace with victory. We are met here to celebrate a peace that will insure the peace of the world in our generation and for generations yet unborn.

"This has been a war of miracles. There was the miracle of the first battle of the Marne; there was the miracle of Verdun; there was the miracle of Chateau-Thierry; there was the miracle of the shattered salient of St. Mihiel, and there was also the miracle of the transport across the sea. For that the nation owes an unpayable debt to the master builder of the war who is our guest tonight. We were told that such a transportation miracle was impossible of performance. It would have been impossible for a weak man, but it was quite possible for a strong man, and this miracle of transport is Charles M. Schwab's contribution to this war."

Job Hedges denounced the carrying of the red flag in a Socialist procession on Tuesday night. The diners arose and cheered when he declared that never again should it be tolerated that the red flag should appear in a parade in the streets of New York. The offence was all the more flagrant, he pointed out, because it occurred within the same week as the signing of the armistice.

"Let us dedicate ourselves so that never again shall be raised the voice or the symbol of disloyalty to what is decent on this earth," he added. "The red flag of anarchy must go or the red blood of the martyrs has been shed in vain."

Augustus Thomas and Mr. Schwab concurred in Mr. Hedges's sentiments. "I heartily second every thought that Mr. Hedges has expressed," said Mr. Schwab. "We may think a menace is smothered by our not speaking of it, but I say let us speak out. No, not speak, but let us act. This red flag of socialism, so-called, must not wave if this audience is going to continue leading the life it represents—the life of democrats."

SEEK WAYS TO PLACE 2,000,000 WAR WORKERS

Conference of Employers Takes Up Problems to Accompany Peace.

At the invitation of Henry Bruere, Federal Director of the United States Employment Service, forty representatives of business and manufacturing industries met last night in the hall of the Department of Education, at 500 Park Avenue, to consider the best way of finding places for Government employes, to keep pace with the demobilization of the war workers. Some of the employers announced that they were now ready for the transfer of some of this labor to peace industries, and others said employment in peace activities would, to a large extent, depend upon the immediate action of the War Industries Board in removing restrictions from war materials. All those at the conference agreed to co-operate with the Federal Director.

Mr. Bruere told the members of the conference that a large percentage of the labor to be transferred from war to peace persuits would be found better trained and more capable than before the war.

"With peace in sight the effective labor of these men and women should not be ignored," Mr. Bruere said. "It should be utilized to the utmost. On the other hand, if as fast as the war industries reduce their working forces these men and women are not directed into suitable employment, the change, which every person would wish to bring about by gradual and peaceful means, will take the form of disorder and discontent.

The war workers in the Metropolitan district are said to aggregate nearly 2,000,000 men and women. Director Bruere thought this local labor problem could be adjusted by proper co-operation by all concerned within a year, or some months before the return of great numbers of soldiers.

The appointment of a representative committee for each employing industry was agreed to at the conference. Each of these committees will present to the United States Employment Service from time to time the actual needs of employers and each also will anticipate as far as possible the needs of business and manufacturing to meet conditions as the peace industries approach more normal situations.

John Mitchell, head of the State Industrial and Food Commissions, former President of the United Mine Workers of America, in a statement yesterday, said: "The worst thing that could happen now in this country, in view of the spread of Bolshevism in Europe, would be unemployment. Bolshevism comes from despair and suffering. It does not occur among men regularly and profitably employed."

Mr. Mitchell said he believed that the importation of Bolshevism from Central and Eastern Europe to America could be prevented if readjustment of industries to a peace basis was so regulated through the United States Employment Service and other Government agencies as to prevent unemployment in quantity and the swift reduction of wages.

MAY HAVE OLD PLACES BACK

National Manufacturers' Association to Reassure Our Men in France

Returned soldiers will have their jobs restored to them in all the factories of the members of the National Association of Manufacturers, according to an announcement made yesterday by President Stephen C. Mason. This promise, with a list of the manufacturers, probably will be forwarded to General Pershing, so that the soldiers may know that their old places are open to them when they are mustered out.

"The one outstanding obligation of every manufacturer now is to be ready to take back into his plant the men who dropped their work to place their lives at the disposal of the nation," said Mr. Mason. "It is their plain duty to have an 'open door' for a return to opportunity and prosperity of every American soldier and sailor who seeks to return to his former employment and occupation, regardless of how the position may have been filled during his absence in the service of our nation."

The association also sent cable dispatches yesterday to the Federation of British Industries and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association praising and thanking them for their war work.

RAILROAD PAY TO STAY UP.

Nor Is Mr. McAdoo Considering Material Reduction of Rates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Railroad Administration planned no reduction in railroad employes' wages under peace conditions, and likewise no material lowering of freight and passenger rates, it was stated authoritatively today. Both are likely to remain at their present levels, although with many readjustments.

Even with recent advances, railroad wages now were not so high as those paid for similar service in industries, it was declared, and consequently Railroad Administration officials felt that no war bonus should be taken off the wages of railroad employes. Events of the last week have caused a pronounced movement of men from war industries to the railroads, where greater permanency of employment is insured, according to officials. Many of these, particularly laborers, will be employed on the railroads' delayed program of improvements, which have been held up mainly because of lack of labor.

Director General McAdoo has declared that he would lower rates as soon as it was determined revenues would be sufficient to pay wage increases and the higher cost of materials, supplies, and other transportation elements. It was explained today, however, that the time when this would be possible was not yet in sight.

WAR TAXATION TO STAND.

Statement by McAdoo to Senate Committee Expected Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Secretary McAdoo is expected to make a statement tomorrow to the Senate Finance Committee which will define the governmental financial policy in the next year. It is expected that he will advise the committee that no material reduction of revenues will be wise at this time, for money will be needed, not only in this country, but abroad, where the work of reconstruction is to proceed.

The Senate Committee on Finance held a meeting this morning and decided not to change the Revenue bill so as to reduce the sum it is expected to produce, $6,500,000,000, for the present. The committee will await the message from Secretary McAdoo before the introduction of the bill in the Senate.

BELIEVE WILSON WILL GO TO EUROPE

peace conference, was admitted today in the authoritative statement that "his mind is open" on the subject. This was construed as amounting to an acknowledgement that the President's inclination was to attend the conference if no major obstacle appeared.

It is likely that the names of the American plenipotentiaries will be made known soon. Mr. Lansing, the Secretary of State, and Mr. Baker, the Secretary of War, are regarded as certain selections of the President. Whether Colonel E. M. House, the President's present representative in the Versailles War Council, will be a member is shrouded in some doubt. It is suggested that he may be present in the capacity of the President's personal emissary, through whom the intimate views of the President would be submitted to the American delegation. Should he not be designated in this capacity, Colonel House will be a fully empowered member of the Peace Council.

Of the other American representatives one is certain to be a prominent Republican, either ex-President Taft or Elihu Root. Possibly, even probably, both will be members of the delegation. Mr. Root, it is understood, has been in consultation with Colonel House concerning the problems connected with arranging a peace. Both he and Mr. Taft would be strong supporters of President Wilson's advocacy of the formation of a League of Nations, designed to prevent wars in the future.

A large number of secretaries and advisers will accompany the American plenipotentiaries. No information is obtainable as to who will be chosen for the important position of Chief Secretary of the American delegation. One name suggested is that of Frank L. Polk, Counselor of the State Department. Mr. Polk's general ability and knowledge of international affairs are held in high esteem in the Administration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Messages from high sources in Europe are reaching President Wilson, urging that he personally attend the great conference which is to re-establish the peace of the world.

It is understood that Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau, both have pressingly suggested that the President should at least attend the opening sessions of the peace conference.

Should the President decide to attend the conference—and some of those usually well informed say he has an open mind on the subject—that fact would not mean, in the belief here, that Secretary Lansing would not be a member of the American delegation. It was said that upon Mr. Lansing would fall much of the weight of the heavy tasks connected with American participation in the conference, not only by virtue of his high rank, but also because of his wide experience in other international conferences and arbitrations.

KING GEORGE THANKS AMERICAN PEOPLE

Cables the President Victory Is the Greatest of Democracy's Achievements.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—King George on the signing of the armistice sent a message of congratulation to President Wilson and of thanks to the people of the United States for their aid in the war. President Wilson replied expressing warm appreciation. The King's message follows:

"At this moment of universal gladness I send you, Mr. President, and the people of your great Republic, a message of congratulation and deep thanks in my own name and that of the people of this empire.

"It is indeed a matter of solemn thanksgiving that the peoples of our two countries, akin in spirit as in speech, should today be united in this greatest of democracy's achievements. I thank you and the people of the United States for the high and noble part which you have played in this glorious chapter of history and freedom."

President Wilson's cablegram to King George follows:

"Your generous and gracious message is most warmly appreciated, and you may rest assured that our hearts on this side of the Atlantic are the more completely filled with joy and satisfaction because we know the great partnership of interest and of sentiments to which we belong.

"We are happy to be associated in this time of triumph with the Government and people upon whom we are so sure we can count for co-operation in the delicate and difficult tasks which remain to be performed in order that the high purposes of the war may be realized and established in the reign of equitable justice and lasting peace."

PLANS BOARD TO AID IN RECONSTRUCTION

with the question should be controlled by some common authority, in order to prevent great difficulty.

"Pending the development of an adequate organization, we earnestly hope that a clearance committee may be appointed at once to which will be referred all proposals to cancel contracts, with instructions to all departments that cancellations shall not be made without the approval of this committee, in order that raw materials which will be released by the stoppage of war production may be allocated to industries able to use them immediately for peace time needs. We are of the opinion that war contracts should not be cancelled until provision is made for the absorption of these raw materials."

The Chamber of Commerce has also recommended to the President the establishment of an advisory reconstruction commission similar to that he now considers appointing.

Whatever machinery is created for supervising the transition, it is considered certain that the Government purposes to maintain a centralized control, and to exercise a very positive supervision over business interests during the change.

WANT PRICE FIXING TO BE CONTINUED

Steel Interests Urge Federal Supervision for Present of Nation's Vital Industries

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Developments of great importance were reported today in connection with the Government's plans for the era of reconstruction which already has come as a result of the signing of the armistice.

The War Department prepared the way, by the issuance of conditions under which contracts to which it was a party might be abrogated, for a general reduction of its vast military preparations. There was some opposition to such action being taken so quickly by some military officials.

Representatives of the great steel interests, headed by E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, met with the War Industries Board, and in a joint statement recommended that Government supervision of the steel and other vital industries "for the present was highly desirable." This supervision, it is hoped by the steel men, will include price-fixing and distribution and will continue for a considerable period. This statement read in part as follows:

"The discussion followed general lines regarding trade conditions, both of national and international nature, and with the main purpose of preserving industrial stability.

"The Iron and Steel Institute Committee, in the course of suggestions, made emphasis upon the point that a continuation of Governmental supervision of industry for the present was highly desirable.

"It was agreed that many changes in operating conditions of the steel mills will be necessary in the transition from war to a peace basis. Some cancellations and adjustments in war contracts will follow, but owing to the removal of many restrictions imposed on non-war industries and the immediate demands of such industries and a probable resumption of Federal, State, and municipal improvements which had been temporarily suspended, and the demands from abroad for foreign construction which are already taking definite shape, it is believed that the transition can be accomplished in an orderly and systematic way.

"The discussion was entirely informal, and was characterized chiefly by a spirit of co-operation between the board and the industry that was as strong as that which existed during the war pressure.

"Further data and information are to be gathered and collated for the use of the War Industries Board for its further conference with this and other industries."

Labor Department officials were represented at this meeting by Hugh Frayne, and close attention was given to the subject of the redistribution of labor by a gradual process which will keep pace with development of non-war industries and yet not draw men from the war plants at one time in numbers which would cause a serious economic distrbance.

Effect on Wages Considered.

The question of the effect of the reconstruction plans on wages also was under consideration at the meeting between the War Industries Board and the representatives of the steel interests as well as by other Governmental bodies. It was felt, it was said, that during the readjustment of industries there should be made every effort to assure satisfactory wage scales.

It is reported that there was a feeling of optimism over the general situation. The belief was expressed that with a continuation of Government control, which would be most effective, and to insure gradual return to a normal basis, the most serious problems could best be met.

The international phase of the situation was one of the important questions which the conference discussed. Estimates are being made to determine the quantities of steel which will be required in France, England, Belgium and other European countries to accomplish reconstruction work there and also maintain munition manufacture on a basis which is considered as essential until peace is formally declared.

A clear intimation that the War Industries Board intended to pursue still further its policy to relieve the restrictions on non-war industries was given in a telegram which Chairman Baruch sent today to Mayor Hylan of New York concerning the school program there. The subject has been under dispute for some time, but Mr. Baruch has refused to lift the ban which was placed on building operations on such a large scale.

Telegram to Mayor Hylan.

In his telegram he said:

Nov. 12, 1918.

The Honorable,
The Mayor of New York,
City Hall, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Mayor:

The heavy restrictions placed on all non-war activities may now be lessened since the armistice has ended the severe pressure under which American industry was compelled to devote practically all of its energy to the military program.

The drastic curtailment of all building operations, due to the drain caused upon the very heart of our war enterprise, is to be gradually reduced under a formula adopted by the non-war construction section of the War Industries Board. Having in mind the representation of New York's urgent need of new school buildings, set forth in your letter of Sept. 6 and again on Sept. 21, I regard it as a pleasing duty to inform you that the obstacles in the way of the school project have been removed to the extent that it gives me the right to say to you that this board will be glad to have New York City's application placed before it so that consideration may be given the release of the materials necessary to the construction.

To that end I suggest that the School Board, or such other agency as is charged with the responsibility, submit to the Mayor's Committee on National Defense of New York City, which is the representative of the Non-War Construction Section, the detailed plans of the operation. They will then be forwarded to this board for final action, which I hope, and see no reason to doubt, will be favorable.

Let me say in conclusion that the War Industries Board appreciates the spirit of co-operation that animated New York. It was the same spirit which animated the entire nation in its devotion to the one great cause now achieved—that of winning the war.

I am, with respect, sincerely,
BERNARD M. BARUCH,
Chairman War Industries Board.

It is understood here that this telegram was intended to have national significance, and a fair interpretation is that similar important building operations which are closely affiliated with the welfare of the public will shortly be permitted to continue.

ARMISTICE CHANGES NOT EXPLAINED

Washington Simply Knows Supreme War Council Had Power to Make Them.

DISCREPANCY IN ARTICLES

Some Confusion Created by Renumbering—Explanation from Versailles Expected Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—No explanation has been received by this Government as to why changes were made in the German armistice terms just prior to their presentation to the German Envoys. Several of the most important changes of which the Government was notified yesterday by cable affected materially the corresponding conditions which President Wilson read to the Congress on Monday.

The only explanation offered here is that Marshal Foch had authority, subject to the approval of the Supreme War Council at Versailles, at which all of the allied Governments and the United States are represented, to make any changes deemed necessary in the armistice conditions drawn and approved by the Supreme War Council. It was this first draft which President Wilson read to the Congress.

As changed before their final acceptance by the German emissaries, provision was made for the surrender by Germany of all her submarines, instead of 160, as specified in the original document. The condition that Germany should evacuate Russian territory at once was changed so as to provide that German troops should remain in Russian territory until the Allies directed them to leave. The width of the neutral zone established on the east bank of the Rhine was reduced from the varying distances of thirty and forty kilometers to ten kilometers. Other material modifications of the draft read by President Wilson to the Congress were noted.

The Secretary of State last night gave to the press a statement showing the changes made. It is apparent that the revised armistice conditions were either prepared so hurriedly as to fail to correct certain errors or there were errors in transmitting them to this Government by cable. One apparent instance of error is found in the conflict between Article 13 of the original draft and Article 12 of the revised draft.

Article 12 of the original draft read:

"All German troops at present in any territory which before the war belonged to Russia, Rumania, or Turkey shall withdraw within the frontiers of Germany as they existed on Aug. 1, 1914."

Article 13 of the original draft read as follows:

"Evacuation by German troops to begin at once, and all German instructors, prisoners and civilians, as well as military agents, now on the territory of Russia, as defined before 1914, to be recalled."

Article 12 of the revised draft includes the essential features of both Articles 12 and 13 of the original draft and makes the original Article 13 seem superfluous. The revised Article 12 reads:

"All German troops at present in the territories which before the war belonged to Austria-Hungary, Rumania and Turkey shall withdraw immediately within the frontiers as they existed on Aug. 1, 1914. All German troops at present in the territories which before the war belonged to Russia shall likewise withdraw within the frontiers of Germany, defined as above, so soon as the Allies, taking into account the internal situation of these territories, shall decide that the time for this has come."

It will be seen by a comparison of the articles quoted that the revised Article 12 includes both Articles 12 and 13 of the original draft.

Officials whose attention was directed today to this seeming conflict agreed that there was apparent error, and that Article 13 should be canceled and the articles following it in the revised draft should be renumbered. This would mean that Article 14 of the first draft would become Article 13 of the revised draft, and so on through the armistice conditions, so that the number of conditions in the revised draft would be 34, instead of 35, as in the original draft.

It is expected that an explanation of why the changes were made without advance notification to this Government will reach Washington soon and that the discrepancy between Articles 12 and 13 will be indicated.

REFUSES GERMAN PLEA TO MODIFY ARMISTICE

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Allied High Command has sent to the German High Command by French wireless a message that there can be no modifications of the conditions of the armistice, including the annexes, at this time.

It is added that a supplementary period of twenty-four hours for the evacuation of Belgium, Luxemburg, and Alsace-Lorraine has been added to the fourteen days stipulated in the original text, so as to permit the text to reach German Headquarters at the desired time.

The message reads:

"At present no modification can be made to the conditions indicated by the texts, including the annexes, at the time of the signing of the armistice.

"A supplementary period of twenty-four hours for the evacuation of Belgium, Luxemburg, and Alsace-Lorraine has been added to the period of delay of fourteen days stipulated by the original text, so as to permit the definite text arriving at the desired time at German Headquarters."

PARIS, Nov. 13, (Havas.)—The German delegates to the armistice negotiations have issued a statement, asserting that a brief delay in the evacuation of occupied territory and delivering of rolling stock is indispensable. They say that to withdraw the troops and deliver the rolling stock immediately would render the execution of the armistice impossible.

BASLE, Nov. 12.—The Vorwärts of Berlin describes the German armistice conditions as "terrible," and adds:

"Since the old régime has collapsed the new Government must accept the conditions and execute them loyally. The treaties have been signed and must be executed. It will be the task of the new Government to conclude rapidly the best peace possible."

SIBERIA NEEDS MEDICAL STORES

By CARL W. ACKERMAN.

scribed. Bandages cannot be purchased anywhere. In the eleven Hospitals of Nikolaivitch there are only two pounds of cotton. Dr. R. C. Teusler, Red Cross Commissioner in Siberia, said to me:

"I have received requests from civic organizations and hospitals asking me to procure for or sell to them 2,000,000 rubles' worth of drugs. In Irkutsk the Director of the military hospitals in the province stated that he was without surgical supplies. He had practically no drugs. Patients in many cases were going two weeks without a change of bandages, while all dressings were being washed and re-washed.

"While the Red Cross cannot undertake to give these institutions all the supplies needed, we are giving temporary relief. Our purchasing agents are authorized to buy medical supplies for these hospitals which the Russian Government is prepared to pay for."

Discussing the situation on the Czechoslovak front, Dr. Teusler stated that the Czechs lacked ambulances, especially at the Ekaterinburg front, where the wounded were living in box cars because there were no hospitals for them.

Crossing Siberia from the allied base at Vladivostok to the temporary capital of the All-Russian Government, those are one's chief impressions.

Ambassador Morris diagnosed the situation, emphasizing the necessity of allied control. The Trans-Siberian Railroad is the key to the whole military and economic problem.

While various American organizations are working in Russia, there is no co-ordination. To be fully successful in carrying out the gigantic program of economic relief the United States should follow the lead of England and France, appointing a High Commissioner to take charge of the entire program to prevent overlapping and waste of money and effort. While it is generally understood here that this is against President Wilson's program, the temporary appointment of a man like Morris would great facilitate and unify America's scattered efforts.

The Russian people and the Omsk Government oppose military intervention by any one power, especially Far Eastern.

4. Russia's financial problem is becoming critical because all coins have been withdrawn from circulation and only worn and torn paper money and bond coupons of the Czar's and Kerensky's régimes are circulated. I understand that the Omsk Government has approached America and Japan, asking for a loan of the Russian currency held by the allied countries, the Omsk Government offering to buy at a fixed rate per ruble. This would not further inflate Russia's currency and would greatly alleviate the present stringency.

5. Some weeks ago the Omsk Government, which is now virtually recognized throughout Siberia as the Russian Government, sent Prince Lvoff to America, via Japan, on a semi-official mission to present reasons for this Government being the recognized Government. For some time Prince Lvoff was detained at Tokio. If the Allies give de facto recognition to this Government, the financial situation will be improved because $50,000,000 are on deposit in Washington in favor of the Provisional Russian Government, and 40,000,000 yen in Tokio.

6. Along the Trans-Siberian ordinary foods are plentiful, such as bread and butter, but sugar and coffee are expensive. If America intends to embark upon a program of economic aid toward Russia's reconstruction, sugar, coffee, clothing, and all household necessities must be forthcoming in million lot quantities immediately without limit and without profiteering. By beginning in Siberia this work can be extended later throughout Russia and will be a far more fatal blow to the Bolsheviki than anything else. Germany's policy in Russia being destructive, America's policy to be effective and successful must be constructive.

Prince Lvoff in America.

Prince G. E. Lvoff, President of the Union of All-Russian Zemstvos and Municipalities, and who was Prime Minister in the first Russian Provisional Government, has arrived in this country, and is on his way to Washington, where he will arrive tomorrow, it was announced last night by A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States.

TICKET SELLER SLAIN IN SUBWAY HOLDUP

Otto Saile, 60, Is Killed in Resisting Three Men Who Rob Intervale Station.

When he sought to resist three men who had commanded him to give them the money in the cashier's box in the Intervale station of the Bronx Park subway line early this morning Otto Saile, 60 years old, the ticket seller, was mortally wounded. He died before passengers on the upper platform of the station, elevated at this point, could call physicians. The three men escaped in a taxicab with two others who were waiting for them at the foot of the stairs leading to the first level of the station.

The ticket seller was alone in the station when the man entered. The ticket chopper having left to get lunch for them. A girl, about 14 years old, her mother, and two sailors saw the shooting, and furnished the police of the Simpson Street station with a description of the men. After a chase of several blocks along Westchester Avenue, the sailors were outrun by the taxicab. About $60 was stolen from the station money drawer.

ALLIED FLEET ARRIVES AT CONSTANTINOPLE

Passed Dardanelles on Tuesday —British Airmen Entered City Two Days After Armistice.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The allied fleet arrived off Constantinople today, having passed through the Dardanelles Tuesday, the Admiralty announced.

British and Indian troops occupying the forts paraded as the ships passed.

MUDROS, Island of Lemnos, Aegean Sea, (undated.) (Associated Press.) Nine British airplanes landed at Galata, a suburb of Constantinople, two days after the signing of the Turkish armistice. (Oct. 31.) The first allied officer to reach European Turkish soil was Flight Commander Henry Wiser, a Canadian and a graduate of Yale in 1912.

The Turks gave the airmen an enthusiastic reception, declaring they were thankful that Turkey had been spared of Germans, who had fled to the Rumanian and Russian ports in the Black Sea.

A commission composed of British naval and military officers is now inspecting the forts of the Dardanelles under escort of a son of Tewfic Pasha, the Grand Vizier, with a view to occupation.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 11.—They stopped fighting at 11 o'clock this morning. In a twinkling of the eye four years' killing and massacre stopped, as if God had swept His omnipotent finger across the scene of world carnage and cried, "Enough!"

In fact, it seemed as if some good spirit had helped set the stage for the ending of the great tragedy. They told me at the front today that never before had the telephones and wireless worked so well. All our divisions, all our regiments, all our companies, got the word to quit at 11, and quit they did.

History will record that the Americans fought to the last minute. Aye, more, they fought to the last second. I picked the sector northeast of historic Verdun on the scarred hills where were buried German hopes, to spend what may be the world's greatest day. On this front we attacked this morning at 9:30 o'clock, after heavy artillery preparation.

Reaching the front this morning, expecting to find quiet reigning in view of the imminence of the cessation of hostilities, I found the attack in full swing, with every gun we had going at full speed, and roaring in a glorious chorus, singing the swan song of Prussianism. It was a glorious chorus, drowning the discord of German shell fire. We were attacking.

Had Orders to Attack.

Picture, if you will, that scene at 10:30 this morning. Back in the rear every one knew that the war was to stop at 11 o'clock, but in the front line no one knew, except the officers. The doughboys knew nothing except their orders were to attack. They had heard rumors, but at 10:30 they were chasing the Germans back from their last hold on the hills east of the Meuse. At 10:40, at 10:50, at 10:55 they were fighting on. What could be more dramatic than when at 11 the platoon leaders in the front line sharply called the order, "Cease firing!" and explained that hostilities had been called off?

If one listened then, one heard just at 11 the great salvo from all our guns, and then silence. They tell me that the lads from "God's country" stood as if numbed with shock, and then smiles spread over their faces and they broke into laughs as they listened and learned the Germans, too, had called off the war.

Then through the fog across the ravine they saw the boches spring from their positions and shout and sing with joy. They saw white flags in the cold wind and they saw the boches waving their hands in invitation to come over. But strict orders had been issued to our men against fraternizing and the Germans, getting no encouragement, kept on their side of No Man's Land.

When all this happened, I was standing with a grizzled American General at Beaumont, just back of the line of one of our crack divisions.

"It's so big," said he, "that I cannot grasp it at all," and then he pulled from his pocket a paper, and handing it to me, said, "Hero's the order that stopped the war."

What he handed me was a copy of the order written, I understand, by Marshal Foch, the self-same order being issued to all the allied troops this morning.

Pitted with Shell Holes.

It was just after 11 o'clock when a General invited me to go from within the last front line. We started walking eastward from Beaumont. Over terrain torn so that there was not one inch that had not its shell hole, we climbed the heights of the Bois de Wavrille. Toiling through rack and ruin, stumps and wire and fallen trees, we came after an hour to the eastern edge of the Bois de Wavrille from which the Germans had been driven this morning.

Across a ravine lay the Bois Herbebois with St. André Farm, a mass of stones on the slopes nearest us. Half way up the hill toward the Bois Herbebois ran a road, and that road was the front line. Along it were doughboys ready if the boche changed his mind about stopping hostilities.

Right up the hill was the German line at the end of the woods. We could see Germans walking about. With a French Captain and an American Major, I started across, but the General called us back. Going up to the hill near St. André Farm, we got a good look at the boche lines, where the Germans appeared as unconcerned as if on a picnic. Out fifty yards ahead of our front line was a dugout from which curled smoke. In it were three boches cooking supper. A platoon of our men wanted to go get them, but a Lieutenant ruled against it, so the Germans went on cooking supper.

Calm After the Storm.

Over these hills, the scene of bloody warfare since the war started and the scene of perhaps the world's most bitter battle when the Crown Prince tried to take Verdun, an almost unearthly calm rested. Where the roar of a million and one shells had so often torn the air, one could have heard a sparrow twit had the ruthless war left a sparrow there. Torn and twisted and tortured was that land. Of all the woods no tree was left whole. There were only blackened and stark sticks Of pretty villages, there were only moss-covered and shattered stones, of roads not one truce was left. Over all were sombre shadow and silence that would have seemed ominous had one not known that it was harmless. The war had stopped.

While we were there at the front Germans could be seen getting back, as if seeking sleeping quarters for more comfort. As we left the scene cold dusk was settling in a wet blanket over the landscape. As we reached the edge of the woods the General called my attention to hundreds of campfires lining the hills as far as the eye could see. It was the first time fire had burned on the front line since the days when the Kaiser ran amuck and started more than he and his misled people could finish. Germany stopped at the eleventh hour.

Cheering Americans Everywhere.

As we came back along the roads the landscape seemed to be filled with cheering Americans. The news had spread everywhere and our men were behaving just as a victorious football team and its fans after the last game of the season. No Fourth of July in the United States ever saw such fireworks as tore their red, green, and blue streaks across the foggy sky.

And what we saw at Verdun would stir the pulse of a dead man. Poor, torn, suffering Verdun! It had been suddenly changed to a place of glory. Gathering darkness hid its wounds, and what one saw was the French Tricolor and the Stars and Stripes flying from the housetops and parapets, searchlights showing their glory in all its splendor. At the top of the grizzled fortress walls a band, half French and half Yankee, was playing all the tunes it knew, while through the streets marched rejoicing Yankees and their allies, whom they love. What could be more fitting for allied victory than that immortal Verdun should celebrate it?

FRENCH ARMY CALM WITH VICTORY WON

Troops Can Scarcely Realize That Long and Bitter Struggle Is Ended.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Nov. 13.—No greater proof of the splendid discipline and wholehearted patriotism of the French armies ever was given in the whole course of the war than by the way in which the end was received. Undismayed by disaster, the Poilus are not unbalanced by victory.

The armies that have borne the brunt of the struggle have too strong a sense of duty to their country to fail to realize that there is yet work to be done—less dangerous perhaps but not less urgent than what they already have accomplished.

It is a strange and troublous situation that confronts Europe today. Russia agonizes in the throes of anarchy and Germany bids fair to follow suit. Even now who shall say that a German General commanding an army corps or division may not refuse to accept the authority of the Socialists. He is trained by education and heredity to regard them as dirt beneath his feet and he might easily endeavor, as many did in Russia, to strike a blow with well disciplined troops for the old régime or even for himself.

The gravest problem of all is food. Starving men know no restraint, and should the food supplies be inadequate for the German population anything may happen.

Must Feed Germany.

A month ago this correspondent had proof in Belgium that Germany was literally on the verge of starvation. Now, with the inevitable disorganization of transportation, it is certain that nothing but outside assistance can avert a catastrophe. It is agreed that Lord Milner was right when he said that it was desirable that there should be a stable German Government with which the Allies could treat. Neither France, America, nor England could have any advantage in seeing Germany in the condition of Russia. To take a selfish view, it might prevent the Allies raising or recovering the war damages on French and Belgian soil.

It is to prevent such chaos that the French armies and leaders of the country are working today. Germany must be fed, they say, and with a combination of clear sightedness and humanity that perhaps is the chief characteristic of their race the French are preparing to help feed her. The message of the French Army to America is a plea for understanding and co-operation:

"Do not think that victory means that all is over save the celebration. Food restrictions and sacrifices must be continued, even perhaps intensified. We love the Germans no better than before, but we cannot let them starve. It is for this purpose and not with the idea of individual advantage that we demand the German rolling stock. We will improve traffic conditions at home, but will do our best for Germany also."

French Grim in Victory.

Nov. 11.—Hostilities ceased at the appointed hour this morning. Since 11 o'clock the thunder and roar of cannon that has been unceasing for fifty months is stilled. The end roused little demonstration or cheering by the men in the firing line. They seemed like castaways rescued after years on a desert island, as still unable to realize the conclusion of the long agony.

In the villages where troops were resting among the ruins there were outbursts of enthusiasm, and further back church bells rang out the glad tidings. But at the front the work of the armies goes on, though the guns are silent.

The very rapidity and success of the recent advance make the task of repairing the roads and bridges and the transporting of supplies more urgent. But if the French are too busy to cheer, everyone's face glows with joy and pride that are even more impressive. Up to 4 P. M. there were no attempts reported at fraternization by the enemy. If they try it they will risk reawakening the voice of the cannon. Such is the temper of the French Army toward the Germans.

GERMANS RETIRING ON AMERICAN FRONT

With Only One Railway, Their Chiefs Face Arduous Task in Withdrawal.

ACTIVITY BEHIND OUR LINES

Great Supply Movements Continue and Prisoners Still Work on Damaged Highways.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 12.—A large number of explosions back of the German lines practically all day today indicates that the enemy now are destroying ammunition dumps by the wholesale. The Americans were not disturbed about this, fuguring that, if the Germans turned over what war material the armistice provides for, they could do as they liked with the rest.

The terms of the armistice provide against airplanes going over the German lines. No balloons were up today and no prisoners were being taken. Therefore, it was difficult to get information as to the exact movements of the Germans.

The scarcity of Germans along the front today indicates that they were moving toward the rear. In the two weeks allowed for retirement into Germany, the boche command has a big task. It has but one communication line, through Liége, since the Americans cut the Mézières-Longuyon Railroad system at Sedan.

I have just come from a trip through a halfscore of French towns, where lights were burning in the streets for the first time in more than four years.

Nov. 13.—Tonight France is ablaze with joy. Reflecting her happiness, every building has its flag. Windows which for four years have been dark against the coming of bombers are illuminated tonight. Cheering crowds parade the streets, and I can hear "Vive l'Amerique!" only less often than "Vive la France!"

German Troops Moving.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES ON THE MEUSE AND MOSELLE, Nov. 13, (Associated Press.)—Germany's army was moving slowly along its whole front toward the rear today. The American forces remain exactly where they were when the armistice went into effect.

So far as known at the American Army Headquarters no disposition has been displayed to block at any point that part of the agreement providing for the withdrawal of the German troops. It is realized that the reversing of the gears of the great broken German machine will not be simple.

There would have been no surprise among the American officers had the German front remained almost unchanged, but already there appears to have been left immediately in front of the Americans little more than a fringe of soldiers. In some places even that line has been withdrawn so far that the army men on this side do not know its location.

The Germans reluctantly abandoned their efforts to continue fraternization where the lines still were in proximity, but threats to hold as prisoners any one approaching the American lines practically stopped their visits.

Troops Down to Routine.

Behind the American line the activity of the supply trains continued today, and the troops mobilized at the front settled down to routine duty. There was an increasing number of leaves of absence, and the towns in the rear where troops are stationed were gayer than at any other time since the beginning of the war. The celebration that began on Monday night gathered momentum instead of showing signs of abating.

The hours since the cessation of hostilities have wrought a wonderful change on the front. Silence has replaced the roar of cannon and the rattle of machine guns. Ambulances are parked along the roads instead of bowling along on errands of mercy.

The marching columns of troops going into battle have been replaced by laughing groups of American and French soldiers rejoicing over the success of their great efforts. Every one seems to take it for granted that the war cannot start going again.

One thing goes on as it did before—the work of the German prisoners. By thousands they are repairing the damage German guns and mines have done to the roads of France. They have a large task ahead of them.

Eager to Get Home.

The relaxation resulting from the cessation of hostilities resolved itself yesterday into speculation among officers and men as to several questions. They asked:

"What will become of this army now? What part will Americans take as an army of occupation? When will we start for home?"

American doughboys are being mothered by the older French women behind the lines. These women, the mothers of French soldiers, almost break down with joy when they meet American soldiers and embrace them and give them a welcome to their homes as they would their own sons who are still at the front.

At First Army Headquarters work went on as usual. Gangs of men were erecting portable buildings according to plans laid weeks ago. Scores of barracks were erected recently for housing American troops and German prisoners. Along the roadways Signal Corps men have strung copper wires on new poles, but instead of trucks loaded with great shell cases and cartridges there was moving a continuous train of vehicles carrying food, wood, and clothing.

The Americans figure that they have enough ammunition at the front to last for weeks, even if the armistice does not continue. The famous Verdun roadway, over which automobiles hauled ammunition and material for years and by which Verdun was saved from the Germans, was buzzing with traffic yesterday just as if the war was still going on.

American Casualties Estimated at 100,000; 30,000 Names Still Remain Unpublished

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Officials here estimate that the total casualties of the American Expeditionary Forces in the war will not exceed 100,000, including the men killed in action, wounded, died of wounds, disease and accidents, and the missing who never will be accounted for. Some of those who have been missing will probably be accounted for when the prisoners are returned from Germany.

It was said today that several weeks probably would elapse before the record of casualties could be completed. It is regarded as almost certain that many of the casualties in the recent heavy fighting by the First and Second American Armies have not yet been reported. Lists also must be compiled of unreported American casualties in British and French hospitals, especially from among the United States forces brigaded with allied units. Deaths from wounds also probably will be reported for some time, while lists of slightly wounded being sent by couriers may be delayed.

The lists for several days have consisted of about 1,100 names daily. Secretary Baker has indicated that a considerable number of reported casualties remain to be given out, but that these will be released as rapidly as the newspapers can handle them.

An unofficial tabulation of published casualty lists, including those of Nov. 12, shows a total of 71,390 men. Careful estimates made today, based on knowledge of the battle conditions faced by the First and Second Armies in the days immediately preceding cessation of hostilities and on the average lists heretofore, lead officers to believe that all unpublished and unreported casualties will not exceed 30,000.

Estimates based on previous records fix the total marine casualties in France at less than 5,000.

WHERE OUR ARMIES STOOD AS TRUCE CAME

Front Lines from Chateau d'Hannoncelles to Meuse and from Nomeny to Ville-en-Woevre.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—When fighting ended Monday the German front line opposite the First American Army, running south and north, was approximately as follows:

From north of the Château d'Hannoncelles, through the Bois de Lavale, the Bois de Manheulles, the Bois Masseneue, thence northwest, passing east of Blanzee, east of Grimaucourt, east and north of Nobras Woods, thence through the Grand Chenas, east of Bezonvaux, through the Herbebois Woods, east and north of Hill 319, north of Chaumont-devant-Damvillers and Hill 324, to the east side of the Thiente Brook and the Damvillers-Metz road north of Remoiville to the north of the Forest of Woevre and Paalon, to east and north of Stenay, and thence north and slightly west to the end of the sector north of Mouzon, along the Meuse.

The front of the Second Army from south to north was:

Nomeny to Eply, through the Bois Voirrotte, through the Bois Frehaut, to the Moselle River and up the river to a point about two-thirds of a mile south of Pagny and thence west to a point one-third of a mile south of Preny. Thence through Remberecourt to the north of the Bois Dommartin and the Mainbois Farm, skirting the northern end of the Lake Lachaussee, through the Bois les Hautes Epines, through the Bois de Wavrille, St. Hilaire, Marcheville, Riaville to one-third of a mile south of Ville-en-Woevre.

On the front of the First and Second Armies, between the Meuse and the Moselle, allied troops hold the former German front line villages of Ronvaux, Watronville, Blanzee, Moranville, Abaucourt, Dieppe, and Bezonvaux.

GERMANS FALL BACK FAST IN BELGIUM

Evacuation of Brussels Begins—Garrison There Is Said to Have Revolted.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—How far the main German Armies have retreated in this region cannot be said definitely. It is probable that they have at least reached the Brussels-Charleroi line.

Enemy rearguards early this morning had vanished from the vicinity of Mons and points further south.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FLANDERS, Nov. 13.—The German garrison in Brussels revolted against the non-commissioned officers, according to neutrals reaching the British lines from Brussels. Several of the officers were killed.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The Germans have begun the evacuation of Brussels. A Dunkirk dispatch to the Paris edition of The New York Herald says that King Albert and his family will probably reenter Brussels Friday.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Nov. 12.—Last night, for the first time since August in the first year of the war, there was no light of gunfire in the sky, no sudden stabs of flame through the darkness, no long, spreading glow above the black trees where for four years of nights human beings were being smashed to death.

The fires of hell had been put out. It was silent all along the front. With the beautiful silence of nights of peace, we did not stand listening to the dull rumbling of artillery at work, which had been the undertone of all closer sounds for 1,500 nights, nor for sudden heart beats at explosions shaking the earth and air, nor say in whisper to ourselves, "Curse those guns!" At 11 o'clock the order had gone to all batteries to cease fire. No more men will be killed, no more be mangled, no more be blinded. The last boyhood of the world was reprieved on the way back from Mons.

I listened to this silence which followed the going down of the sun and heard the rustling of russet leaves and the little sounds of night in peace, and it seemed as though God gave a benediction to the wounded soul of the world. Other sounds rose from towns and fields in the yellowing twilight, and in the deepening shadow world of the day of armistice. They were sounds of human joy.

Men were singing somewhere on the roads, and their voices rang out gladly. Bands were playing, as all day on the way to Mons I heard their music ahead of the marching columns. Bugles were blowing.

British Troops Gay.

In villages from which the enemy had gone out that morning round about Mons crowds of figures surged in the narrow streets, and English laughter rose above the silvery chatter of women and children. British soldiers were still on the march with their guns, and their transport, and their old field cookers, and all along their lines I heard these men talking to each other gayly as though something had loosened their tongues and made them garrulous.

Motor cars streaked through Belgian streets, dodging traffic, and now and then, when night fell, rockets were fired from them, and there came gusts of laughter from young officers, shooting off their pistols into the darkness to celebrate the end of hostilities by this symbol of the rising stars, which did not soar so high as their spirits. From dark towns like Tournai and Lille, these rockets rose and burned a little while with a white light.

Our aviators flew like bats in the dusk, skimming tree tops and gables, doing Puck-like gambols above the tawny sunset, looping and spiraling and falling in steep dives which looked like death for them until they flattened out and rose again. And they, too, these boys who had been reprieved from the menace which was close to them on every flight, fired flares and rockets, which dropped down to the crowds of French and Flemish people waving to them from below.

Late into the night there were sounds of singing and laughter from open windows in towns which had been all shuttered, with people hiding in their cellars a week ago or less, and British officers sat down to French pianos and romped about the keys and crashed out chords and led a chorus of men who wanted to sing any old song.

In officers' clubs glasses were raised and some one called a toast, and no one heard more than the names of "England," "Scotland," "France," with "victory" as the loudest word, for the men had risen from all the tables, and most were standing on their chairs, and there was a beginning of cheers which lasted five minutes, ten minutes, longer than that, and some of those who cheered had moist eyes and were not ashamed of that because of memories in their hearts for old pals who had gone, who were missing on the night of the armistice.

Thoughts of Lost Pals.

Perhaps their old pals heard these cheers and joined in the toast, for the noise of all this gladness of living men rose into the night sky along the length and breadth of all our armies, and in the midst of all this sound of exultation men had sudden silences, thinking back to things which have passed.

Yesterday, coming back from Mons, I had no time to write more than a few words describing the best day but one, when our victory shall be sealed by peace. I had dodged a hundred mine craters, blown up by the enemy along the road to Mons, and had become entangled in tides of traffic, and traveled far through liberated country, but I had determined to get to Mons and on the day of "cease fire" to go to that town which, by a happy miracle, was taken in the last battle, so that the war ended where it began, when the old "Contemptibles" withstood the first shock of German arms.

It was worth going to Mons yesterday with this memory in one's mind, and, anyhow, because of the wonderful scenes all along the roads. I have already told how I stopped at Brigade Headquarters on the way, and an officer there said:

"Hostilities will cease at 11 o'clock this morning, and thank God for that!"

Everywhere the news had gone ahead of me. Soldiers, assembled in the fields for morning parade, were flinging their steel helmets up and cheering. As they marched through villages they shouted out to civilians, "Guerre fini, guerre fini, boche napoo!" And the women and children came running to them with Autumn flowers, mostly red and white chrysanthemums, and they put them in their tunics and in the straps of their steel helmets.

Thousands of flags appeared suddenly in villages where no French nor Belgian flag could be shown without fines and imprisonment until that very morning when liberty had come again, and every Tommy in the ranks had a bit of color at the end of his rifle or stuck through his belt, and every gun team had a banner floating above their limber or their guns, and their horses had flowers in their harness.

Sad Tide of Refugees.

For miles there was a pageant on the roads, and as there moved one way endless tides of British infantry, and cavalry, and artillery, and transport, with all that flutter of flags above them, with the great banners of Belgium and France like flames above them, another tide moved the opposite way, and that had its flags and its banners.

It was the pitiful, heroic tide of life, made up of thousands of civilians, people who that morning had come back through the German lines. They were men from 15 to 60 who had been taken away from Cambrai and Courtrai, Lille and Roubaix, and Tourcoing, Tournai and Valenciennes and hundreds of towns and villages in the wake of the enemy's retreat, because to the very end the German command conscripted this manhood to forced labor, and to prevent them from serving their own armies. Then at last, yesterday, seeing their own doom had come, they said to these people in Brussels and other towns behind their lines:

"You can go. We want no more of you."

So vast numbers of men and boys who had been forced from their homes by German bayonets, and with them thousands of women, were making their way home yesterday on all the roads through Mons, and they were burdened with luggage they had taken on their exile. The men had heavy packs strapped about them, so that they bent under the load, exhausted by long trecking, with only food enough for life; but each man had added some straws to his camel's weight by thrusting flags into his pack, not one flag, but mostly four or five, so that as he trudged with bent head these colors fluttered above him.

There were armies of these boys, and among them were crowds of elderly men in black coats and bowler hats, with mud up to their knees, and stains on their backs where they had slept on filthy straw. Groups of them of a dozen or more pushed hand carts made roughly out of boxes, holding their wallets and packs. And so they made way through our troops, going forward, and every now and then these men stopped round their carts to raise their hats and shout: "Vivent les Anglais!" and grasp the hands of British Tommies, and say, "Bravo! Bravo!"

Women Tired But Brave.

The women showed the courage which had never departed from them through all these years of tragedy. They were hot and spent by this long journey on the roads and their hair had become uncoiled, and skirts bedraggled in mud, but they had an eager look in their eyes and strained forward at the ropes of their carts with the vision of their homes luring them on mile after mile to Tournai and Lille.

I saw two of them come home yesterday and reach their journey's end. It was a mother and daughter in a village between Tournai and Mons. They halted outside their house and saw that in their absence it had been shelled into a rubbish heap of brick dust and broken timbers. They had travelled far to come home. * * *

Outside Mons two girls walked with me across a foot bridge which our engineers had built across the canal where all the bridges had been blown up by the enemy. One of them, a tall peasant, seemed to me like Joan, the Maid of Domremy, because of the brave look in her eyes and her frank way of speech and her heroic simplicity. She described the fighting which had liberated the town that night.

"I was not afraid," she said, "because I have never feared death, but machine gun bullets were all around us, and four of our people were killed. They could not go down in their cellars. I wanted to see the English come."

She told me of the sufferings of British prisoners, as all people in Mons told me, and something broke in her voice at this thought, and her eyes were wet with tears. She turned for a moment in her swinging walk and said:

"Monsieur, they suffered more than I can tell. I have seen ten of your men struggle with each other to get a bit of bread lying in the mud. Because I gave them one little piece I was clubbed by a German with a rifle. They cried of hunger, and we saw them grow weak and we wept for them."

Child's Tale of a Battle.

It was from a child in Mons that I heard the full story of this last battle for the town. She was not more than 7 and stood on the step of my car, a little elfin creature, and in her high, metallic voice very gravely described what had happened a few hours before:

"Over there, Monsieur, were German machine guns, and they had field guns in the gardens. Your men had come up to the line of the canal. They were Canadians, and your English cavalry as I know, because I kissed their hands this morning, and said: 'Will you tell me who you are?'

"There was a great noise of firing, and the machine guns frightened me because of their tapping. Some Germans were killed. I think there were many dead, though I have seen only two or three dead men who were lying over there."

She pointed to some place down by the canal. She spoke like an old woman, this child of seven in the town of Mons.

I met many people there who remembered the first battle of Mons as though it were yesterday, and in the square thousands of people were gathered among English Lancers and Canadian troops. Little groups stood around telling of those days and pointing out places where our men fought in the streets before they made their line outside and fell back in retreat before overwhelming forces.

In my heart I saluted the old "Contemptibles." Some of them were there yesterday among the 5th Lancers, chosen for that purpose by General Currie, commanding the Canadian Corps. And now the world, in its heart, must salute all the soldiers who through these four years and more of war have fought for this victory by great heroism, through years of horror and tragedy, with enormous sacrifice. I saw only two figures in this war, now that hostilities have ceased; one was the figure of the regimental officer, from subaltern to battalion comander, the boys and their elder brothers who went over the top at dawn and led their men gallantly, hiding any fear of death they had, and who in dirty ditches and dugouts, in mud and swamps, in fields under fire, in ruins that were death traps, in all the filth and misery of this war, held fast to the pride of manhood, and in the worst hours did not weaken, and for their country's sake and the game they paly offered up their life and all that life means to youth as a free, cheap gift.

And the other figure is Tommy. Poor old Tommy, you have had a rough time, and you hated it, but, by the living God, you have been patient and long suffering and full of grim and silent courage, not swanking about the things you have done, not caring a jot for glory, not getting much dash; but now you have done your job, and it is well done.

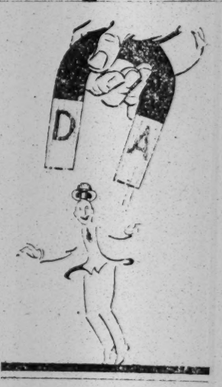
Macy's
R. H. Macy & Co. Transactions are Prices—Quality—Service
Herald Square, Broadway, 34th to 35th St.
We Sell Dependable Merchandise at Prices Lower Than Any Other Store, but for Cash Only.



Why This Magnet Pulls You

Our Depositors' Account (D. A.) department is a distinct and self-supporting institution, responsible as such to the State. It is not a lien on the store or its merchandise.

R. H. Macy & Co. Depositors' Account Dept., Private Bankers, under the supervision of the Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York.

In its splendidly unique and simple operation it requires the labor only of a small staff of clerks. (As an actual fact we know of no credit system in any competing department store even nearly as inexpensive in operation and maintenance.)

The Proof Lies in the Fact That We Regularly Undersell Our Competitors 6% At Least, Article For Article.

Absolutely One Price

to all customers—and we sell only for cash—is a statement of the fact as it exists in this store.

What We Do Through Our D. A.

is to place at the disposal of all

A Co-operative Buying Power which, through the deposit system, enables our customers to support those conveniences of the charge account THEMSELVES, for which, under the credit system, they are assessed by the store.

You Deposit Your Own Cash At 4%. You Charge Yourself For the Purchases You Make. The Money Is Yours, the System Is Yours, the Advantages Are Yours.

But—

When the credit house charges you, you pay for——The upkeep of the system as the store sees fit to charge for it.

—Interest on the money the store advances in merchandise.
—For "Bad" accounts.
—Whatever the store works out of the transaction as its additional profit.
—Excessive cost of credit sales due to exchanges, returns, goods on approval, extra deliveries, etc.

IF YOU CAN PAY YOUR BILLS MONTHLY, YOU DON'T NEED CREDIT. IF YOU DON'T NEED CREDIT, WHY PAY FOR IT?

"He that sells on credit, asks a price for what he sells equivalent to the principal and interest of his money, for the time he is to be kept out of it: therefore, he that buys upon credit pays interest for what he buys."—Franklin.

CITY MUST SPEED WAR WORK DRIVE

$45,613,639 Nation's Total Yesterday, Three States Having Passed Their Quota.

$5,000,000 BY ROCKEFELLER

Michigan Pledges $7,500,000 on "War Chest" Plan—$12,837,257 in Three Days' Gifts Here.

The United War Work Campaign is lagging. Up to noon yesterday the returns from all the States but two showed a total of $45,613,639 for the entire country. It will be necessary to obtain $30,000,000 a day for the next five days to "go over the top" with the desired quota of $250,000,000 for the seven accredited civilian war work agencies. It was said last night that about $83,000,000 ought now to be in the coffers of the campaign committee for the first three days, instead of less than half of that sum.

New York City, counting all the boroughs together, gave $8,512,781 yesterday. This included a $5,000,000 gift from the Rockefeller Foundation. For the first three days of the drive New York gave $12,831,257. The quota for the "greater" city is $52,000,000.

The cheering part of the day's news for the officials conducting the drive was that at least three States are already known to have reached or passed their quotas and are now putting forth increased energy for the 50 per cent. increase desired. Michigan, which has a Statewide "war chest" plan, has pledged its full allotment of $5,340,000 and is setting out to raise $7,500,000, or 150 per cent. of its original quota. Delaware, with a goal of $477,400, reports more than $500,000 already subscribed. A wire from New Mexico, received too late for tabulation, states that its quota of $154,000 has already been passed.

Encouraging news was received from Indiana and Georgia also. The Mid-West State reports $3,050,516 of the allotted $4,050,000 subscribed, while the Southern State, with a goal of $931,950, has raised $752,652.

Five Days' Work Left, Says Mott.

"If we reach our goal on Monday night, as we plan to do," Dr. John R. Mott, Director General of the campaign, stated last night, "it means that we have only five working days left, and more than two hundred millions are still to be raised. Forty millions a day will do it, but to make that total we must double the results of the first two days of the drive.

Work, Not Shirk, Adds Marshall.

Warning against the dangers of idleness that invariably threaten troops during periods of demobilization, Vice President Marshall yesterday called on every American to swell the great patriotic fund, not only to protect but also to reward "the boys over there" for their self-sacrifice and unselfish devotion.

"Let us not shirk our duty and opportunity in the present war work campaign," the Vice President said; "let us rather seize the chance of proving once again that republics are not ungrateful. Two or three times the amount of money now asked by the seven war relief agencies would have been cheerfully contributed by the American people if our boys had continued to go down to death upon the western front. How can we get the belief into our heads, and how can we permit it to dwell in our hearts, that now since all actual danger from the German guns has ceased all danger to the American soldier has ended?

A. C. Kaufman, Industry Chairman of the Telegraph, Cable, and Alarm Service, sent the following telegram yesterday to Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Industries Division:

New York, Nov. 12, 1918.

The Hon. Elbert H. Gary, Chairman Industries Division, 680 Fifth Avenue, New York:

Your telegram is appreciated. President Newcomb Carlton authorizes me to say that the Executive Committee of the Western Union Telegraph Company has authorized a subscription of $150,000 to the United War Work Campaign.

At noon today 100 per cent. solid of 1,000 employes, comprising fourteen departments and offices, have subscribed. The campaign will be actively pushed.

A. C. KAUFMAN,
Industry Chairman, Telegraph, Cable, and Alarm Service.

From campaign headquarters appeals are being made to the committees to submit figures promptly.

Shooters Island Gives Day's Pay.

At a meeting held at the plant of the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation at Shooters Island, Staten Island, yesterday all the workers of the plant, numbering more than 7,000, pledged themselves to give one full day's wages to the War Work Fund. The amount realized will be between $50,000 and $60,000.

The Friday noon luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce will be for industrial Division reports. Announcement was made to the teams that the "lid is off" and they may solicit wherever they like from this time forward to increase their totals.

Colonel Harry Cutler, Chairman of the Jewish Welfare Board, yesterday sent cablegrams of congratulation and gratitude to the soldiers of allied armies through their commanders, Marshal Foch and General Pershing. The Jewish Welfare Board, which is one of the seven organizations co-operating in the United War Work Campaign, represents the unified support of American Jewry of the United States land and sea forces.

Welfare Board to President Wilson.

Colonel Cutler sent the following telegram to President Wilson:

On behalf of the Jewish Welfare Board, United States Army and Navy, permit me to express sincere congratulations on the wonderful achievement accomplished by the troops of our country, co-operating with those of our allies, who, together, under the dispensation of Divine Providence have been privileged through your leadership to forever crush autocracy and establish a world democracy through which the ideals and traditions of our beloved country shall evolve and flourish for the benefit of all the inhabitants of the earth. The blood sacrifice of the citizens of Jewish faith mingling with those of the citizens of other creeds have been cheerfully placed on the altar of sacrifice for humanity's sake.

Other messages of congratulation were sent to Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War; Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman of the War Department, Commission on Training Camp Activities.

Internal Revenue Collector William H. Edwards will appear on the Sub-Treasury steps at noon today to sell tickets for the football game on Saturday between Princeton and Camp Upton. The game will be played at the Polo Grounds. Fifty actresses will aid in selling tickets. Boxes will be auctioned off on the floor of the Stock Exchange.

Florence Andrews, a motion picture actress, sold a kiss for $100 to aid the fund yesterday. Although several thousand persons witnessed the sale in front of the Public Library, the name of the male purchaser could not be learned.

Six circus side shows were opened in Bryant Park yesterday. Director of Features Joseph P. Day had charge of this innovation.

LABOR CONFERENCE OPENS ON BORDER

Gompers and Secretary Wilson Welcome Mexican Delegates to International Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 13.—The first international labor conference ever held in North America began today in this quaint border town. Promptly at 11 o'clock this morning a procession of delegates started on both sides of the International Bridge and met at the International Monument just over midstream.

The American group was led by Samuel Gompers, President of the conference, and Secretary of Labor Wilson, the personal representative of President Wilson. Behind them came twenty-five delegates acting for the United States labor movement, followed by delegates from Costa Rica, San Salvador, Colombia, and Guatemala, and also by representatives of the city's organized labor, in all comprising a party of about 350.

The Mexican delegates were headed by Attorney General Pablo A. de La Garza, representing President Carranza, and General Reynaldo Garza, commandant at Nuevo Laredo, representing the Mexican Army.

On the bridge was the band of the 37th Infantry, and as the delegations met it played the Mexican national hymn, while at the same time a Mexican cavalry band stationed a few feet away played "The Star-Spangled Banner." As the two delegations met at the international monument there was a general exchange of felicitations, after which Mr. Gompers spoke briefly, expressing the hope that through the present ceremonies the relations of the two nations might be further cemented.

Mayor Cosme of Nuevo Laredo replied on behalf of the Mexicans.

During the afternoon the first formal session of the conference was held in the Mexican-American Club, before an audience of over 1,000.

WILL SEND FOOD TO GERMANS

tries of the Central Empires is serious. An appeal for food was received by the State Department from the authorities in German Austria, and another came from the Government of the German State of Bavaria.

The whole subject was considered this afternoon by President Wilson and his so-called War Cabinet, consisting of Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, and the heads of various other war work administrations. It was decided that Herbert Hoover, the Federal Food Administrator, who was present at the War Cabinet's session, should take up the question of giving relief to the Central Empires during the visit he is to make to Europe shortly.

One factor favorable to Germany is that that country's harvest is in and ready for use. It had been planned by the German Government to make this harvest last a year, but it is probable that it will be suggested to Germany that these food supplies may be used up in from four to six months and that the Allies will furnish food for the rest of the year.

LOOKS TO AMERICA TO AID IN FOOD CRISIS

British Controller Says That Release of War Tonnage Ought to Meet the Situation.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—John Robert Clynes, British Food Controller, said today that the food situation in Europe continued to be serious, necessitating larger shipments until Spring. He said that he confidently expected America to back up any British sacrifices which might be necessary in behalf of the needy peoples of Europe recently freed from German domination.

Mr. Clynes remarked that the situation had been prevented from becoming critical only by the fact that a certain amount of wheat flour reserves had accumulated in England. He continued:

"Not the least of the services rendered to the Allies by this country has been the building up of these reserves here. But in order to restore conditions to the normal margin of safety there must be greatly increased shipments of cereals until Spring.

"The food emergencies of peace are likely to be formidable. A certain amount of the stocks now held as military reserves probably will be released and I hope, with the diminution of munition shipments and the abolition of the convoy system, the tonnage position will be improved.

"This, however, will not entirely solve one of the most serious problems, the shortage of beef and mutton. Virtually all the refrigerator tonnage of the world which is or can be available, and without which meat cannot be shipped, is already employed to the maximum of its capacity for meat deliveries. For instance, while there probably will be vessels available to bring to Europe the accumulated wheat harvests of Australia, there are only a few additional refrigerator ships to bring the large stores of meat from that country and New Zealand. This shortage of allied tonnage is due to the submarine warfare. Nor will an expansion of tonnage modify to any extent our position as to fats and dairy products. There is an absolute world shortage of these commodities.

"We are not yet sufficiently informed as to the conditions in liberated and enemy countries to announce any definite policy or speak decisively as to their needs and how they will be met. In liberated countries we are doing our best to meet emergencies as they arise, but this naturally involves an increase in what we had previously estimated to be the minimum amount of imported food required by the Allies from the United States, Canada, and elsewhere.

"We feel we can look to the American public to back us up in any sacrifice we may make in behalf of the peoples of Belgium, Northern France, Italy, and Serbia. Central Europe, so far as we can depend upon reports, is in the shadow of famine."

RESCIND WHITE FLOUR RULE

Use of Substitutes, Food Board Says, May Be Abandoned.

White wheat flour may now be purchased without substitutes, and bakers, hotels, and housewives are no longer required to use substitutes in their baking. An announcement to this effect was made yesterday by the Federal Food Board. The Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration is now formulating plans for the purchase of surplus stocks of substitutes which have been accumulated in carrying out the 80-20 rule, it was said, and details will be announced later.

"The rescinding of the substitute rule," said the Food Board, "follows the announcement yesterday at Washington by Herbert Hoover, National Food Administrator, that owing to the ending of the war making available large supplies of wheat in hitherto inaccessible markets the use of substitutes in our wheat loaf may now be abandoned. The return to clear wheat bread in this country, however, does not mean that we should relax one iota the economies we have practiced since the war began in the use of wheat flour. We must still be saving in the use of all breadstuffs, buying no more than we actually need and wasting nothing.

"While we have a sufficient quantity of wheat to permit a return to the clear wheat bread to which we were accustomed before the world war necessitated a change to the so-called 'war bread,' it is still vital that we practice strict economy in consumption."

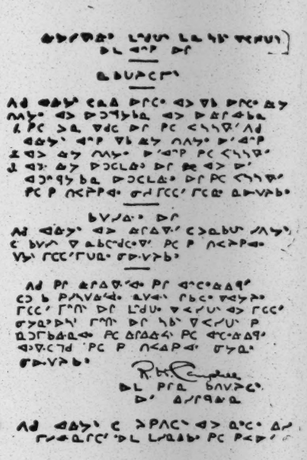
THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS



A Forest Fire Warning

THIS poster, printed in the written characters of the Cree language, is a warning to Indian hunters and trappers to extinguish fires when breaking camp. The Cree written language was the invention of the missionaries. It is a simple and logical method of representing sound by characters. The Crees have bibles and prayer books printed in their own language, and there are several excellent Cree dictionaries, with definitions in French and English. Of these, the one published by Rev. Father Lacombe, in 1874, is generally accepted as the standard. Missionaries and traders going into the Northwest learn Cree easily from practical text books compiled by their predecessors.

MRS. SAGE LEAVES MILLIONS TO CHARITY

About $40,000,000 of $50,000,000 Estate Goes to Philanthropy and Education.

BROTHER GETS $8,000,000

Gifts During Life to be Deducted from Legacies—Requests Memorials to Husband.

The will of Mrs. Margaret Olivia Sage, which was filed for probate yesterday, disposes of an estate valued at approximately $50,000,000, of which more than $40,000,000 is distributed among various charities, educational institutions, and hospitals. The largest single gift for a public purpose is that of approximately $5,600,000 to the Russell Sage Foundation, which she endowed with $10,000,000 on founding it in 1907, after the death of her husband.

In the twelve years since the death of Russell Sage the benefactions of Mrs. Sage reached a total estimated to be between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000, so that, during her life and after her death, her gift, for public uses make up a sum between 75,000,00 and $80,000,000. The philanthropies of John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie are the only ones believed to have been greater.

Mrs. Sage had used a part of the capital as well as the income of the estate for her philanthropies, so that the property she leaves is less by several millions than that which was left to her. She received from her husband's estate $64,153,800.91.

Russell Sage died on June 22, 1906. Ten months later Mrs. Sage founded the Russell Sage Foundation with an original endowment of $10,000,000. In making the gifts to various charities in her will she requested that in each case the gift be used as a memorial to Mr. Sage.

$8,000,000 to Brother.

The largest individual bequest under the will is $8,000,000 to Joseph Jermain Slocum, Mrs. Sage's brother, $1,000,000 of which is to be held in trust during his life and distributed among his children at his death. Mrs. Sage left $100,000 each to her nephews, Herbert Jermain Slocum and Stephen L'Hommedieu Slocum, and to her niece, Margaret Olivia Flint. She left personal legacies to others, totaling $180,000.

Besides distributing the bulk of her wealth to philanthropic and educational institutions, Mrs. Sage gave $1,840,000 in direct bequests to several organizations. These bequests, of all kinds, reach $10,320,000.

As the estate is estimated on good authority to be worth about $50,000,000, the residue has a value close to $40,000,000. Mrs. Sage divided this into fifty-two equal parts for convenience in drawing a will to distribute it among the philanthropies in which she was most deeply interested, each part being worth approximately $800,000.

It is provided in the will that certain sums which Mrs. Sage gave in her lifetime to institutions shall be deducted in computing the amounts to be distributed from the residue. It was stated yesterday that a study of her accounts would be necessary in order to ascertain the exact amounts due these institutions. On the face of the will the residue would be distributed approximately as follows:

Memorial to Her Husband.

The request of Mrs. Sage that the bequests be employed in such a way as to constitute a memorial to her husband is as follows:

It is my desire that each religious, educational, and charitable corporation, which may receive a share of my residuary estate shall use the whole or part of such legacy received by it for some purpose which will commemorate the name of my husband, but I simply express this as a desire and do not impose it as a condition on my gift.

Mrs. Sage leaves her country place at Lawrence, L. I., to her two nephews and niece in equal shares as tenants in common. Her house at Sag Harbor, L. I., known as the Luther Cook House, built by her grandfather, John Jermain, is given to her brother, Joseph Jermain Slocum, for life and to his direct descendants.

Each servant at her death, who had been in her employ for ten years or more, received $5,000, and each in her employ between five and ten years, received $2,500. The will also provides for the following personal legacies:

'AIDA' GIVES NEW TENOR HIS DEBUT

Giulio Crimi Sings Radames and Receives a Thundering Ovation.

MME. MUZIO IN TITLE ROLE

Thomas Chalmers Superb as the Barbaric King—Excellent Performance and Splendid Production.

By JAMES GIBBONS HUNEKER.

The second opera of the season last night at the Metropolitan Opera House was "Aida," and sung in Italian. A new tenor, Giulio Crimi, was the Radames, but the rest of the cast was composed of familiar artists. A new baritone did not appear and Amonasro was sung by Thomas Chalmers. Luigi Montesanto is the name of the missing one who has just arrived from Buenos Aires. Claudia Muzio, Louise Homer, Adamo Didur, D'Angelo, and Marie Sundelius were ample guarantees that the performance, conducted by Signor Moranzoni, would be an excellent one. And it was. There was not a person in the large audience who did not declare that the Verdi work should have been sung the opening night, because of its militant spirit, of its hymn to victory and the general appositeness of the moving tale. But Manager Gatti-Casazza was not supposed to know that last Monday would be the precise date for the stupendous announcement of peace. In this prosaic, everyday world matters do not always arrange themselves so happily, so operatically.

Certainly "Aida" is an ideal opera with which to begin the lyric season. It is in the same category with "Prophète," "Huguenots," and all such tuneful pageants with which to catch the ears of the public, fashionable and musical. Its massive decorations, its imposing choruses, its exotic atmosphere and romantic story and richly colored music make it a perennial favorite. Leaning on Meyerbeer at times, it is indomitably Verdi to the core. It is also Verdi at the parting of the ways. The greater Verdi was soon to appear. "Aida" was not written to celebrate the completion of the Suez Canal, nor yet to open the Italian Opera House at Cairo, Egypt. These beliefs, common enough, are what good old Sir Thomas Browne would have classified as "vulgar errors." However, the Khédive, Ismail Pasha, did commission Verdi to write an opera, and he consented, but fate ordained that neither the Suez Canal nor the Cairo Opera House opening were consecrated by "Aida."

It may be interesting to his old admirers to know that the late Edouard de Reszke was the original King in the Paris performance, 1876.

Every one who goes to "Aida" has always heard it sung better. There were even doubters in the times of Italo Campanini, and doubtless some critic shrugged shoulders the night of the premiere at Cairo. Therefore if you were in the mood last night there were several matters to criticise. But if you took the performance by and large, minor shortcomings were overshadowed by the admirable ease with which the mechanism operated. The chorus was superb, hence the big climax at the end of Act II. was tellingly achieved, the stage pictures magnificent, the evolution of the multitude effective. The various ballets were perfectly danced, the little Senegambians arousing more than the usual interest. Queenie Smith's solo dancing was wholly delightful. She got a round of applause. Those—ahem! they must be early Egyptians, but they were archaic and colorful. The stage settings were picturesque throughout.

The début of Giulio Crimi was successful. Punctually at 8 o'clock Maestro Moranzoni lifted his baton; precisely at ten minutes after the hour Signor Crimi was launched in his "Celeste Aïda," as trying a test for any tenor as may be found in the literature of opera, not because the charming music is of supreme technical difficulty; but that it forces a singer so speedily in the thick of the vocal fight. Sing or forever after hold your peace! it seems to say. Many a tenor of sound calibre has met his Waterloo in this tantalizing aria. Crimi was undoubtedly nervous. It was a handicap, as his phrasing was choppy, his emission labored in spots, and a naturally resonant and agreeable organ was not heard at its best. He sang with considerable power, and proved himself to be a routinière. He employed too often an effect which the French call "larmoyant"—and it pleased his auditory. He received a thundering ovation after Act III., especially. Luckily as the evening waxed he sang with more repose, and his voice triumphantly emerged from its early cloudiness. He could make it heard in the heaviest ensembles. He was a former member of the Chicago Opera Company. His personality is attractive. As a conquering warrior he lacks inches, but then, so do most tenors.

Thomas Chalmers has sung Amonasro elsewhere, though never at our Opera House. His barbaric King was a pleasant surprise. For one thing, his voice, rich and unforced, stood out among the other male voices because of its mellifluousness. His dramatic assumption was fiery and tempered by tact. He made a decided impression.

Claudia Muzio in the title rôle won her share of applause. As an interpretation her Aïda has not changed much since last season, except on the histrionic side. Her singing, like the curate's egg, is good in spots. She worked tremendously in the concerted numbers, and made her voice tell against that huge tonal forest in the early acts. Of sheer sensuous beauty there is not much to boast in her voice. But there is talent, temperament, and earnestness, a trinity of qualities that usually wins. She was a handsome creature and an object of admiration. Louise Homer's Amneris was a tower of strength, and as she was in splendid form there is little to record except that she it was who returned victor! She was recalled many times. After Act II. the principals all bowed in response to the enthusiasm of the audience. Roberto Moranzoni with the rest. His conducting deserves warm commendation. Marie Sundelius was the Priestess, Didur the Ramfis, and D'Angelo the King.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

BOOTH STATUE UNVEILED.

Presented in Gramercy Park to The Players.

A statue of Edwin Booth, presented to The Players by the Edwin Booth Memorial Committee, was unveiled in Gramercy Park yesterday by Edwin Booth Grossman, grandson of the actor.

The ceremony of unveiling was made impressive by the singing of many Shakespearean songs by actors from the club at 16 Gramercy Park, in the old house that was once the home of Edwin Booth. Brander Matthews, Professor of American Literature in Columbia University and a friend of Edwin Booth, in discussing the art and character of the actor, said that there was nowhere in "all the broad City of New York" the statue of any actor "except that of Shakespeare in Central Park."

The presentation of the statue was made by Howard Pyle, Secretary and Treasurer of the Memorial Committee, and it was accepted for The Players by John Drew, who described Edwin Booth as "the noblest Hamlet the American stage has ever produced—our leader and our friend." In beginning his short speech of acceptance Mr. Drew spoke of the dignity and faithfulness of the statue conceived by Edmond T. Quinn, the sculptor, and Edwin S. Dodge, the architect, and of the diligent work of the committee in raising funds for the memorial. Edwin Booth Grossman brought to the ceremonies his son, 3 years old, and daughter, a year old, the greatgrandchildren of Edwin Booth.

DAVID BELASCO DELIGHTED.

"Tiger! Tiger!" He Says, Is as Great a Success as He Ever Staged.

David Belasco declared last night that he had never staged a greater success, either artistically or financially, than his latest production, "Tiger! Tiger!" with Frances Starr in the leading rôle, which opened on Tuesday night at the Belasco Theatre.

"The proof of it," said Mr. Belasco as he watched a struggling line at the box office window, "is the fact that we are turning them away by hundreds. I am perfectly delighted not only with the expressions of opinions of the critics, but with the way the show itself has taken hold. The house is being sold out at every performance, and many are being turned away. I have never produced a greater success, artistically or financially."

Richard Czerwonky's Violin Recital.

Richard Czerwonky, once the concertmaster of the Minneapolis Orchestra, and also with the Boston Symphony Band, gave a violin recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. He is an artist of scholarly attainments, finished technique, possessing a musical though not a luscious tone, and he reveals the style of each master he plays. He opened with the Bach chaconne, and it was a severe Bach he interpreted; the long, lovely line, surely the longest line in music, was rather rigid, instead of plastic, undulating, euphonious. But the polyphonic pattern was clearly indicated; there was no smudging of the inner voices, no undue forcing of the virtuoso note. Bach was also a poet, and that loftier side of him was not in Mr. Czerwonky's reading.

His tone was warmer, his bowing more fluent in the B minor concerto of D'Ambrosio, which is written in a facile and effective manner for the instrument. It demands a technical control, though no particular depth of sentiment. This composition showed his hearers the brilliancy of the violinist, and he was heartily applauded. There followed several groups of smaller pieces by Spalding, Hochstein, Stoessel, MacMillen, Rode-Elman, Saenger, Polo, and Czerwonky.

Mr. Edgar A. Nelson played the piano accompaniments.

SAY DEMPSEY RULED ON BRIGHTON LINE

B. R. T. Witnesses Testify That Vice President Was in Control of Operations.

RESUME WRECK INQUIRY

President of Subsidiary Company Acknowledges That He Holds Office in Name Only.

Mayor Hylan, sitting as a Magistrate to fix the criminal responsibility for the wreck at the Malbone Tunnel on the Brighton Beach Line of the B. R. T., in which ninety-one lives were lost, continued the inquiry at the County Court House in Brooklyn yesterday. Vice President John J. Dempsey was held to be responsible for all matters of operations by officials of the company called to testify yesterday, while Colonel T. S. Williams was said to be responsible for the financial and business management of the company.

George D. Yeomans, a Director of the New York Consolidated Railroad, a subsidiary of the B. R. T., said that Vice President Dempsey had the final decision in all matters connected with operation, but that Mr. Dempsey always conferred with President Williams in reaching any important decision.

"To whom is Dempsey accountable for his acts?" asked Mayor Hylan.

"I think he is the final head, so far as operations are concerned."

John R. Hallock, President of the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, admitted that he held the office in name only and exercised no important functions. He said that he received no salary and had no stock in the New York Consolidated, although he owned one share in one of the B. R. T. subsidiaries. He said he did not recall offhand which company it was in which he had a share.

"I don't mean to be offensive, but aren't you what is known as a dummy President?" asks Mr. Lewis.

"I wouldn't like to be called that," replied President Hallock. Mr. Hallock admitted that he had never exercised general supervision and that he had no control over maintenance or operation of the system.

Mr. Hallock said that he usually took matters up with C. D. Meneely, the Treasurer, or J. H. Bennington, the Secretary, of the company. Mr. Meneely, who was called later, said that he was the Treasurer of the New York Consolidated, the B. R. T., and of all the other operating companies and some of the business companies of the B. R. T. system. District Attorney Lewis asked Mr. Meneely if the Presidents and officials of the subsidiary companies, with the exception of Colonel Williams, Mr. Dempsey, and other active officials, exercised any power.

"In the case of these gentlemen," said Mr. Meneely, "you might call them dummies, or, rather, figureheads."

L. S. Griffing, Assistant Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said that before the strike was declared on the day the accident occurred the brotherhood officials had made repeated attempts to see Mr. Dempsey and other B. R. T. officials, but had been turned away with the statement that they were busy. He said that the strike was decided upon on the night of Oct. 30, to go into effect on Nov. 1, the day of the accident. He said that he had called up Mayor Hylan, who is a member of the brotherhood, on the morning of Nov. 1, to inform him that the strike was on. The Mayor, he said, asked him not to call the men out at once, but to allow time for an adjustment.

"Your request is too late," Griffing told the Mayor, according to his testimony. "Unless the management makes a settlement the men will go out."

The John Doe inquiry will be resumed at 11 o'clock on Friday morning.

Friars-Lambs on Stock Exchange.

The first auction sale ever held on the floor of the Stock Exchange will take place there at the close of business this afternoon, when delegations of Friars and Lambs will sell seats for the war fund performance to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House on Sunday night. Permission to hold the sale on the floor was given yesterday by the exchange governors. The auctioneers will be George M. Cohan, William Collier, Sam Bernard and Louis Mann.

An hour later, at 4 o'clock, the sale will be continued at the Liberty Theatre.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Society of American Singers will revive "Pinafore" tonight at the Park Theatre. In the cast will be William Danforth, Bertram Peacock, John Phillips, Homer Lind, Herbert Waterous, Jack Goldman, Lee Daly, Eileen Castles, Gladys Caldwell, and Josephine Jacoby.

Following its concert for men and women in the nation's service last night at Carnegie Hall, the Philharmonic Society will open its seventy-seventh season with a first regular pair of concerts tonight and tomorrow afternoon.

Mabel Garrison, singing today at the Symphony Society's matinee in Carnegie Hall, will also appear as soloist on Saturday at the first of the Symphony Concerts for Young People.

Frieda Hempel, soprano of the Metropolitan, will open her seventh season in America, of which she is now a citizen, at tonight's performance of "The Daughter of the Regiment."

FALLEN GERMANY.

The German people, headed by their Kaiser and his associates in autocracy, set forth gayly and confidently four years ago to begin the conquest of the world. Their confidence never forsook them; they never doubted of success, strange to say, until about the middle of the great retreat before FOCH. At first not even the retreat disturbed them, for they believed it was for strategic reasons; it is probable that the possibility of defeat did not strike them for a month or more, and did not become actual in their minds until the beginning of the withdrawal from Belgium.

How stunning, therefore, must be the overwhelming disaster that has befallen them. Generally the defeated party sees defeat coming for a long time and has a chance to get used to the idea; but this defeat came almost from a clear sky. They had believed that the great rush of March 21 was to give the finishing touches to the war. It did, but in so different a way from what they expected! This is the first war in which United Germany has engaged since its creation, and the German Empire then created is shattered literally at a blow—the blow which FOCH struck on July 18.

By their pride and confidence we may measure their humiliation. "But "yesterday the word of Caesar might "have stood against the world," and now Caesar is begging bread, and, what is worse, begging it from those who have conquered him. Foreign armies are about to move upon the Rhine, there to wait until he has carried out the peace terms they will impose upon him. "Fest steht und treu die Wacht, die Wacht am Rhein": but the new watch on the Rhine will be a watch maintained by the "degenerate" French, the "contemptible" British, and the "dollar-chasing" Yankees.

Only last week they were still destroying French cities, even up to the very day of the armistice; now they discover that they were simply adding to Germany's bill with every house they smashed. German prisoners will rebuild the houses, stone on stone, and Germany will pay for the work. Piling up work for Germans to do, piling up marks for Germans to pay, that was what they were doing when they fired those last shells into Mauberge, and what they had been doing all through their retreat, and a year before they had to retreat.

Now their once beloved Hohenzollern, on whom they turned in wrath the moment he proved unsuccessful, is in ignominious hiding in Holland, with his status to be determined by the Allies. They are prostrate, waiting for the tramp of allied soldiers in the Rhine cities. They have nothing to fear, despite the fact that had they been conquerors they would have ravaged and razed French towns, as they proved in 1871. They fear, not the Allies, but their own workingmen and soldiers, who have been taught by the Hohenzollerns for two hundred years that there is no law but strength and desire. And, most of all, they are concerned about getting something to eat; and they besiege the Allies for food with mingled prayers and threats, despite the fact that the highest allied authorities have publicly promised that they shall be fed.

Most remarkable of all, they beg the Allies to protect the German troops as they evacuate Alsace-Lorraine, and protect them from what? From the civil population, which they have been assuring the world was loyally German; from the civil population, whose sons were torn from them to serve in the German Army. Zabern is tremendously avenged. No more will young officers strike down harmless cobblers for being wanting in respect; no more, in any town of Lorraine or Alsace.

Some humiliation, of course, will be spared the German by reason of his inability to feel the contempt of the world. But he can feel the failure of his own ambitions and desires; he can feel that more keenly, perhaps, than could any other man in his place. For two hundred years he has put all his eggs in one basket, and now the basket has fallen on a rock.

OUR SUPPORT STILL NEEDED.

The American Army, with the armies of the Allies, is now on the point of beginning an essential part of the conduct of the war, the occupation of enemy territory pending the arrangement of the final terms of peace. This work is just as necessary to complete victory as was the fighting itself, but it is not so inspiring as fighting. Soldiers engaged in garrison duty are likely to get bored, frightfully bored. History is full of instances where armies powerful in the field have shickened and lost their efficiency in Winter quarters or garrison duty. The urge of emotion which accompanies the actual shock of conflict is no longer there.

Consequently the seven organizations which are combining in the United War Work Campaign, which hopes this week to raise a maximum of $250,000,000, will have quite as much work to do during this period as while the actual fighting was going on. It is the function of these organizations, religious and secular, to keep up the soldier's morale. The work of making the months which must be spent in occupation of the Rhineland full of comfort for the soldiers, of bringing our army out at the end of this period as fit mentally, physically, and spiritually as it went in, has been in great measure intrusted to these bodies. To the veteran who might relax in this otiose task after the months of fighting, fretful at being delayed in his re-entry into the reviving pursuits of civil life; to the new soldier sent over to replace the veteran, deprived of the thrill of taking part in the battles which would light up the wearisome routine of soldiering, the work of these seven bodies will be of immense benefit. Civilians owe it to the army to contribute to them, no less than to subscribe the money which bought food and munitions while the fighting was still going on.

PRIORITIES FOR GERMANY.

Under the compulsion of events started by Germany Americans have learned much about the order of precedence of public over private affairs. That lesson the world is about to teach Germany, using the standards set by Germany itself. There is to be reparation, and it cannot fall below the scale Germany proposed for others. In June of this year a member of the Prussian House of Lords outlined Germany's demands upon the Allies, including as one item an indemnity of forty-five billions of dollars. As Germany proposed also to take much territory, it must be admitted that reparation to the extent of $45,000,000,000 without territory is a reasonable proposal. Her ability to pay may be inferred from her ability to finance the war and endure taxation.

There can be no argument that Germany cannot do in peace what she did in war, for her physical resources are untouched. She has not been invaded, and her taxes are lighter than those of other nations. The taxes Germany did not lay in war can, must, be laid in peace to make good her unlawful damage done to others. Germany will not be listened to with the plea that she is ruined and practically bankrupt. If Germany can bear taxes for the purpose of paying interest on her war debt, she can bear them for the sake of reparation, and she will be required to do so without regard to the effect upon Germans of the nonpayment of that interest to themselves. That is a matter of Germany's internal affairs and has no bearing on external relations. Germany is now subject to the law of nations which she sought to overthrow, and external obligations are superior to internal for any nation which wishes political or commercial fellowship with other nations. The world will not wish to confiscate or to compel the repudiation of Germany's domestic debts. That is a matter for Germans alone. The world is concerned only with its demands upon Germany, and it will enforce them as first lien upon her power to work and pay. No doubt Germany's national loans are a first lien upon everything which belongs to Germany, but the world demands resemble a tax lien, or the execution of a judgment by a Sheriff in order of priority.

A BELATED ABDICATION.

"I relinquish all participation in the administration of State affairs," says Karl the Sudden, slow, for the first time, about his formal notice of abdication. So unimportant is the latest Hapsburg become that his abdication hardly attracts as much notice as a new military brass button would have done in Vienna in the days when he was a "Vienna blood." One looks back with almost sympathetic irony to the young Emperor, seated on his golden throne, a canopy of red and gold above his head, in the Grand Hall of Ceremonies, when he opened the Reichsrat, the first since the beginning of the war, in May of last year. A sort of hieratic figure he seemed, surrounded by all that ancient pomp and mummery. It is an old saying that Austria of the Hapsburgs was a part of Asia. A Chinese dynasty was rather more progressive.

Poor, old, shaky relic of mediaevalism, Hapsburg is gone. The Dual Monarchy, that machine for the benefit of Magyars and Germans, has tumbled into pieces after fifty years of hard service. The long oppressed subject peoples have been set free. Their secular aspirations for nationality are to be realized at last. The Magyars and the Austrian Germans are clothed with goose-flesh as Bolshevism mutters around them. As Karl invites all men to know by these presents that he has left what the Ministerial speech and proclamation writers used to call "the throne of my exalted ancestors," there is small ill will laid up against him. He was but the puppet ruler of a puppet State. The master of the show has fled to Holland. The show is closed.

Karl seems to have been "not half a bad sort," as our English friends say. He is a fair shot. Exile in a non-sporting country would be as severe a punishment as a just moralist could wish for him. He was never a young man likely to set the Danube on fire.

FROM ARMED SERVICE TO INDUSTRY.

The return to civil life of the men in the armed forces of the United States is an undertaking for which the Government must accept responsibility. It called for enlistments, it summoned men to the colors under the operation of the draft law. Nearly 4,000,000 were taken from industry, to which they are now to be restored. How it shall be done with fairness to them, and with regard for the welfare of the country, which will be served by the prompt return of the soldiers to productive industry, is the problem. In principle no distinction should be made between the enlisted and the drafted men, although the latter had no choice but to leave their occupations. All have distinguished themselves in battle, or served in the army or navy with a devotion that is above all praise. To many of the enlisted men their old places were promised when they should return home, an assurance that simplifies the general problem. But very many of those drafted have had no certain employment to look forward to. The Government must give their cases special consideration and provide, as best it can, for their replacement in the industries.

The Government recognizes its obligation. There need be no anxiety on that score. It will be welcome news to the soldiers and sailors who do not desire to remain in the service that the War and Navy Departments, in association with the War Labor Policies Board and the United States Employment Service, are working on a plan to translate them, with the least possible delay, back to the ranks of civil employment. They are not to be thrown upon the community to shift for themselves. The Republic is going to show itself grateful to its defenders by finding work for them to do, arranging details with employers. The War Industries Board has already sent out thousands of questionnaires to the trades and to business concerns, asking about their needs for men. The draft boards and community labor boards are to lend a helping hand, as they have means of obtaining the information desired.

Four million men cannot be taken out of the industrial and commercial life of a nation without leaving an embarrassing void. The wonder is that the country has been able to get along at all with the army and navy absorbing so vast a host of its workers. It has not got on satisfactorily; many industries have been short-handed, obliged to mark time while they awaited the return of peace. Therefore the questionnaires are being eagerly filled out by employers who have been struggling ineffectually with the labor question during the last eighteen months.

It has been proposed that the War Department establish a new bureau and avail itself of the services of Provost Marshal General CROWDER to regulate demobilization so that the ranks of labor shall be reinforced rapidly and acceptably from the ranks of the army and navy. General CROWDER has displayed so much wisdom and adroitness in managing the draft that the soldier-lawyer who was previously famous for drawing up a code for Cuba is obviously the man to direct the transition of the men of the armed forces back to the tasks of civil life. Happily industry is ready for them, although certain readjustments will be necessary. There is to be a speeding up in many enterprises that had to go slowly when the United States entered the war, and there is much constructive work to be taken up where the tools were laid down. Industrial development promises to be on a scale never known before as soon as the country gets into its stride.

RUSH-HOUR RELIEF.

The hearing of the Public Service Commission upon the plan to reduce overcrowding in the subway trains in rush hours developed opposition from an unexpected source—the passengers. It had been expected that there would be difficulty in securing the co-operation of the shops, which were to be asked to agree upon a schedule of opening and closing hours so that they might not all discharge their staffs into the subway at the same time, but it had not been thought that there was difference of opinion about the benefits of the plan to riders. According to official count, when the plan was worked at the suggestion of the Health Department during the epidemic, there was a decrease of 5,500 passengers in the morning on the west side subway alone, and a decrease of 3,000 on the east side subway. The decrease of passengers amounts to an increase of seats by transferring the traffic to earlier or later hours. All riders noticed it and the companies announced it. It is safe to assume that the change was the same on other routes of travel, although the figures are available only for the subways. If the "staggering of the peak" of travel is not now made permanent it never can be, for it will not be possible without another epidemic to reproduce the frame of mind on the part of the riders, the companies, and the business firms which made the experiment so successful.

There is no trouble about the co-operation of the companies. From their points of view there is everything to be gained and nothing to be lost. It is different with the business firms. They, too, are all for the change in theory, but many of them are against it in practice. Too many want the same opening and closing time, and the change cannot be made unless the agreement is general, or, better, unanimous. Unanimity on the part of the patrons of the shops would produce the same result, by making it useless to open, or to keep open, the shops for customers who did not come. But that is not a practical way of approaching the problem. Millions of riders cannot be persuaded so easily as hundreds of firms. Even firms cannot be compelled to do what is for the general benefit. Reliance must be put on persuasion to bring about co-operation, and on good faith in fulfilling any arrangement which may be made under official oversight.

The Public Service Commission adjourned its hearing to next Tuesday. It may be hoped that then the riders who doubted the benefit of the plan and who objected to the slight sacrifice of personal convenience for the sake of the general welfare will be prepared with some proof of statements contrary to general observation and official report that the plan worked well. Unless the Health Department changes its position, the Public Service Commission would receive the support the Health Department received.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

It is hardly likely that there has ever been a conference, congress, or convention in the past whose deliberations have had a greater effect on subsequent history than will be wrought by the peace conference which closes this war; there has certainly never been any gathering in history which, at the time it met, was known to be of supreme interest and importance to so large a part of the human race. Never before had so many people an active interest in such an event; and never before were the facilities for getting the news of its happenings before the world so extensive.

These facts have a bearing on the selection of a place for the conference. There is talk of one of the smaller cities of the neutral countries—The Hague, Geneva, Berne, Copenhagen. Several objections could be raised against any neutral country; for example, they offer undue facilities for the activity of propagandists and agents of the Power which started the war, which lost the war, and which will doubtless do all it can to keep from paying for the war. But this is not all.

There are two elementary requirements for the city which is chosen for the conference. One is a sufficiency of hotels or requisitionable private residences to give proper housing to the delegates. Another is the telegraphic and cable facilities for getting out the unbiased news of what is going on to a world which is extraordinarily anxious to read this news. The smaller capitals of Europe have not these facilities. The immense volume of communications passing between Governments and their delegations would alone swamp the telegraph offices of Switzerland or the Netherlands; accounts by news correspondents, who in view of the temperamental taciturnity of diplomats will have to tell the public about all they will learn until the peace is signed, must wait—must quite conceivably wait, in many instances, until they are out of date and worthless. There is the further possibility that in these cities sinister influences might interfere to some extent with the channels of communication.

There would be plentiful and reliable cable and telegraphic facilities in any of the capitals of the major Allies. In none of them are these facilities better than in Washington.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Delay Entirely Unavoidable.

Harder to bear, probably, than any of the other griefs caused by the war's fatalities will be those felt by the families of the men who died in the last hours of the fighting—in the hours, that is, between the signing of the armistice and 11 o'clock, when both sides obeyed the order to cease firing. Those fatalities, fortunately, will not be found to have been numerous, for no advances were made in that period and the men were for the most part fairly well protected, but the deaths that did occur then will seem needless to those who do not take all the circumstances into consideration.

It must be remembered that two military machines of enormous size obviously had to be kept in full and vigorous operation up to the moment when it became certain that the Germans would accept the terms of the armistice. Till then there was the possibility—remote, indeed, but real—that instead of agreeing to conditions so rigorous and humiliating to a proud nation, the Germans would decide on a last desperate effort. Had they done so, any relaxation in the allied offensive might have been costly to them, while the Germans, on the other hand, if they had the same possibility in mind, could not have afforded to weaken their defensive and take the risk of a sudden assault.

The situation changed after the signing of the armistice took place, but it was a change that had to be communicated to the millions of men on both sides of a line extending from the sea to Switzerland, and even with modern means of communication that could not have been done in less than the six hours allotted for it by the military authorities who decided the details of the armistice. It is a safe presumption that they made the interval as short as they could. They had no imaginable motive for continuing after it safely could be terminated a slaughter from which no military advantage could then be derived, and of course they did not do it. The Germans, too, were in like case. Once resigned to a surrender of which the only conditions were those imposed by their enemies, and with no "pawns" of any value with which to buy mercy, they could have had no heart for further fighting and must have been glad to stop it as soon as they could.

Good News for Men and Animals.

One statement in the latest proclamation issued to his docile subjects by Mr. HOOVER, that wisely selected and most benevolent of despots, will be received with a special gratitude and satisfaction. It is the one in which he said: "We may now advantageously abandon the use of substitutes in our wheat bread."

That is indeed good news, for of all our cheerfully borne deprivations—it would be a wild exaggeration to call them "hardships"—the hardest, or, rather, the least easy, to bear has been that of using bread made of grains, or parts of grains, other than the grain, and the part of that grain, which instinct and custom alike the world over declare to be the best bread material produced by nature as we know it.

Faddists of various sorts have preached long and eloquently the superior merits of flour not of wheat, and of wheat flour containing more than the heart of the kernel, but though we have often heeded their exhortations, and have done so with possible advantage when we were in certain abnormal physical conditions, we have always known in our hearts that they were wrong and that white bread made of wheat was best in every way.

For the last year or two we have been robbing the cows and pigs and chickens of food that they can digest far more profitably than we can, and as far more pleasurably. We have had our reward in the feeling that we have helped a hungry world over a hard place, but we haven't enjoyed feeding on husks or on substitutes that claimed to be "just as good," but never were. Now we can go back to real bread again—and can hope, a large number of us, to get rid of the various internal woes and lesions that have been the indubitable consequence of eating beast-food.

GIBBON'S WORD COMES TRUE

The Superiority of a Good Novelist to a Precarious Emperor.

From Thackeray's Essay on Fielding.

"Our immortal Fielding," Gibbon writes, "was of the younger branch of the Earls of Denbigh, who drew their origin from the Counts of Hapsburg. The successors of Charles V. may disdain their brethren of England, but the romance of 'Tom Jones,' that exquisite picture of human manners will outlive the palace of the Escurial and the Imperial Eagle of Austria."

There can be no gainsaying the sentence of this great judge. To have your name mentioned by Gibbon is like having it written on the dome of St. Peter's; pilgrims from all the world admire and behold it.

VICTORY.

How shall we climb to the height of it all,
Mother of Peace, to this Day's great Bringing?
What shall we name you, Victory-stuff?
Life, light, laughter, or God's great singing?

How shall we walk down your new white way,
Mother of Peace, with your swift-sandaled feet?
Shall we come laughing or dancing or singing?
Shall we come silent, this New Dawn to greet?

What shall we name you, Victory-thing,
Born of the blood of millions of sons—
Born of the Ages' ultimate travail,
Fashioned in flame of the weary guns?

We who have walked in the great gray days,
How shall we sing our music out?
We who have followed down blood-red ways,
How can we raise articulate shout?

You are too great for our grasping—you,
Who come with new worlds in your tender hands;
You are too vast for our praising—you,
Who shall bind the nations with Brotherhood's bands!

We bring you now in our groping way
Only the clatter of drums—the noise
Of joy-frenzied throngs—inarticulate blare
Of horn and trumpet—children with toys!

But you, Understanding One, guess it all—
The wild hoarse shout, the hurrying feet.
You guess our meaning before we speak,
And shine on all ways your children to greet.

Some day, great Mother, in music and song
We shall fashion that which our hearts would say;
Today we bring you exultant shout;
Tomorrow will show us the larger way.

MARY SIEGRIST.

RUSH TO GET SHIPS TO VISIT OLD HOMES

Stampede of Aliens Here in Belief That Restrictions Had Been Canceled.

WAR RULES STILL PREVAIL

Minister Morris Takes a Destroyer to Overhaul a Swedish Ship 500 Miles at Sea.

Under the impression that, as the armistice has been signed, the passport restrictions would be removed and ocean passenger travel re-established in the immediate future, hundreds of men and women of all nationalities thronged the Government offices and the steamship agencies yesterday offering to deposit money for accommodations on the first vessel leaving port.

The crowds included Russians, Italians, Hungarians, Austrians, Greeks, Syrians, and many other aliens, who were anxious to get to their native lands. Anxiety to ascertain the fate of relatives in most cases was the compelling motive.

At the British passport office, 44 Whitehall Street, applicants were told that the restrictions were still in force, and the same information was given at the United States Immigration Permit Bureau, at 2 Rector Street, where aliens have to give two weeks' notice before they leave the country.

The agents of the neutral lines, including the Holland-America, Norwegian-American and Scandinavian-American Steamship companies, said yesterday that they would not relax their war regulations. Only persons belonging to neutral countries would be permitted to travel on their ships until a peace treaty had been finally signed.

The agents of the Red Star Line received a telegram asking for accommodation for 200 steerage passengers on the first steamship leaving for Antwerp. The sailings of neutral steamships announced yesterday were the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam for Rotterdam on Nov. 19, the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord for Bergen on Nov. 21, and the Scandinavian-American liner United States for Copenhagen on Nov. 19.

Thus far no regular mail service between the United States and England has been scheduled. Mail will be placed on steamships sailing from New York and Liverpool as the American and British postal authorities deem advisable at irregular intervals. The steamships of the French Line will continue to operate between New York and Bordeaux at intervals until the regular weekly sailings are resumed. The French Line and the American Line are the only companies that have not lost a single passenger vessel in the Atlantic during the war. The Provence, formerly in the New York trade from Havre, was torpedoed in the Mediterranean while carrying French troops.

The Anchor Line from New York to Glasgow, and the Atlantic Transport Line from this port and London, practically lost all their passenger ships during the war. The Cunard has lost the Lusitania, Carpathia, Ivernia, Alaunia, Andania, Aurania, Laconia, Franconia, Ascania, Ausonia, and other vessels, which it will be difficult to replace quickly. The White Star Line has lost the Britannic, Arabic, Oceanic, Cymric, Laurentic, and Afric.

Through the lifting of the ban on shipping news it became known yesterday that Hanson Morris, United States Minister to Sweden, overhauled the Swedish-American liner Stockholm, in a destroyer, two days after she sailed from New York for Gothenburg with passengers, mails, and freight. The Minister had gone aboard the fast liner with his two secretaries, but was detained on official business in Washington. When he discovered that the Stockholm had sailed Mr. Morris informed the State Department and was directed to proceed to Boston where a fast destroyer was waiting. The Stockholm's commander was notified by wireless from the Navy Department, and the Minister and his staff were carried to sea by the destroyer and boarded the Stockholm 500 miles off the New England coast.

The permission to print the names of steamships arriving and departing from American ports given by Secretary Daniels to the newspapers on Tuesday seemed to cause some confusion in shipping circles yesterday. The British Ministry requested that the names of vessels under the British flag should not be mentioned. This caused an inquiry to be made at the office of the Committee on Public Information in Washington as to what limitations should be placed on the publication of the movement of ships at American ports. The reply received last night from the bureau said clearly that the lifting of the ban on shipping news by the Secretary of the Navy was intended to remove all restrictions on shipping news with the exception of the movements of warships.

EPIDEMIC A THING OF PAST.

But Health Department Expects Scattering Cases for a Month.

Although influenza continues on the wane in this city, the number of deaths from the disease reported yesterday being less than one-half the number two weeks ago, there is expected to be scattering cases throughout the city for the next thirty days or more, according to Health Commissioner Copeland. The Health Department now looks upon the epidemic as a thing of the past.

According to the Health Department reports yesterday there was an increase of thirty-four cases over the day before and there was a similar increase in pneumonia cases. A total of 444 influenza cases was reported against 410 the day before. There were 84 deaths from influenza and 103 from pneumonia. There were 150 new cases of pneumonia against 125 on Tuesday. The increase was not considered of any serious consequence, this fluctuation having been noted ever since the epidemic began, depending largely upon the regularity of the filing of the reports.

TO GREET VENIZELOS HERE.

Greek Patriots Want America to Hear Premier's Views.

At a meeting of the American-Hellenic Association held last night at its rooms, 1,358 Broadway, an Executive Committee was appointed to formulate plans for the reception of Eleutherios Venizelos, the Greek Prime Minister, who is soon to visit this country. The members of the committee are John McArthur, ex-Assistant Secretary of State; Senator Robert R. Lawson, Nelson W. Greenhut, Harrison Glore, John Panagoulopoulos, George Caranicholas, Professor William Tilly of Columbia, John Xenides, and Zafirios C. Zafirides.

The various claims which Greece has to territory which has been under Turkish rule were discussed, and it was determined to put these in such a form that Americans would be impressed with their justice. Some further objects of the association are:

To impress the Greek residents in America that their first duty to themselves and to the Hellenic race is to pay allegiance to America; to give cheerful obedience to its laws; to subscribe to its form of government, and to become accustomed to speak its language.

Also, to assist in the development and advancement of its democratic form of government, which first saw light in the ancient republic of Athens.

And, on the other hand, to acquaint the American public with the high ideals of government and the high aims and purposes of the Greek nation and invite their support for the accomplishment of freedom for the entire Greek race and its unity.

In order that there might be no clash between the views expressed in this country regarding the Greek claims and those of Venizelos himself, a cable message was sent to the Premier asking him to state what those views were. A dispatch received from him several days ago said: "In the event of a committee desiring to consult with me on any matter of great urgency, I should be very pleased to meet them in Europe, if they could reach here at the first opportunity."

TRADE CO-OPERATION URGED

Rebuilding of World Discussed by Council on Foreign Relations.

The need for thoroughgoing and altruistic co-operation between the United States and Great Britain in the feeding and rebuilding of the world was the topic of discussion at a meeting of the Council on Foreign Relations held last night in the Metropolitan Club. Frank Dilnot of The London Daily Chronicle put forward several concrete suggestions which formed the basis of the conference. These included co-ordination of the mercantile fleets, tariff rearrangements to promote common prosperity, trade arrangements to do away with injurious competition, a permanent round table conference, and an authoritative magazine on world trade, all these to be guarded against any semblance of a combination against the rest of the world.

Edward A. Lilene of Boston said the only kind of trade arrangement among the Allies that would prove commercially profitable in the end was one that was just to every nation, large or small, in the beginning. George W. Wickersham said that success in time of peace could only be won by the same kind of co-operation that had obtained in war, while Darwin P. Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance Company looked to a world federation on the lines of the federation of States in this country. Other speakers were Theodore E. Burton, Major Eric Lankester, and P. W. Wilson of The London Daily News.

That America and Great Britain, because of their economic position, must take the lead in bringing the world back to normal, was the keynote of Mr. Dilnot's speech. "Yet I feel the difficulties," he said. "One is that the internal prosperity of America has hitherto prevented her from turning her eyes to foreign trade in an elaborate degree. She has to do it now, not only for her own sake but for the sake of all the peoples. Never in the history of this country has she failed to lift herself to her destiny."

GERMANS ASSAILED CHURCH

Dr. McMahon Tells of Propaganda Against French Catholics.

Dr. James H. McMahon of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in West 142d Street, made an address yesterday afternoon in Delmonico's before the Catholic Library Association, in which he discussed "The Catholic Soul of France."

"France is soundly and thoroughly Catholic," Dr. McMahon said. "The religious life is deep-rooted and fervent." Although American Catholics are proud, he added, because they have one Catholic university. The Catholics of France have established five institutions which have the rank of universities. France, although a republic, Dr. McMahon pointed out, has a highly centralized government. Every employe of the Government in all parts of the country is subservient to the party in power, and in order to hold his position is compelled to conform to the dictates of the party directing the Government.

Through German-inspired prejudice against the church, he said, and through nationalism and naturalism, also made in Germany and imported into France," a strongly anti-clerical government of clever and adroit politicians has come into power which really deceives the electorate. In explaining Germany's influence in exciting ill feeling in France against the Catholics, Dr. McMahon read a copy of a letter from Bismarck to the German Ambassador in Paris, dated Nov. 15, 1872, in which the Chancellor urged the Ambassador to "undertake a war" against the Catholic Church and "to maintain fear of clerical power" by attacking the Papacy in jingoistic newspapers. This fear of the power of the church spread to such an extent throughout France, Dr. McMahon said, that members of the Chamber of Deputies, themselves devout Catholics and representatives of Catholic communities, voted for measures which persecuted the church.

WANT TO BE AT PEACE TABLE

Clubwomen Adopt Resolution Asking Wilson for Representation.

Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wives, respectively, of the Governor and of the Governor-elect, were guests of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Astor yesterday, sitting with a few chairs of each other, each holding a cluster of red roses, the gifts of friends.

Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale urged greater care in the preservation of food for the coming year to supply needy nations abroad. A resolution was adopted unanimously urging President Wilson to give women adequate representation on the delegation to the peace conference. Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Chairman of the Political Science Committee, offered two resolutions, which were also enthusiastically adopted. One pledged the women's support to the President and all Governments working for the creation of a League of Free Nations and urged that Germany be not admitted until she had proved her repentance to the satisfaction of other nations. The second urged the women of the federation and State to aid in fostering industries of the country, notably those upon which the country was dependent upon Germany at the outbreak of the war, including dyestuffs, textiles, chemicals, &c. The women applauded Mrs. Ella A. Poole, speaking for the national prohibition amendment.

CHURCH MARKS CENTENARY

Lutheran Synod Holds Last Meeting as an Independent Body.

The General Synod of the Lutheran Church of North America celebrated its one hundredth anniversary last night in St. James's Church, Seventy-third Street and Madison Avenue. This was the last meeting of this organization, which will be merged today at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Sixty-fifth Street and Central Park West, with the General Council of the Lutheran Church and the United Synod of the Lutheran Church of the South into the United Lutheran Church in America.

Six former Presidents of the General Synod, which has been in session in St. James's Church since Monday, recounted the history of the organization which had been made during their incumbency. They were Dr. J. A. Clutz, Gettysburg, Penn.; Dr. D. H. Bauslin, Springfield, Ohio; Dr. H. K. Fenner, Louisville, Ky.; Dr. J. B. Remensnyder, pastor of St. James's Church; Dr. H. L. Yarger, Chicago; Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Gettysburg, Penn.

John L. Zimmerman, Springfield, Ohio, President of the Lutheran Brotherhood of America, spoke of the work of the laity in furthering the work of the church. "We will do our best," he said, "to vitalize the work of the Lutheran Church during this new civilization, which must come now that autocracy has fallen and every individual is responsible for his acts."

BANKERS IN FOREIGN TRADE.

James H. Carter Says Success After the War Rests on Them.

In an address before the American Institute of Banking last night James H. Carter, Vice President of the National City Bank, discussed at length the foreign trade which would accrue to this country after peace had finally been declared, and admonished bankers that there should be a more intimate and careful study of the foreign trade situation, as it was upon the bankers that the test of after-war success in commercial lines would fall. He said in part:

"About the last man who can afford to be ignorant of foreign trade will be the banker. In the first place, every kind of American business, including banking, even in its domestic activities, will be closely affected by foreign business, and in a measure tied up with it.

"A banker ought to have a good, specific understanding of how a manufacturer or other exporter organizes the foreign business, and what the executive and routine activities ought to be in the case of businesses of certain size. We ought to know all about the various facilities for doing a foreign business, such as the trading companies, the commission houses that give manufacturers orders in the business of representing foreign buyers, and thus are exclusively foreign buyers' agents, as distinguished from the trading companies that push foreign distribution on behalf of manufacturers in this country. We ought to know the service of forwarders. Just how foreign agents, foreign import houses, and foreign merchant distributers come into the handling of export is very important to know. Direct foreign organization is important."

WHITMAN GAINS ONE VOTE IN THIS CITY

But Smith Gains 1,695 in the Official Canvass of Westchester County.

ALDERMEN COUNT BALLOTS

Governor-Elect Gets 11,213 Votes In His Own District Against Rival's 1,825.

While counsel for Governor Whitman and Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith were preparing yesterday for their battle in court tomorrow over the Republican proposal for an examination of the ballots cast in Manhattan and the Bronx, the Manhattan Aldermen got together and canvassed the vote of the First Assembly District and part of the Second without finding any discrepancies to justify Governor Whitman's move toward a contest. The First Assembly District is the home of the Governor-elect. The canvass showed that out of a total Democratic and Republican vote for Governor of 13,038, Mr. Smith had received 11,213 and Governor Whitman 1,825. The canvass of the Second Assembly District was not completed.

Robert L. Luce was in the Aldermanic Chamber, where the canvass was being conducted, to watch the work for the Democrats, and ex-City Magistrate Emil Fuchs for the Republicans. The latter called attention to a discrepancy between the Socialist vote for Congressman and for Governor in one election district where the Congressional nominee had received 90 votes and the candidate for Governor only 2, as ground for suspicion that Socialist votes may have been counted for Mr. Smith on election night. The Democrats retorted that the Democratic nominee for Governor lived, and was very popular in the district and that undoubtedly the bulk of the Democratic, Republican, and Socialist vote in the First had been cast for him. Ex-Magistrate Fuchs also urged that 110 void ballots may have been cast out on the ground that crosses had been put opposite both the Republican and Prohibition emblem, Governor Whitman being the nominee of both parties, when in the circumstances they should have been counted for the Governor. The net result of the canvass was a gain of one vote for Governor Whitman in the territory covered by the day's work.

George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, said last night that information received from the Republican County Chairmen in Oswego and Warren counties showed Governor Whitman to be a gainer by seventy in Oswego and eighty-six in Warren, as a result of the official canvass. At the request of Governor-elect Smith, the Aldermen of Manhattan have retained the firm of Haskins & Sells, certified accountants, to check up and tabulate the canvassed returns.

Counsel for Governor Whitman and Governor-elect Smith will appear before Justice Gavegan of the Supreme Court, sitting in special term, tomorrow to present their arguments on the order to show cause why there should not be an examination of the ballots. The lawyers representing the Governor-elect, it was said last night, would urge that the Republicans be compelled to submit their order so as to provide for an examination of the ballots cast up-State as well as of those cast in this city.

In the official canvass of the vote in Westchester County, completed yesterday, Governor Whitman had 1,580 votes from the returns on Election Day, while Mr. Smith gained 109, making a total gain of 1,695 for the Democratic nominee, and reducing the plurality of Governor Whitman in the county to 7,277. The official canvass in Westchester shows the following vote for the other candidates on the Republican and Democratic State tickets:

Lieutenant Governor—Schoeneck, Republican, 38,010; Walker, Democrat, 28,127.

Secretary of State—Hugo, Republican, 39,970; Bard, Democrat, 26,328.

Comptroller—Travis, Republican, 39,930; Coler, Democrat, 26,025.

State Treasurer—Wells, Republican, 40,380; Cohen, Democrat, 25,661.

Attorney General—Newton, Republican, 39,037; Morschauser, Democrat, 27,365.

State Engineer—Williams, Republican, 40,165; La Du, Democrat, 25,769.

AGAINST RED FLAG DISPLAY.

Two Patriotic Organizations Seek Law to Forbid Use in Parades.

Movements to combat or make illegal the public display of the red flag of anarchy were begun yesterday by the National Security League and the American Defense Society. The Executive Committee of the National Security League adopted the following resolution at its weekly meeting in the Lawyers' Club:

"Resolved, That the National Security League urges upon the national, State, and municipal authorities the enactment of regulations which, without interfering in any way with the right of free assembly, will forbid the use of the red flag in any public assembly or parade."

The American Defense Society announced the formation of a committee to act along the same lines, composed of Dr. William T. Hornaday, Chairman; Cleveland Moffett, Luther B. Little, and H. D. Craig.

The Executive Committee of the National Security League approved the action of Colonel Charles E. Lydecker, the President, in declining to join with the American Defense Society in an agitation for the boycotting of German-made goods, on the ground that no determination should be made in this matter until the peace conference has defined the terms of peace.

INSISTS AFTER-WAR WAGES MUST DROP

W. H. Barr, National Founders' Head, Says Eight-Hour Day and High Pay Can't Go On.

ASSAILS LABOR UNIONISTS

Declares They Have Been Utilizing Every Power to Intrench Their Position.

William H. Barr of Buffalo, President of the National Founders' Association, speaking yesterday at the opening session of the annual convention of the organization in the Hotel Astor, warned the 250 foundrymen present that the first and greatest post-war problem to engage the attention of the association and industry in general was the liquidation of labor. He asserted that the war level wage schedule could not be maintained by private industry in peace times if the nation's needs were to be met.

"There is no one who will seriously contend," Mr. Barr said, "that with the return of peace we can continue to operate our mines and factories and compete in the world of trade if we are to operate on a national eight-hour day and pay the wages which have been imposed during the stress of political opportunity. When the Government ceases to be the great common employer, and Government money no longer pays the present extravagant wages, can private industry so order its affairs as to continue to furnish employment to the millions of our workmen? This question, broad and comprehensive, is the labor problem which will come with the end of the war.

"With the return of peace the needs of the war will no longer furnish work or determine labor relationships. The vogue of those who have strange solutions for our social and industrial problems, and who are willing to experiment with a sorely tried nation in the midst of its great crisis, will cease. The present determination on the part of certain forces among the workers to attempt to cling to all that union labor has gained on an unsound basis during an abnormal and artificial period will doubtless occasion some trouble and friction.

Mr. Barr charged that the trade unionists had been utilizing every method, power and force, political or otherwise, to put themselves in a position of strength irrespective of the ultimate cost to the country or industry. He said it was clearly their hope that when the soldiers of the American Armies returned from Europe, they would be unable to obtain positions in many industries without the consent of the unions. Mr. Barr said he thought, however, that the returning soldiers would "have a word to say almost immediately concerning conditions here." He added that the soldiers would become a dominant factor in politics and said they would entertain no manifest sympathy for experimental industrial socialism.

Mr. Barr scored the United States Employment Service and alleged that a large percentage of the managers of offices opened up all over the country were officers of labor unions, who discriminated against the open shop and used their powers to promote union organization. But he said credit should be given to the National War Labor Board for its splendid efforts to win the war by bringing about maximum production.

"Now, what is this force which is dictating to the President of the United States, to the departments of the Government, to Congress, to politicians, and, presumably a little later on, to the Church?" he asked. He said it was trade unionism, which represented only about 2 per cent. of the workers of the population of continental United States and 8 per cent. of the workers of the country. He then enumerated the small percentage of organized labor employed in shipyards and other war industries.

In conclusion, Mr. Barr said the manufacturers of the country may now properly "demand the dissolution of the throttling agreement between politics and unionism at the expense of industry, and urge the cessation of usurpation of power by Government officials or appointees." He insisted that in the new peace era the manufacturers should not be asked to surrender the open shop.

At the victory dinner of the association in the Hotel Astor last night, Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, predicted that the United War Work Campaign would be a great success. The Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston, pastor of the American Church of Montreal, who was Lieutenant Colonel of the 106th Canadian Regiment, also spoke.

Colonel Roosevelt Shows Gain.

The condition of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who is being treated in Roosevelt Hospital for an attack of sciatica, was so satisfactory yesterday that no bulletin as to his progress was issued by his physician, Dr. J. H. Richards. In fact, no bulletin has been made public since the first one on Wednesday morning, when the nature of the ex-President's malady was explained and it was stated that it might be necessary to extract a tooth, since dental trouble might have given rise to the sciatic attack. At the hospital last night it was said that Colonel Roosevelt was doing very nicely and that his progress toward recovery was encouraging.

Born in Nevada forty-nine years ago, Mr. Hallock was educated at Rensselaer Institute at Troy, N. Y., following which he went to South America and became director general of the public works of the State of Esmeraldas, Ecuador. When a revolution there threw him out of office he returned North and was made assistant chief engineer of Newark in 1909.

FARLEY.—Adopted at the meeting of Nov. 12th, New York S. P. C. C.

IN MEMORIAM.

This Board records with deep sorrow the decease of the late

long a member of this Society and one who was ever deeply interested in the care and betterment of little children. During all his long pastorate in the Church there is no characteristic that stands out more strikingly of the deep humanity of the man than the interest and personal attention he always gave to the little ones. He believed firmly that the way to obtain religious living and thinking people was to inculcate in them early in life the principles of Religion. To obtain this he labored all his long life toward the betterment of institutions who had the care and attention and education of little children, and to all form of good works that would protect, guard, and help them. The kindliness of his nature went further than that, for it made him take a personal interest in each individual case that came to his attention, and few realize even in his own Church how great an effect on the future of many men and women was the advice and guidance and personal effort that he had spent upon them in their early life.

Cardinal Farley was a great Churchman, a great Christian and a great citizen. He will be remembered in this country for his right leadership and many noble acts of head and heart. But for those who have worked with him in childrescue work there will always be a feeling that his championship of the feeble and the oppressed was the dominating influence of this Christian gentleman.

The Board directs this imperfect tribute to his memory to be inscribed at length upon its minutes.

FORSYTH.—On Nov. 12, 1918, Bettie E., daughter of the late Joseph Worrall and Rebecca A. Forsyth.

SEATON SAXON IS CROWNED CHAMPION OF HACKNEY STALLIONS AT NATIONAL HORSE SHOW

HACKNEYS DOMINATE HORSE SHOW RING

High-Stepping Steeds Prance Before Large Gathering at Madison Square Garden.

CAPT. ROSS HAS BAD FALL

Army Officer Turns Somersault at First Jump, but Pluckily Subdues His Fractious Mount.

New York's Horse Show, which opened at a walking pace on Monday and developed into a lively canter on Tuesday, was going at a full gallop yesterday when the public seemed to wake up to the fact that the greatest horse exhibition of the year was in progress, and flocked to Madison Square Garden in numbers that portend bumper receipts for the United War Work Campaign. At the night session the scene reminded old timers of the days when the annual exhibition was the one sporting feature of the Winter season, and, for the first time at the present show, the parade was instituted of the spectators who come to see people as well as the horse. There was a steady stream in progress while the competitions wer egoing on, the paraders dividing their attention between the horses in the ring and the notables who sat complacently viewing the proceedings from the boxes.

In the afternoon there was a keener interest in the competitions, several of which were so closely contested that partisanship was aroused and the rail-birds gave frequent voice to their sentimental leanings in the hope of influencing the placid judges, who, as usual, decided strictly on the merits of the contestants, and were not a whit moved by the popular clamor. This spirit was sustained all through the night classes, rising to its greatest height when the superb animals entered for the Sir James Cup were put through their paces with a dash and vigor peculiar to the requirements of a gig class.

One reason for the increased interest was the many valuable cups which were destined to become the temporary or permanent possession of the fortunate winners. There were more of these trophies in competition than on any other one day of a horse show and it was estimated that the total value of the prizes distributed yesterday was more than $5,000 and surely was greatly in excess of the monetary value of prizes on any one day of the previous shows.

Judge Moore Takes Blues.

Officially, the entertainment was designated Hackney Day, and these high stepping, fiery steeds, which were unknown in this country at the time of the first show thirty-three years ago, dominated the ring in the morning session and divided attention with harness horses, saddlers, and jumpers in the afternoon and evening. Members of the American Hackney Horse Society held their annual meeting during the noon recess, with Reginald C. Vanderbilt presiding, and congratulated each other on the fact that every harness horse in the garden this year is either a fullbred hackney, or with hackney blood in his pedigree.

Judge William H. Moore took two of the blues for breeding classes in the morning with the three-year-old Seaton Saxon and the two-year-old Seaton Dunbar. He captured another with the imported mare Bountiful, but his success as a breeder was more fully illustrated in the afternoon by a unique victory in the four-in-hand challenge cup competition.

The conditions called for the team to be bred, owned, and driven by the exhibitor, and in all the land Judge Moore was the only man qualified to fulfill these demands with horses of real quality. He drove Cyrano, Moncrieff, Medea, and Mona, well-matched hackneys, which, however, did not show as brilliantly to a coach as in single or double harness. It was the first time any man had shown four horses of his own breeding, but it is hoped that other breeders will come to the front with entries before the cup is won outright.

After Judge Moore's Seaton Saxon had won the class for homebred three-year-old stallions in the morning he so impressed R. Lawrence Smith that he purchased the young stallion for $5,000. Mr. Smith displayed rare judgment, for Seaton Saxon later won in the class for hackney stallions of any age over 14.2 hands.

Title for Seaton Saxon.

Seaton Saxon's final triumph was scored under the glare of lights when the winners in all the hackney stallion classes came out to vie for the championship, irrespective of age or size. The coat of the brilliant brown glistened and he pranced before the cheering crowd so briskly that men on the end of the long lead line had to serve in relays. There was the air of a conqueror in this young product of the best hackney blood, and not a dissenting note was heard when the title was awarded to him over older and more experienced horses. Although on the program in the name of Judge Moore, the championship honor really belonged to his new owner, R. Lawrence Smith.

All day long Judge Moore had been gathering blues and sweeping away all opposition, but for the second time at this show he met with a serious setback in the contest for the gold Sir James Cup for gig horses, given by the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and which the Judge only required to win last night to place it among his numerous trophies.

Miss Isabella Wanamaker, the fair Philadelphian, appears to be the nemesis of the largest winner of the show. Judge Moore drove Micah, which won the event last year, but the cup holder was unsteady in gait and by no means dashing when he did get in steady action. On the other hand, Miss Isabella Wanamaker handled the reins over her Fireaway with confidence, and the chestnut mare responded by an exhibition of brisk and smooth traveling that drew forth thunders of applause. The cheering denoted the destination of the cup, and the completeness of Judge Moore's defeat was signified when R. Lawrence Smith's Hamilton Star, the only other contender, was placed reserve.

Liggett Takes Challenge Cup.

The most stirring battle of the afternoon was furnished in the competition for the Montpelier Challenge Cup for hackney ponies under 14.2 hands. Halcyon Farm's Mighty Mite, owned and driven by Mrs. C. W. Fletcher, had been victor in a similar class earlier in the day, but the incentive of a challenge cup and the encouragement of a crowd of yelling enthusiasts stimulated Louis K. Liggett's Fulgers and aroused animation that the little mare had not shown when she was beaten earlier in the previous class. At first it looked as though Mighty Mite would score again, but the longer Fulgora was kept in action the better she went until at the finish she was stepping with dash and precision that earned her the blue, though all the crowd was not satisfied with the decision.

Officers riding abreast provided an exciting finish to the afternoon's entertainment, and also an exhibition of pluck by Captain J. Ross, who was thrown heavily at the first jump, and, after turning a somersault, landed on his head. For a moment it looked as though the rider was knocked out, but he rose slowly, shook himself, and in a few minutes mounted again, the crowd applauding as he sent his fractious mount over the remainder of the course. Major D. O. Nelson's Ginger had a good running mate in Squadron A's Gold Lace and captured the blue ribbon.

CHAMPION UNABLE TO BOX.

Leonard's Injured Hand to Keep Him Out of Garden Show.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will not appear in a boxing bout against Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, at Madison Square Garden Saturday night, in aid of the United War Work Campaign.

The lightweight champion is suffering from an injury to his left hand, which is in a plaster cast. Leonard received the injury in his bout with Ted Kid Lewis recently, but the pain disappeared until he started training for his proposed bout with Britton. During a sparring exhibition with Freddie Reese, one of his partners, Leonard landed a blow on Reese's head which brought back the old injury.

Soldier Bartfield, the sturdy Brooklyn boxer, has been secured to oppose Britton. Chairman Harvey admitted that Leonard was a greater drawing card, but declared confidence in Bartfield's ability to furnish an interesting bout against the former welterweight champion.

Another bout arranged will have Jack Dempsey, contender for the heavyweight championship, as one of the principals. Joe Bonds, the Tacoma, Wash., heavyweight, now on the U. S. S. Granite State, stepped forward yesterday as the only heavyweight willing to risk a meeting with the heavy-hitting Dempsey.

TITLE GOLF TO BE REVIVED.

Western Association Plans to Renew Championship Events.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Renewal of the Western golf championships, dropped during the period of the war, may be ordered resumed by the Western Golf Association at its meeting in January.

This is the expectation of the President, Charles F. Thompson, who said today that even if the national and Western championships were not held next season, most of the sectional and State tournaments would be scheduled.

WESTERN SHOTS AT TRAPS.

Arle, Herr, and Others Tune Up for Big Tournament.

In anticipation of the big shoot on Saturday for the United War Work Campaign Fund at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club, a score or more of gunners shot over the Winged Foot traps yesterday. Although the field was small, it included some of the greatest amateur and professional shots in the country. The five men who are going to represent the West against the East tried out the traps.

SQUASH TO AID WAR FUND.

Professionals and Amateurs to Play at Yale Club Tomorrow.

In order to aid the United War Fund Drive, the House Committee of the Yale Club has granted to the National Squash Tennis Association permission to hold a series of professional and amateur squash tennis matches on its courts tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock, to which members of the club and members of the large number of New York and suburban clubs, whose co-operation has been asked, may invite ladies.

LONG SHOTS BREAK LOOSE AT PIMLICO

Veteran, at 30 to 1, Wins First Race at Closing Day of Maryland Track.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 13.—One of the most successful meetings ever held by the Maryland Jockey Club closed here this afternoon with a number of good contests that brought as a grand finale the equaling of a track record, when J. W. Parrish's five-year-old Bulse defeated a field of crack sprinters in 1:11 4-5 for six furlongs. S. C. Hildreth's Luculiite was second and Commander Ross's Motor Cup third. The latter ran a great race, as he carried 132 pounds, and was not far behind the winner.

Commander Ross's Milkmaid, top weight in the Caswell Handicap for two-year-olds at a mile, was unable to concede nine pounds in actual meet to the Calumet Stable's Be Frank, which, well handled by Ensor, held the filly safe at the end. The mile was covered in the good time of 1:40 2-5. Commander Ross met with better luck in the Woodberry Handicap, at a mile and an eighth, in which his three-year-old Bonifface lasted long enough to defeat A. K. Macomber's Hollister.

There were a number of getaway day good things, J. Lumsdon's Veteran taking the first race at odds of better than 30 to 1, while five of the seven winners paid long prices in the mutuels.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For 2-year-olds, claiming; one mile. Veteran, 110 pounds, (C. Murphy,) $63.50, $45.50, and $20, won; Coveleigh, 115, (F. Robinson,) $16.10 and $6.80, second; Fair and Square, 115, (L. Lyke,) $3.60, third. Time—1:42 3-5. Romeo, Belario, Summer Sigh, Wisest Fool, George Eliot, Keynote, and Shades also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For 3-year-olds and upward, selling; one mile. Sunnyland, 101 pounds, (C. Kummer,) $24.10, $10.60, and $6.60, won; Cobalt Lass, 101, (E. Sande,) $5.10 and $3.40, second; Currency, 105, (H. Ball,) $7.30, third. Time—1:40 3-5. Maud Bacon, The Decision, Julia L., Blazonry, Happy Valley, Mose, and Whippoorwill also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Consolation Selling Steeplechase Handicap, for 4-year-olds and upward; two miles and a half. Toppy Nix, 138 pounds, (S. Bush,) $19.60, $6.40, and $4, won; Robert Oliver, 140, (J. Smith,) $4.10 and $3.20, second; Melos, 140, (J. Cheyne,) $4, third. Time—4:57. Max Meadows, Smithfield, and Cynosure also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Woodberry Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward; one mile and an eighth. Boniface, 107 pounds, (E. Sande,) $4.80 and out, won; Hollister, 120, (W. Knapp,) out for place, second; Flittergold, 109, (L. Ensor,) out for third, third. Time—1:53. Only three starters.

FIFTH RACE.—The Caswell Handicap, for 2-year-olds; one mile. Be Frank, 116 pounds, (L. Ensor,) $6.60, $3, and $2.60, won; Milkmaid, 125, (E. Sande,) $3 and $2.60, second; Esquimau, 107, (C. Kummer,) $4.70, third. Time—1:40 2-5. Mad Hatter, Over There, Kiss Again, and Ballet Dancer also ran.

PRO GOLF TOURNEY TODAY.

Great Array of Talent to Compete at North Shore Club.

There is likely to be an old-time gathering at the North Shore Country Club today for the United War Work Campaign tournament under the auspices of the Professional Golfers' Association. A majority of the leading "pros" of this vicinity, as well as other sections, have entered for the competition, which will be confined to an eighteen-hole medal play round, either morning or afternoon.

The North Shore course, it will be remembered, was selected for the postponed metropolitan open championship tournament in 1917, and most likely that is where the event will be held when conditions permit, which will probably be next year.

Armed Guard Downs Jack Tars.

The Armed Guard football eleven yesterday deefated the eleven of the U. S. S. New Mexico at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, by the score of 21 to 0. The Armed Guard scores were all made by McCool and Kiely.

EDWARDS TO AUCTION BOXES

Big Bill and Other Football Stars at Sub-Treasury This Noon.

A number of former football players, headed by Big Bill Edwards, will auction boxes and side line badges for the football game Saturday at the Polo Grounds between Princeton and Camp Upton, on the steps of the Sub-Treasury Building this noon. Boxes will also be auctioned off on the floor of the Stock Exchange.

Charley Brickley, the former Harvard captain, will give an exhibition of drop kicking and punting from the Treasury steps. Tickets for the game will also be sold by fifty girls.

FUND IS ENRICHED $2,635.

Hoppe-Gardner Match Aids Drive at Amateur Club.

While Willie Hoppe, professional balkline champion, clicked off point after point last night in an exhibition match with Edward W. Gardner, the former amateur champion, a large crowd at the Amateur Billiard Club contributed the sum of $2,635 to the United War Work Campaign.

Hoppe had little difficulty defeating his amateur opponent, despite a display of indifferent form, by a score of 200 to 100. In the fifth inning, a slip-up by Hoppe prevented him from finishing the game then and there. He had run up a cluster of 76 points before the run was broken by a poor shot. Hoppe finished his string in the next inning, however, for an average of 25. Gardner's highest run was 46.

Welker Cochran defeated two opponents in an exhibition of 18.2 balk-line billiards last night at the Liederkranz Club. He played against Corwin Huston, national amateur Class A champion, and Morris D. Brown, and in twelve innings Cochran ran up a score of 200 while the opposing combination was gathering in 86. Cochran made two runs of 48 and averaged 14 4-12.

The highest run of the opposition was made by Brown, who gathered a cluster of 24. The average was 6 8-13. In another game Miss Clara Haywood defeated George Spear by a score of 125 to 119 in nineteen innings. Miss Haywood made high runs of 38 and 25, with an average of 6 11-19.

Mrs. Ada Bresnan and Miss Maude Flower were the victors in yesterday's play of the women's pocket billiards tournament at Daly's Academy. In the afternoon Mrs. Bresnan defeated Mrs. Mary Johnson by a score of 60 to 58. In the evening Miss Flower defeated Miss Caroline Platt by a count of 60 to 42.

STAR PLAYERS LOST TO COLUMBIA TEAM

Kraus and Robinson, Tackles, and Half Back Shaw Ordered to Training Camps.

Columbia University football authorities discovered yesterday that the signing of the armistice with Germany did not end the war because orders from the War Department which were promulgated on Morningside Heights yesterday morning sent off Robison and Kraus, the two regular tackles of the 'Varsity eleven, to the officers' training school at Fort Monroe. As if that were not enough, it was reported that the men who had been recommended for aviation schools would get their orders to leave the Columbia post today. This means that Charley Shaw, the half back, and Memmott, a second string back, will probably leave Columbia some time this afternoon.

The loss of Kraus and Robison wrecks the Blue and White forward line, while, if it is true that Shaw is to go today, the back field will receive a body blow.

All plans for a game with Harvard on Thanksgiving Day or Nov. 30 were set at naught yesterday when the Harvard management wired that its schedule was full. There is still a possibility, however, that Cornell may be scheduled for Thanksgiving Day, the game to be played at the Polo Grounds. The Ithacans were to have communicated with the Columbia authorities yesterday afternoon, but up to a late hour had not been heard from.

Sailor Fives Play Two Games.

Two interesting games of basket ball between sailor teams of the Third Naval District were played last night at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory in aid of the United War Work Campaign. In the first game the sailor tossers of the Mine Sweeping Division triumphed over the Federal Rendezvous by a score of 37 to 27. The second contest brought about a clash between the U. S. S. Granite State five and the Armed Guard quintet. When the smoke of battle had cleared the Granite State gobs were resting easily on the long end of a 43-to-30 score.

BAKER RUNS TO VICTORY.

Crack Athlete Leads Large Field in 1,000-Yard Race.

Homer S. Baker, international half-mile running champion, showed some of his old-time form last night in winning the 1,000-yard handicap run at the United War Work Campaign indoor athletic meet held in the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory. The former New York A. C. runner, competing from scratch, triumphed over a field of twenty-two starters, some of whom had liberal handicaps. It was Baker's first competitive appearance in eighteen months, but he demonstrated that he still retained plenty of his former ability.

Baker started from scratch with Jack R. Sellers of the New York A. C. The two honor men furnished an interesting race over the entire journey. At the start of the second lap they mowed down their handicapped rivals, with Baker in the lead. The international champion never thereafter relinquished his position at the head of the field, but he was hard pressed by Sellers in a final sprint for chief prize. Sellers, however, was unequal to the task of wresting first place from Baker, although he succeeded in decreasing an advantage of about five yards to one yard. Baker's time was 2:20.

Charlie Pores of the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, national five and ten mile champion, scored a rather easy victory in a special three-mile race. The little Pelham Bay sailor had an advantage of about seventy-five yards on Max Bohland at the finish of the race and was timed in :15:12 2-5. Frank Gillespie, who came on from Chicago, failed dismally in his effort to give Pores serious competition. He was lapped before the three-mile mark was reached.

The summaries:

1,000-Yard Run; Handicap—Won by Homer S. Baker, (scratch;) Jack R. Sellers, New York A. C., (scratch,) second; A. Wild, Kings County A. A., (55 yards,) third. Time—2:20.

One-mile Match Relay Race—Won by Loughlin Lycoum, (R. W. McDonald, P. Hauser, P. Hally, and J. J. O'Brien;) Knights of St. Antony, (A. Reilly, J. McAuley, C. Blush, and C. Shaughnessy,) second. Time—3:41 2-5.

Three-Mile Bicycle Race—Won by J. Nunziata, Empire City Wheelmen; A. Stern, Empire City Wheelmen, second; F. Laux, Empire City Wheelmen, third. Time—7:16.

Seventy-five-Yard Dash; Handicap—Won by William Steen, unattached, (10 yards;) J. Tackash, Fordham University, S. A. T. C., (10 yards,) second; B. Weisleger, Jr., unattached, (11 yards,) third. Time—0:08 2-5.

More Sales of Sweaters.

Manufacturers of sweaters seemed to be much gratified when the announcement was made that restrictions on the amount of wool to be used had been rescinded. Since the first of the week there appears to have been a decided increase in the amount of goods sold. Buyers who before were holding off are now in the market placing orders. Reports received from the South American markets show that buying is very brisk on all lines, especially on the Spring offerings of silk and fibre silk goods.

Bids to be Rejected.

Three sets of bids that were opened Nov. 6 at the local office of the Quartermaster General have been recommended to the Board of Awards for rejection. The bids contained proposals for furnishing 2,000,000 huckback towels, in sizes from 18x36 to 17x34, and approximately 2¼ pounds per dozen in finished weight, for delivery this month and next; 10,000,000 yards of sheeting cent drill 36-inch, 83x58, to weigh not less than 1.18 pounds, and made of 14s warp and approximately 10⅝s filling, to be made with a blue line one-inch inside selvage, breaking strength not less than 115 pounds; warp not less than 105 pounds in filling, and 2,000,000 yards 36-inch 64x68, 3.50 sheeting, or 40-inch 64x68, 3.50 sheeting, delivery one-half each this and next month. In making this announcement it was reported that the department is not taking any action at this time until word is received from Washington.

Upholstery Hardware Output.

After being postponed several times, a meeting was finally yesterday at the Yale Club between the War Industries Board and members of the upholstery hardware trade. The purpose of the meeting was to reduce the output of cabinet hardware, but, in view of the events of the last few days, no definite action was taken. A big reduction in drapery hardware was made some time ago, but it is expected that the trade will soon be able to resume operations on the regular basis.

Swiss Curtain Prices.

In view of the change in conditions abroad there seems to be a difference of opinion among importers of Swiss curtains as to whether there will be a drop in prices or whether they will remain the same. Some think that prices will stay as they are for some time, at least until it is possible to obtain the supply of nets and other materials needed and the labor question is settled. Others believe that prices will drop because the present high cost of these goods at retail has greatly curtailed the sales.

No 1919 Gray Goods Sod.

Sales of gray goods in this market yesterday were confined almost entirely to odds and ends, for delivery during this month and next at prices which in many cases showed concessions of half a cent a yard from Government maximum figures. First hands were noticeable in the day's business only from their lack of participation in it. Contract business was nil, and the chances are that there will be little of it until prices come more to the liking of buyers.

Evening Gown Demand Expected.

Now that the war is over and society —as typified by the wealthy women present at the opening of the opera season the other night—has given its approval to the laying aside of sackcloth and ashes, a sharp revival in the demand for elaborate evening gowns and party frocks is looked for in the local dress trade. Evening gowns, in particular, have been having a rather quiet time of it since this country went into the war, and a call for them would not be unwelcome. A better season than last for Palm Beach dresses also is looked for here.

PROPOSALS.

OFFICE QUARTERMASTER GENERAL, New York City.—Sealed proposals in triplicate for furnishing 217,620 yards 52-inch 32x28—1.75 Osnaburgs to be used for target material, strength in both warp and filling not less than 56 pounds per inch, for delivery equal monthly beginning November, 1918, through March, 1919, regular domestic packing; will be received here until 2 o'clock P. M., November 18, 1918. Information on application at this office. Envelopes containing proposals to be endorsed: "Proposals for 52-inch Osnaburgs," and addressed to the Cotton Goods Procurement Branch, Clothing & Equipage Division, 109 East 16th Street, New York City.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Credit Situation Again Affects Stocks—Cotton Selling Curtailed.

The stock market had a number of influences acting yesterday to sway prices back and forth, and it was probable that one of the most important was the continued effect of restricted credits. In the opinion of shrewd observers of market phenomena the decline of the previous day was largely the product of caution among brokers in permitting margin customers to increase their holdings, with the concurrent selling which frequently accompanies an attitude of this sort. It is known that more than one Stock Exchange house has become unwilling to fill large buying orders unless they are either accompanied by cash to the full amount of the purchase price or by exceptionally heavy margins. Insofar as the Government's purpose is to restrict undue speculation while war demands on credit are heavy, there is plenty of reason from a patriotic point of view for economists to be satisfied with what has been obtained. At the same time it may be said that brokers are chafing under the present developments in the credit field, and because of the uncertainty of the outlook are moved to urge their customers to exercise caution in taking a market position. The irregular tendency of prices in yesterday's session appeared to reflect the attitude of the brokers, although not to as great an extent as on Tuesday. Stocks were highly irregular throughout the day and closed with the list substantially below the price level at the end of the previous day.

Doubtless the developments on the Cotton Exchange had their effect in directing speculation in the stock market. As a result of a Government order speculative short selling of cotton from home sources and all selling from abroad was suddenly discontinued except in the liquidation of long contracts. Whether or not speculation per se has been causing the recent extensive decline of cotton prices the fact remains that the market has been slumping for several days in a way to cause concern among producers. In cotton quotations there has been supplied an example of disappointed hopes and an urgent effort to discount future possibilities as an outgrowth of the ending of the war. A great deal of selling of late has been reported as coming from Liverpool in the way of hedging operations against chance of loss through a decline in spot cotton and future contracts over there. At home and abroad the feeling has gained ground that with the war demand for cotton goods in prospect of rapid reduction, prices might readjust themselves to a lower level in a very short period of time. This feeling has had some influence in the prices of stocks, especially of securities of companies doing a large war business, and it is well within reason to assume that, as in the case of cotton, stocks have been depressed by this sentiment.

The statement by the Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation was rather generally interpreted as optimistic for the long run of the industry, and the note of caution for occurrences of the near future was duly noted. For those who desire arbitrary methods to stabilize quotations during the readjustment period the application of prominent steel men to the War Industries Board at Washington yesterday to maintain fixed quotations for some time to come was a matter of satisfaction. Steel trade reviews indicated a feeling that measures should be put into effect as soon as possible to make increasing amounts of materials available for private needs. It was pointed out that the country is bare of stocks in warehouses, a condition which promises well for an increase in the buying power in the near future.

In the bond market prices for the first time since the upward movement began a month ago showed a reactionary tendency. In foreign exchange the day's movements were without special feature.

REACTIONARY TONE IN LONDON

Caused by Competition Among Traders for New Bonds.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The reactionary tendency in gilt edged securities continued on the Stock Exchange today. It was due to realizing competition of war bonds and a desire to have funds for reconstruction.

Oil, rubber, and Mexican shares were the most active issues at rising prices.

Money was in fair demand and discount rates were quiet.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Trading on the Bourse was calm today. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 62 francs, 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 25 francs 97¼ centimes, and new 5 per cent. loan 87 francs 65 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Judge Gary's Views.

Comment in brokerage offices in the early part of yesterday's stock market session indicated that traders in the steel issues considered Judge Gary's statement on the future outlook of a bearish import. This feeling helped to depress Steel common 1½ points below the previous day's close and sent Republic Iron and Steel off 2 points. It developed later, however, that the optimistic portion of the statement gradually drew increasing attention and the steel shares recovered some of their losses. Judge Gary sought to divide the future, as he sensed developments, into two parts. For a time, he stated, it would be well for everybody to act with caution in business commitments, and later he predicted prosperity should come without disguise.

Steel Stocks Low.

A fact in the steel trade which impresses itself upon inquirers is the presence of empty warehouses throughout the world. In 1907, as The Iron Age points out, co-operation of manufacturers in controling the market began with warehouses and manufacturers' floors "loaded with every form of finished iron and steel bought at top prices." It is inconceivable, as steel men assert, that any great progress can be made in reconstruction operations abroad and the stimulation of delayed building operations at home without a decided effort to increase stocks. This process is expected to act as a steadying influence on the future market, supplying a demand which may close gaps in the early irregular buying for immediate consumption.

United Copper Buying.

It is rumored in the copper trade that foreign Governments are encouraging the formation of syndicates to purchase metal of American producers for distribution among consumers in their countries. A French commission is understood to be here at the present time going over the ground, gathering data in respect to production and the probable trend of prices. From the buyers' point of view there would be distinct economy in co-operation, a lesson learned from the war. Competition between purchasers for the allied nations early in the war was a costly process, which the upward course of prices amply indicated. It is not expected that producers will have any objection to joint purchases from abroad, provided that the prices yielded an adequate profit.

German-Stamped Bonds Rise.

TO EASE WAR DEBT WITH SINKING FUND

Bankers Here Discuss Proposals for Retiring Nation's Great Bond issues.

DISCUSS FUTURE TAXES

Belief That the Government Soon Will Evolve a Financial Plan to Meet the Conditions.

Bankers are considering ways and means for aiding the Government in the distribution of at least one large bond offering and possibly more, but at the same time they are looking ahead to the consideration of measures to bring about liquidation of the tremendous war debt on as economical a basis as possible. It is expected in some quarters that future Government financing as a result of the war may reach as high as $8,000,000,000. If this output actually becomes necessary the country will find itself with $23,000,000,000 or more of bonds maturing at specified dates in the future, for which provision must be made in the way of interest and a comprehensive plan for retirement without causing an undue burden on the people.

Inquiry among leading bankers of the financial district yesterday showed a feeling in all quarters that some form of sinking fund for the gradual retirement of the great debt should be prepared in the near future. Views as to the size of the sinking fund showed a considerable diversity of opinion. It was found that some leading financiers who have been closely engaged in the Government's bond flotations thought that a fund should be built up by the reservation from taxes of annual sums equal to 5 per cent. of the par value of the outstanding bonds. Taking $25,000,000,000 as the probable maximum of the Government's war debt this would mean $1,250,000,000 a year to be taken from taxes for the retirement of bonds. Other bankers maintained that so large an amount as 5 per cent. would necessitate taxation on too great a scale, particularly as industry has tremendous problems to solve in the next few years in getting back to a normal peace basis. In discussing tentative plans for the retirement of Liberty bonds it developed that bankers have decided opinions about the scale of future taxes.

"The possibility of great harm to business and industry," said one banker whose operations are largely in the investment field, "lies in the indication supplied by the views of Administration leaders that taxation is to be continued for the next year or more at a high level. True, we must face the certainty that taxes are to be stiff, that peace time conditions in this respect cannot again appear for several years. A substantial part of the funds necessary for demobilization purposes must come from taxes, but it does not seem to me sound economics to burden the people for the purpose of reducing the war debt at a rapid rate. A sinking fund for the bonds is a sound and normal way for liquidating the Government's obligations, but it would not in my opinion be for the best interests of the people if taxes had to be kept up to a figure comparable with those of last year and the current year in order to retire the bonds quickly.

"A 5-per cent. sinking fund would retire the bonds in twenty years; in other words, the present generation would have to carry most of this load. The maturity of the last three issues of Government bonds is twenty years or less, but I believe it would be better for the Government to work out a refunding plan for part of the bonds rather than hurry their payment through excessive taxes."

This expression of opinion was not unanimously indorsed, but it had a large majority support among the bankers seen. There were some who thought that a 5 per cent. sinking fund would not prove too onerous when, at the conclusion of peace, allowance was made for loans to the allied governments. These, it was pointed out, now amount to some $7,000,000,000, which will be liquidated by the borrowers and thus reduce the net obligations of the Government for war purposes to about $18,000,000,000. A 5 per cent. sinking fund on this amount would be around $900,000,000 a year, which these bankers thought might be supplied without undue strain, provided that American manufacturing and commerce rose after a time to new high records of prosperity.

In challenging this optimistic outlook, members of the opposing school asserted that a plan for a substantial sinking fund might be evolved and later found unsatisfactory because of the appearance of unforseen expenses growing out of the conflict. The matter of pensions for returned soldiers and their families was mentioned in this connection, and also the unestimated outlay on insurance policies written by the Government.

It is expected in the financial district that a Government plan for a sinking fund will be evolved at an early date. Provision is made in the law covering the war bond issues for the use by the Government of an amount up to 5 per cent. of the par value of bonds outstanding at the beginning of a fiscal year for the purchase of bonds in the open market in that year. The original purpose of this measure was not to retire the bonds but to lend support in the market. Bankers said yesterday that this could be converted into a sinking fund if the Government so desired, although the funds to be so used would have to be supplied by taxation in the same way as if a new sinking fund program was worked out.

U. S. AIDS BOSTON & MAINE.

Grants Loan of $19,879,060 to Pay Off Overdue Indebtedness.

In the reorganization plan for the Boston & Maine Railroad, which was announced in Boston yesterday by the Director General of Railroads, the road takes over, through consolidation, its seven principal leased lines. The leased line stockholders are to get one share of the preferred stock of the reorganized Boston & Maine, paying the same dividend as under the existing leases, except that for five years, in order to provide a fund for improvements and paying debts, dividends will be reduced 20 per cent. Dividends on the new first preferred take precedence over the existing preferred stock.

The Federal Government lends the reorganized company $19,879,060 to pay off the overdue indebtedness of the road and its subsidiaries. In exchange for this sum the Boston & Maine will issue $17,600,000 5 per cent. bonds and $2,275,000 6 per cent. bonds, which will be secured by a mortgage covering the existing bonds and notes of the Boston & Maine and leased lines. After reorganization the road will have $38,817,300 first preferred stock, $3,140,900 ordinary preferred, and $39,505,160 common. The bonded indebtedness is $103,167,890.

Earnings for five years after the first preferred dividends and 4 per cent. on the existing preferred will be paid into the sinking fund for the gradual repayment of the Government advances. In the meantime the road has the option to sell at not less than par $12,000,000 6 per cent. first preferred, the proceeds to pay the $12,000,000 bonds.

If this is done no further payments will be made into the sinking trust fund. Earnings thereafter may be paid out in dividends. Earnings released by a temporary reduction in dividends on preferred stock are to be invested in permanent improvements or a reduction in debt. There is no provision made apparently for taking over the Hampden Railroad. If judgment is recorded against the Boston & Maine the Government will lend the necessary funds to take care of it.

COTTON AGAIN DROPS, BUT PARTLY RECOVERS

Accumulated Selling Orders and Ban on Short Selling Are Factors in Early Decline.

Yesterday's opening on the Cotton Exchange was probably the most excited witnessed in some time. The heavy selling of Tuesday, which caused all options to decline $10 a bale, the maximum for one day's business, brought out a fresh line of shorts through the accumulation of overnight orders to sell, and added to this factor was the telegraphic order from the Chief of Bureau of Markets of the War Industries Board, which was read to the assembled brokers before the opening, prohibiting short selling of cotton, and the acceptance of foreign orders except in liquidation of long contracts. A burst of selling which was stimulated by these two incidents caused December to open 100 points off from Tuesday's closing, at 26c., January 150 points off at 25.75c., March 110 points off at 25.50c., and May 102 points off at 25.50c. After the initial rush of liquidation which was gradually absorbed, the tone of the market became steadier, although a trifle feverish. Around midday on rebuying by spot houses there was a rally of as much as 100 points, or $5 a bale, from the early low levels, December selling up to 27.45c., January 26.80c., March 26.50c., and May 26.25c. The closing was barely steady, 90 to 175 points decline, from Tuesday's closing quotations.

An opinion pretty freely expressed around the ring was that the order of the Washington authorities is likely to lead to a reduction in the outstanding interest and act as a stabilizing influence on prices.

Liverpool will open for business today after having been closed since last Friday.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 12,133 pkgs. Prices half cent higher for the choice and fancy grades of fresh creamery, with trade pretty good and stock cleaning up closely. Medium qualities are selling rather slowly. Renovated quiet. Ladles lean slightly in buyers' favor and packing stock still drags heavily. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 03½@61c; extras, 92 score, 63c; first, 88 to 91 score, 58½@62½c; seconds, 86 to 87 score, 55@58c; lower grades, 50@51c, unsalted, higher than extras, 05¼@06c; extras, 61½@65c; firsts, 60@61c; seconds, 59@59½c. EGGS.—11,866 packages. Arrivals are larger but the supply of strictly fresh gathered eggs is still small and the fancy qualities short of the moderate needs of the trade. Prices for high grades rule firm. Seriously mixed qualities of fresh gathered and accumulations of held fresh are still moving slowly at a wide range. Storage eggs firm with a good demand and reserved offerings. Market for white eggs is lower under a decidedly slow trade. The offerings of California stock have been dragging, and with further receipts of a carload yesterday prices are being shaded materially in the effort to force a clearance. The weakness is affecting the nearby goods also and concessions are being generally made to keep stocks moving. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 70c; extra firsts, 67@69c; firsts, 64@66c; seconds, 58@63c; dirties, No. 1, 47@48c; No. 2 and poorer, 42@46c; checks, good to choice, dry, 42@44c; undergrades, 30@41c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 47@48c; firsts, charges paid, 45@47c; seconds, charges paid, 42½@44½c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 92@96c; ordinary to prime, 76@90c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 75@91c; pullets, 74@78c; Pacific Coast whites, first to finest, 80@90c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 68@90c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 79@79c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 69@76c.

GOVERNMENT CURBS COTTON SPECULATION

Distribution Committee Prohibits Further Short Selling on Exchanges.

PRICES GO DOWN AGAIN

Brokers Insist Decline Is Due to "Hedge" Sales, and Not to Short Selling.

The Committee on Cotton Distribution of the Department of Agriculture yesterday forbade all speculative short selling of cotton and the execution of cotton selling orders from foreign countries, except in liquidation of long contracts. The order, which caused a considerable flurry after it was read at the Exchange at the opening yesterday morning, was addressed to W. L. Johnson, President of the Exchange, and signed by Charles J. Brand, Chairman, and W. L. Clayton, J. Temple Gwathmey, and E. H. Inman, Committee on Cotton Distribution. The text follows:

"In order to curb undue speculative activity it becomes necessary at this time to prohibit further speculative short selling on the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges, and the members of these Exchanges are hereby notified that all further speculative short sales are prohibited. Hedge sales may be made on condition that an affidavit from the seller will follow that the sale is a bona fide hedge sale against the purchase of cotton. No selling orders from foreign countries except in liquidation of long contracts are to be executed."

Word came from Washington later that the following explanation of its order had been made by the committee:

"The signing of the armistice brings us suddenly to the threshold of the reconstruction era. Pending developments are of the utmost importance to the entire cotton world. The consequences of unfounded rumors that tend to promote vicious speculative activity and cause unjustified demoralization must be avoided as far as possible.

"The world's requirements of cotton to meet its increasing demands for clothing will henceforth be on a continuously ascending scale. Based on reports to this committee from the various foreign countries, we estimate their requirements and probable imports of cotton under present conditions to be over two million bales in excess of last year's takings. Europe is almost denuded of cotton and cotton goods. The potential buying power of the world which will be aided and hastened by the establishment of the necessary credits will quickly assert itself."

The price of active cotton options took a decided drop on Monday and another decided drop on Tuesday, but it was emphatically denied that these declines in prices were brought about by speculative short selling. Those who held this opinion pointed to the course of the market yesterday. Not a short sale of a bale of cotton was made on the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday, and yet, at the close of business, the market was below the close of Tuesday by not far from 100 points. This decline, it was pointed out, was occasioned, as was the decline on Monday and Tuesday, by "hedge" sales, and not by short speculative selling.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, it may be stated that "hedge" sales comprehend dealings in futures by persons owning actual cotton. For instance, a man buys so many bales of spot cotton at a certain price. In the immediate or remote future that price may go up or go down. As a sort of insurance, the holder of spot cotton sells a future option at the best price he can get. On the theory, therefore, that the downward trend of the market was due to "hedge" sales, and not to short sales, the conclusion was irresistible that cotton experts believed that the market was too high and would go lower.

W. L. Johnson of Shearson, Hammill & Co., President of the Cotton Exchange, admitted yesterday afternoon that the only conclusion to be drawn from the "hedge selling" was that the sellers believed that the price of cotton was going lower.

It was said on the exchange yesterday that never before since there has been a cotton exchange in this country has an inhibition been put on foreign purchases or sales. The principal foreign accounts are those of Liverpool and Canada. Liverpool has its own market and, therefore, the order of the committee will not work so great a hardship as it will among Canadian traders, for there is no cotton market in Canada. Canadians must trade with Liverpool, New York or New Orleans.

PREPARE NEW STOCK RATE.

Committee Would Make Value of Shares Basis for Commissions.

A change in the rate of commission for the purchase and sale of stock and bonds on the New York Stock Exchange was proposed in the report of the committee which has been considering this subject since last June, and which was submitted to the Board of Governors yesterday. Heretofore the commission has been $12.50 for buying or selling 100 shares appraised at $1o or above a share and $8.25 for 100 shaje lots selling below $10 a share on all transactions for customers of brokerage houses. Now it is proposed to substitute a sliding scale, basing the charge for commissions on the value of the stocks or bonds purchased or sold. In other words, there is to be an increase in the charge which is now standard in the case of high-priced securities, and a decrease where the stocks are of smaller value. Also there is a proposal of a change in the rate of commision, with reference to wire transactions, and to those between members. The Board of Governors took the report under advisement, and will consider it for two weeks, when some definite decision will be made.

One member of the exchange said yesterday that it was a decimal system which was proposed. As an example, he said, there might be a charge of $15 for buying or selling 100 share lots of a stock selling at $100 a share, and a proportionate increase on the decimal system for transactions in stocks running into higher values. In the case of a stock selling for 00, the charge for 100 shares might be reduced to $14, and so on, so that there would be a noticeable reduction from the present general rate of ⅛ of 1 per cent. in the case of stocks selling for $50 or less a share. It was his prediction that if the proposed change was approved by the Board of Governors that it would lead to heavier speculation in the low-priced securities.

WORK ON LOAN PROBLEM.

Progress Marks Stock Committees' Efforts to Equalize Credit.

The committees representing the New York Stock Exchange and the Association of Partners of Stock Exchange Firms ,appointed recently to co-operate with the Money Committee of the banks in regulating brokerage loans, have made considerable progress, it was learned yesterday, in equalizing the loans of Exchange members. The process has gone on quietly through consultations between certain brokers and the committees. At the same time inquiry among Stock Exchange members showed yesterday considerable dissatisfaction over the money situation which has resulted in the refusal of buying orders for stocks by some houses except for cash or on a very high margin basis.

One or more firms, with telegraph connections to other cities, it is understood, notified their branch managers late last week to accept buying orders only when accompanied by cash to the full value of the stock or by an amount of margin which made purchases practically investments. This action was taken because of uncertainty over the amount of credit to which Stock Exchange houses would be entitled in the immediate future. The Committee of Five of the Stock Exchange ruled a fortnight ago that the bank loans of their members should be reduced to the levels prevailing on Sept. 16. There was a protest immediately from firms which asserted that their loans on that day were below normal, while the loans of other firms were substantially higher than the amount they usually had. It is the irregularities contained in this situation that the committees are now smoothing out.

Sumatra Dividend Declared.

The American Sumatra Tobacco Company declared a dividend on its common stock yesterday of 15 per cent., payable on Dec. 7 to stockholders of record Dec. 3. Frank Steinhardt of Havana was elected a Director of the company.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed steady in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Net losses, ranging from one to two points were made in a majority of the active issues in both the rails and industrials as the result of the heavy selling pressure in the forenoon. Subsequently prices, as a rule, rallied fractionally and for the remainder of the session to the close the market held steady with minor fluctuations.

THE TEACHING STAFF.

Appointments to Fill Vacancies in the Elementary Schools.

The Board of Superintendents found yesterday that there were many more vacancies in teaching positions in the elementary schools than it had supposed. There were fifty or sixty more resignations than had been calculated. The board nominated about 375 from the new list No. 1 which was reported last week. It assigned 420 more to schools, and also nominated about 100 more to be assigned by the Superintendent as soon as needed. The Board of Education appointed them. This is the quickest appointment on record. There were 679 on the No. 1 list. The rest may be appointed soon, and the Principals are pleased.

Here is the list:

Fatigue - the greatest enemy you have in your work today

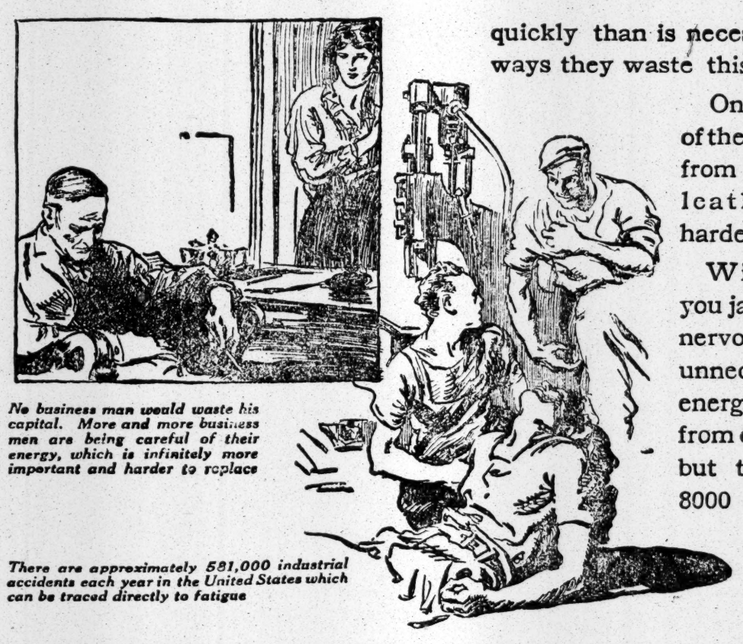
No matter who you are—lawyer, postman, engineer, business man, mechanic or office worker—fatigue is the greatest handicap you must overcome

YOU start out in the morning fresh and vigorous. Little by little your energy drains away. Fatigue begins to make its presence felt. By four o'clock you slow down

Fatigue affects you in many ways. It robs you of the driving force and energy with which you begin the day. It decreases the amount of work you can do. It makes pleasure less enjoyable. It lowers your resistance to disease and results in a drain on your reserve of nervous force.

How fatigue increases accidents

According to the opinion of a writer in a recent bulletin of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, it may be conservatively estimated that there were 700,000 serious accidents among industrial workers in the United States last year. Authorities who have investigated these accidents claim that 83% could have been prevented if the worker had not been fatigued. These workers started the day as fresh as you. Little by little they spent their energy. Soon both mind and body were too fatigued to respond to the demands made upon them. Then came the accident which, in many cases, meant permanent disability.



No business man would waste his capital. More and more business men are being careful of their energy, which is infinitely more important and harder to replace

There are approximately 581,000 industrial accidents each year in the United States which can be traced directly to fatigue

Bodily fatigue affects the mental worker just as surely. "Too tired to think" is not necessarily the excuse of a lazy man. It is really the reason why many physicians, lawyers, teachers and other mental workers find themselves unable to attain the same success that they envy in their more energetic rivals.

Much fatigue may be avoided

The majority of men and women use up their energy much more quickly than is necessary. In many ways they waste this precious force.

One of the biggest of these wastes comes from pounding hard leather heels on harder pavements.

With every step you jar your sensitive nervous system and unnecessarily waste energy. The waste from one step is small but the waste from 8000 daily steps is a tremendous drain.

Millions of workers have found a way to eliminate these 8000 daily energy leaks.

O'Sullivan's Heels act as cushions and absorb the jar of walking on hard pavements and floors. They conserve your energy and prevent fatigue.

Save your heels, save your shoes—save leather which is daily becoming more scarce—above all, save your nervous system.

A week's trial will show you the difference between leather heels and O'Sullivan's Heels. You will find your step growing brisker and more vigorous, you will be more fit at the end of the day. Every day that you delay wearing O'Sullivan's you are wasting energy and experiencing unnecessary fatigue.

Have the repair man attach a pair of O'Sullivan's Heels today. They not only conserve your energy, but will last two to three times as long as leather heels and will give uniformly satisfactory service to the very last.

Because of our special process, O'Sullivan's Heels combine the greatest durability with the greatest resiliency. Good dealers sell the latest style shoes with O'Sullivan's Heels already attached. Have O'Sullivan's put on all your shoes today.

In black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Insist on O'Sullivan's—avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

O'Sullivan's Heels protect you against the jars of hard pavements—they conserve your energy
